Standard Cuts

Gasoline Price to Auto Dealers

Some of the Latter Are Storing the Oil in Anticipation of Heavy Traffic.

After many years of waiting the Standard Oil company has made automobile owners a present of a reduction in the price of gasoline, but some dealers have not considered it worth while to give their customers the benefit of it, even though they have sold them automobiles, according to H. E. Fredrickson.

The Standard Oil company has been getting 14 cents per gallon for several years, but some charitably inclined directors thought the increased demand ought to result in a reduction in the price and named 11 cents as the price of gasoline after a long and weary battle.

Automobile dealers have been selling gasoline at their garages for 20 cents, and when the reduction was made some of the dealers marked it down to 15 cents per gallon. This leaves them a profit of 4 cents, about 14 cents, however, is lost in shrinkage and evaporation, still leaving the dealers 34 cents profit, which they make on fuel to run their machines.

Dealers who get 20 cents per gallon for the gasoline are making a profit of 9 cents per gallon, as the Standard Oil company delivers it direct in fifty gallon lots for $5.50, and many automobile owners are putting in large storage tanks holding fifty to 100 gallons that they might secure the lower price of 11 cents per gallon on the fuel to run their machines.

DOCTORS WAR ON CANCER

Progress of the Struggle for a Curative Agent

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR VICTIMS

Harvard Medical Professor Claims Disease is Now Curable—Great Results Shown in Bay State Hospital.

Is cancer curable? The question was answered in the affirmative with the emphasis of confidence by Dr. J. G. Mumford in a recent lecture to the medical school of Harvard university. In support of his assertion the doctor detailed the remarkable progress which has been made in checking the inroads of the dreaded disease. Quoting in part from the Boston Herald's report of the lecture the doctor said:

"Progressive physicians have always believed and still believe that under proper circumstances cancer may be cured. Laymen have always believed and still believe that cancer is incurable—hopeless. The laymen are wrong. Twenty years ago cancers were not divided into curable and incurable, but were spoken of as operable and inoperable. By operable cancer we meant a cancer which could be cut out safely; by inoperable cancer we meant a cancer which could not be cut out without destroying life. Even those cancers which had been shown early and had not spread could be cured. Yet the shocking fact about cancer teaching in my student days was that most cancers were regarded as incurable. The early lip cancer, the cancer of the nose, the skin, the face, the tip of the finger and the toe could be cured, yet breast and stomach cancers were thought of as practically hopeless.

"Cancer was long ago found to spread by the lymph channels, and to invade the neighboring lymph glands. In such spreading one may conceive the cancer cells straggling out in various directions away from the central cancer, in a way suggesting the straggling roots of a plant. As it spreads there develops more slowly and regularly a circle of advancing cancer growth in all directions about the center, this circular following growth lagging far behind the tips of the spreading roots. It begins so small and obscure that it causes practically no inconvenience; in the later stage it becomes a general disease, involving and appearing in distant regions of the body.

"This last exuberant growth comes about because particles of the cancer work their way in the blood stream and are deposited far away. A cell from a cancer in the brain, for example, may be carried to the brain, so that the victim dies of secondary cancer of the brain. At the time that this fatal spread is going on, the blood itself becomes degenerated; it ceases to perform normally its nutritive functions; the patient becomes pale, then waxy and wasted, talking on that dreadfully sick and cadaverous look which most people associate with cancer. Remember that these general symptoms are late, final symptoms which occur when the patient has passed far beyond the possibility of cure. We must attack the cancer early, when the patient is well and strong, if we are to cure him. We can attack it early, and we can cure him. But the operation must be thorough and early.

Successful Operations.
"Dr. Halsted of Baltimore was the first surgeon in this country practically and effectively to demonstrate these facts. Convinced that a cancer of a great organ like the breast can be dealt with on the same principles as a small cancer of the lip, he succeeded in working out a method which in the last ten years has reduced enormously the death rate from breast cancer. Twenty-five years ago less than 10 per cent of the victims lived three years after the operation. Halsted's report last year shows that 42 per cent of his cases survived the three years' limit. That is to say, nearly half the patients were cured. The other 58 per cent not cured were immensely benefited; their lives were prolonged and their sufferings were relieved. Other surgeons, working on the same lines as Halsted, have had equally favorable results. One reports 53 per cent of cures, another 55 per cent, still another 59, and the astonishing figure of 80 per cent of cures of cancer of the breast. When other surgeons do not secure so high a percentage as these, it is because people, often poor and ignorant, postpone an operation until the favorable moment has nearly passed.

