One Nomination Held Up Because Son-in-Law of a Senator's Wife Was Not Given Office He Could Not Fill.

NEW YORK, April 4.- Former Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte, speaking at a luncheon at the City club yesterday, expressed himself in favor of the "mega phone method" of governmental administration as compared with the "whispering method."

Whenever you find anyone," said he, "who wishes to discharge his duty corners, in whispers, in darkness, or at Jeast in twilight, you have a man who wishes to run his office in accordance with other than civil service principles."

Mr. Bonaparts then told of a conversatien he had had with a justice of the supreme court of the United States, during which he gaid to him that he would never be satisfied until the highest court in the land was brought under civil service rules and its appointments were made by competitive examination.

"It is not encouraging for one who wants to get good judges." said Mr. Bonaparts, "to find that he has to figut it out with senators, the grounds for whose recommendations to office are not always such as to commend themselves to an attorney general who is tainted with civil service ideas. It is not alus who desire to think of the judiciary as we should in this country to find out what motives animated some senators in recommending the choice of fudges and to conjecture, from what we know of those motives, what motives ruled in the selection of others

I remember one case, before the administration which I served under, where s president could not get a confirmation of a really good justice unless he agreed to give a certain senator's wife's son-in-law a position for which he was absolutely unfit. Bill in Congress to Require Return of Twenty-Eight Millions Distributed in 1836.

WASHINGTON, April 4.- The publication today over the country of the introduction by Representative Murdock of Kansas of a bill to call upon the twenty-six states to repay the government $28,000,000 which was distributed during Andrew Jackson's administration was followed immediately with a flood of telegrams upon members. senators and newspaper correspondents for more light upon the subject.

"I introduced that bill two years ago," said Mr. Murdock late today, "and no one paid any attention to it. Since the special session began I received a letter asking money repaid, so I reintroduced the bill. Evidently the public mind is in a state now to consider the nation's finances. I shall do everything in my power to press the bill for passage, if not at the special session, then at the regular session."

In 1836 there was a surplus in the federal treasury of $38,000,000, due largely to the sale of public land in the central west. Congress authorized the distribution of this money among the states, upon their promising to repay it on demand of the secretary of the treasury. After $28,000,000 had been distributed, but before the fourth installment had been paid, congress passed another law postponing payment of the final installment and incorporating as a "joker" a proviso that the money distributed should be subject to the demand of congress in stead of the secretary of the treasury. It is said that the matter of the repayment was called to Mr. Murdock's attention by the claim of Virginia a few years ago to the fourth installment, still undistributed.

"The twenty-six states received the three installments in proportion to their representation in congress. The amount, remain here only for a day or two, as in round figures, deposited with them
