The Glidden tour is the premier automobile event of this country and Hastings may well feel gratified if it chances to be on the route. Several hundred cars will be entered.

Lewis Strang Wins Three of the Six Auto Contests. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 22.—With at least 50,000 people lining the course, the daring drivers in the automobile hill climb today made some startling records. Lewis Strang, the youngest member of the Buick team passed under the wire winner in the three events. His driving was casily the feature of the day. Speeding around the sharp curves the fearless men at the wheels did not slacken their speed and frequently their tires were on the very edge of the roadway, where a swerve of half an inch would have sent them to the bottom of deep ravines. ravines.

Strang's time was the best made, aside from Chevrolet, who made the four and nine-tenths miles in 6:30%.

This, however, was not official, as Chevrolet was disqualified, having met with an accident soon after the start. He went back and made an exhibition run over the course like a streak of lightning. George Dewitt went into the ditch at the "hairpin" curve and, though his machine was smashed, escaped with a few bruises.

Hearing in Suit to Dissolve the Hard Coal Trust

Defendants Seek to Prove that Advance is Due to Increased Cost of Production.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.-That the increase in the price of coal in the last nine years was caused by the greater cost of production and not because of ar agreement to raise prices was sought to be proved by the witnesses examined at today's hearing in the suit of the govfrom the drawback clause of the Payne ernment to dissolve the alleged coal trust. George F. Stevenson, a consulfing engineer from Scranton, when examined by Everett Warren, counsel for the Teniple Coal and Iron company, testified that the coal fields of Luzerne and Lackawanna counties will not be productive for more than fifty years and that if the capitalists are to get a fair return on their investments the cost of coal will ERROR IN BOTTLE FATAL John Blust's Death Due Probably to Mistaking Carbolic Acid Vial for Medicine Bottle.

Taking carbolic acid with the supposition that it was medicine, caused the death of John Blust, 68 years old, whose body was found in Keystone park, near Benson, Wednesday afternoon. The Jury convened by Coroner Heafey Thursday afternoon for the inquest did not reach a verdict of suicide and the evidence produced tended to show that although Blust may have been temporarily deranged from illness or other causes, the taking of the poison was probably accidental. He had several bottles of medicine which looked like the acid, and t is supposed that he accidentally took the latter instead of the former. The funeral was held today and the body taken to Stanton, Neb., for burial.