"Cancers of the tongue and jaws are among the most fearsome forms of cancer. They are not always recognized early; they progress rapidly and return promptly. Ten years ago, operations saved scarcely 2 per cent of the patients. Five years ago at the Massachusetts General hospital we have raised our percentage of cures from 2 to about 16 per cent, while later statistics collected from other sources show 40 per cent of cures.

Cancer of the Stomach.
"In cancer of the stomach, by the old-fashioned methods, none of the patients recovered. Six years ago we were able to collect statistics showing 10 per cent of the patients well after three years, while more recent statistics have shown 25, 30 and even 35 per cent cured after this lapse of time. As stomach cancer can rarely be determined by former methods until it is past the operative stage, surgeons have met this difficulty by the exploratory operation, which consists of examining the stomach through a small incision. The operation is far less grave than the operation for chronic appendicitis.

"Cancer is incurable only if you make it so by delay. It is readily curable if undertaken by a properly qualified surgeon. Patients come too late to the surgeon partly because they are ignorant. The early symptoms of cancer are trifling. A slight persistent sore on the tongue or lip; a painless lump in the breast; an occasional slight hemorrhage from one of the body's orifices; a slight persistent dyspepsia which does not yield to treatment—such are the symptoms of early cancer. These symptoms do not at once cause ill-health or exhaustion. They are seldom painful. Why then should the patient think them worth troubling about? It is because they do not disappear after a little care, but continue week after week and month after month. Such symptoms must not be neglected. Another important factor is the patient's age. Cancers rarely occur before the age of 35. They are not common before 40. Cancers in the young are more serious than in the old. Those of us who are in the middle period of life must not neglect apparently trifling, but persistent sores, swellings and bleedings.

Crusade Against the Disease.
"A common cause for the patient's delay in seeking advice is terror and false modesty. Then the patient dreads an operation. Although the operation on advanced cancer is a grievous and often a terrible ordeal, an operation on an early cancer is frequently trifling. Many will say, 'Oh, yes that's your business; you do the operating, and we are the ones who suffer.' Such a retort is unworthy of an educated person, and is ungenerous toward a humane and thoughtful surgeon. In these days of expert aseptic surgery, moreover, the old pains of operations have to a large extent been abolished. There is not more pain than can be controlled easily by drugs, and I feel justified in telling you earnestly and sincerely that the dread of an operation is often a grossly exaggerated dread. It should meanwhile be remembered that the number of physicians is small who are qualified to do this, and always to pronounce singly on the nature of a given tumor.

"Today the prevalence of cancer is keenly recognized, and the crusade for its extermination ranks second only to the crusade for the extermination of tuberculosis. Numerous commissions are investigating and agitating the matter; and we have a Harvard commission whose work has been widely recognized. As a result some things are reasonably certain. For some forms of malignant tumors certain individuals are immune; and such immunity is so widely distributed, so that many after being infected with cancer recover spontaneously. While the theory of the germ origin of cancer has not been proved, much light has been thrown on the nature of many forms of tumors. Let me here say that if experiments on animals were abolished by law, we should have to

TRAPS TO CATCH HOTEL MEN SELLING CUT RATE TICKETS

Practice Has Become Common Since Scolding is Outlawed, Says a Clerk.

"See that fellow that just went out the door?" said Clerk Bennett of the Her Grand, Saturday morning. "He wanted to buy a cut rate ticket to Denver. Of course we did not have any and would not have sold him one if we had.

"We have applications of this kind almost every day, and I suppose it is the same way at all the hotels.

