NOW WATCH THE MILK MEN

Dr. Connell Wants Ordinance Requiring Single Service Bottles.

WILL SEND BILL TO CITY COUNCIL

Health Commissioner is Inspired by Action by Inquiry of Manufacturers Asking About Locating in Omaha.

When the smoke has lifted and the dead and wounded are carried off the battlefield, Dr. W. J. Connell, health commissioner, plans to start something. He will have introduced in the council an ordinance which will compel all milk dealers to use the new "single service" paper bottles.

Dr. Connell's interest in the matter has been aroused through the Commercial club, which referred to him a query from an eastern manufacturing company relative to locating a plant here for the manufacture of its hygienic, sterile paper milk bottles. The company has asked the Commercial club to supply it with the following items of information:

Population of territory in which city is the business center.
Number of milk bottles used daily.
Names of principal dealers of packages for various products, also names of a few leading milk dealers.

Names of persons interested in medical commissions or boards of health or municipal sanitation.
The idea is that the glass bottles which milk dealers use and reuse are less sanitary than the paper receptacles used once and thrown away. Also that the quart and pint measures which a milkman uses all day on his rounds is subject to reception of disease germs from every passing wave of dust.

The company which is concerned is called the Single Service Package company of America. Its headquarters is at New York and James Gayley, formerly vice president of the United States Steel corporation, is at its head.

Dr. Connell's enthusiasm for the project is limitless and he will urge an ordinance of the kind indicated with all his power.

NELSON TELLS HOW HE GOT INTO HOUSE TO ROB IT

Convinced Woman He Was a Stove Repairer and Then Pled His Craft.

Bluffing a neighbor into thinking he was not ransacking a man's house, by tending to a stove when the neighbor dropped into the house in which the burglar was working, is the latest item in the oral confession of Harry Nelson, the negro arrested Saturday night as a daylight prowler and bound over to the district court Monday. According to his account to the police, he was "twine thru" the home of George Grabe, 2439 South Fifteenth street, on the afternoon of April 27. The family was away, but when Nelson was in the midst of his operations a neighbor came to see Mrs. Grabe. But by ducking partly behind the kitchen stove to hide his features and prevent the woman from getting a description of him and by representing himself to be a stove repairer, he led the woman to believe that he had a right in the house, so she left him there.

Nelson secured only two old pocket books, a watch, a razor and a razor at the Grabe residence. His operations in Omaha are believed to have covered the rag weeks preceding his arrest. He confesses to several burglaries and is now held for trial in the district court.

Jim Wanted to Rope to the Last

Mayor Goes to Fire Engine House and Shows Boys How to Lariat Horses.

Mayor "Jim" wanted to die with his boots on, lariat in hand, if he died at all, and spent the last hour before the polls closed last evening throwing the rope.

About 5 o'clock Mayor Jim went to fire house No. 12, where they have some spirited animals which need exercise. He mounted a horse and Guy Gates, a fireman mounted another. The first swing of the lariat thrown from the mayor's hands caught Gates and almost dragged him from his mount.

Time and time again the mayor caught the horses, finally, dropping the rope over the heads of the running animals, demonstrating that his nerves were steady and his skill unshaken.

Unlike his friend, William J. Bryan, three times defeated for the presidency, Mayor Jim did not spend the anxious hours in his home sleeping, but after giving the wild west show at No. 12, went to the rooms of the Dahman Democracy and heard a crowd in front on Fifteenth street, cheering Dahman as the man who would put Ashton Shallenberger out of the governor's chair "next time."

ROBBERY FOR SILKY SMITH

Charge Probably Will Be Preferred Against Him by County Attorney.

The identification of Silky Smith as the man who tried to hold up Alfred Friedman in his place of business, 3106 Farnam street, March 11, leaves the case for the county attorney. Smith was arrested by the police Tuesday at a voting booth and has been identified by Friedman, his wife and Officer Plotts, all of whom saw the negro concerned in the attempted holdup. A complaint charging an attempt to rob probably will be filed against the man in police court Thursday.