"Since the ticket brokerage business has been knocked out parties are constantly trying to sell to or buy unused portions of railroad tickets of the hotels. Sometimes the cases are genuine, but the majority of them are put up jobs to catch the unwary hotel man by operators.
"One hotel clerk over in Des Moines got it put to him bad not long ago. He unwittingly took a ticket on deposit to sell, supposing that the man offering it was on the square. That afternoon another fellow came into the hotel and asked for just such a ticket, and the clerk, unaware of the law against ticket brokerage, sold the ticket to this party. The clerk was arrested the next day and had to put up a fine of $50."

WANT TO MAKE SOME MONEY?

Find Crack in Colpetzer House and Contractor Will Pay You Hundred Dollars.

Philip Kunz, builder of the Mosher Colpetzer residence at Thirty-eighth and Harvey streets, says he will pay $100 to any man who can find a crack in the brickwork of the new residence, which cost $20,000.

The report was circulated that the costly house had settled by reason of being built on filled ground and was in danger of toppling over. This, Mr. Kunz says, is entirely untrue, that the house has not settled one-sixteenth of an inch, that it shows absolutely no signs of "toppling over" and that it is just as well built and as stable as any building in Omaha.

A Bachelor's Reflections.
The easier a woman can fool a man the harder it is for him to find it out.

"It makes a man feel pretty rich to think what if he didn't have a family to support. The man who knows how to make good resolutions is the man who never knows how to keep them.

Next to being in society a woman can have the most joy buying the clothes she would need if she were.—New York Press.

Woman's True Friend

Experimenting with new and untried medicines is foolish, and often dangerous. It would take a medicine more than forty years, to prove itself so universally good as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. During all that time it has been woman's favorite medicine—a restorative tonic, uplifting and invigorating the nervous and discouraged and giving them the final touch of perfect health.

Women use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in preference to all other advocated medicines for it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs—is not anything like advertised, secret, or patent medicines—does not claim to be able to do impossible things.

THE ONE REMEDY for women devised by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in woman's ailments, and adapted to her delicate organism.

THE ONE REMEDY good enough that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper.

You can't afford to allow yourself to be over-persuaded into accepting any secret nostrum as a substitute for this honest square-deal non-secret medicine. Don't do it. No honest druggist will attempt to cheat you in this way. He who does should be rebuked and avoided. Doctors prescribe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for their worst cases because they know what it contains and know its ingredients to be of the very best.

It's well now and then to gently cleanse out bowel germs that breed weakness, cause foul breath, loss of appetite, dizziness and headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep bowels sweet and clean. Recommended by druggists because of their purity, goodness, and active gentleness.

Remedies Other Than the Knife.

"A few cloning words as to remedies other than the knife. The X-rays have been found to have a certain value, and splendid work in this field has been done in the great hospitals of Boston. The radium rays have apparently proved even more effective than the X-rays, but the radium method, because of the expense of radium, is not yet very practical. None of the other remedies brought forward, from the electric current to moleses, have as yet been found reliable.

"This contest with cancer is very far from being futile. We have seen the old apathy and despair disappear. Hope has been stimulated anew, for great numbers of persons are cured by means already at our disposal; and by such means an increasing proportion will be cured as the public and my own profession come to realize what has already been done. Bear in mind always that there is a time in the development of every cancer when that cancer is curable, and seize the favorable moment, which is the earliest possible moment, the outlook for the future grows increasingly brighter, and though the goal is not yet in sight the time is near when a true panacea for cancer will be found."

An Excusable Jump.

At this critical moment the Nyassa elephant raised its massive head and shrilly trumpeted.
The ex-president leaped fully seventeen feet and landed in a gook bush.
They ran to him from all sides.
"Were you frightened?" inquired the agitated head man.
"Frightened, nothing!" roared the terror of congress. "I thought it was an automobile."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Union Pacific Freight Agent Witness in Rate Case that is On Appeal.

Charley Lane, freight agent of the Union Pacific, returned Saturday morning from St. Louis, where he had been as an expert witness in the Southwestern rate case which is being tried on appeal from the finding of the Interstate Commerce commission, in the appellate court of Judge Sanborn. W. D. McHugh has charge of the litigation for the allied railroads.

The railroads increased rates on cattle 3 cents per 100 pounds from the southwest, including Denver, Cheyenne and east of the river. Shippers took the matter before the Interstate Commerce commission, where the rates were reduced practically to the former figures.