DOCTOR'S REPUTE IS HIS ALL

Good Name Must Be Defended Urges State Medical Association.

PROBE CHARGES OF MALPRACTICE

J. L. Sundeen of Waboo Says Association Should Not Let a Member Rest Under False Charges.

"Medical-Legal Defense" was the subject of a brief address by J. L. Sundeen of Waboo, attorney for the Nebraska State Medical association, before the house of delegates Wednesday morning. The address was the result of a spirited discussion held at the 1908 meeting of the association, when Mr. Sundeen was asked to prepare a paper to be read at this meeting.

The trend of Mr. Sundeen's address was to commend the association in its determination to assist in the defense of malpractice charges against members of the association. He suggested the closest investigation of all such charges, first, to ascertain their truth or falsity and then to proceed accordingly.

"Reputable physicians of good standing constitute the best citizens of their respective communities," said he, "and no citizen, as a class, are more distinguished for their probity, integrity and intelligence than they. The reputation of a physician is his principal asset and to attack it through frivolous charges of inefficiency is a serious proposition, and it is a duty that the association owes to itself to defend its members against aspersions cast upon their professional reputation."

A standing vote of thanks was extended Mr. Sundeen for his address.

HAY FEVER AND RHEUMATISM.

It was "Hay Fever and Rheumatism" morning at the general session of the association Wednesday morning, over which Dr. C. F. Fall of Beatrice presided. The opening address was an elaborate paper upon "The Debt the Public Owes to the Medical Profession," by Rein K. Hartzell of Omaha.

"Hay Fever; Exciting Causes and Treatment" was the subject of a paper by Dr. W. R. Hobbs of Omaha. Dr. Hobbs took the stand that the principal exciting cause of hay fever was the inhalation of pollen from certain plants at certain seasons, by persons subject to asthmatic conditions. He advised the use of anti-toxins as remedial treatment.

Another cause of hay fever was the proximity of horses. Some subjects admitted to hay fever could not go near a stable but their ailment would be greatly aggravated.

Three papers were read during the forenoon in which various forms of rheumatism were discussed. Dr. Paul G. Woolley of Omaha took for his subject, "Etymology and Pathology of Rheumatism." Dr. Wilson O. Bridges discussed the "General Symptomatology and Diagnosis of Rheumatism." "Rheumatism in Children" was the subject of a paper by Dr. Frederick W. Lake of Omaha, and Dr. John M. Mayhew of Lincoln read a paper upon "Rheumatism and the Heart."

Several Luncheons Served.

Three separate luncheons were served the visitors at noon, one by the drugists' association of Omaha, and another by the members of the medical department of the University of Nebraska. These were served at the Rome.

Another luncheon was given certain of the members by University of Iowa, at Hanson's cafe, to graduate members of the Nebraska Medical association of the Iowa university. The luncheon was in fact the annual dinner of the Omaha resident graduates of the Iowa university.

A matinee party was given for the women during the afternoon. The remainder of Wednesday was devoted to a symposium on rheumatism and miscellaneous chronic diseases. Last evening, beginning at 7:30, "Diseases of Bone," was the subject on numerous papers.

Theater Party for Women.

The women physicians were given a theater party last evening and after 10 o'clock a smoker and refined vaudeville were given the gasconade members of the convention at the Rome.

The convention will close today with the election of officers. The morning session will be devoted to the reading and discussion of miscellaneous papers.

The women will be the guests of the local women's reception committee for a visit to the Linniger Art gallery, public library, Young Women's Christian association and other points of interest about the city. One of the important subjects to be discussed at Thursday's meeting will be the "Needs in Nebraska for Overcoming Tuberculosis." The discussion will be opened by Dr. R. H. Towns.

The annual meeting of the Nebraska Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will follow the tuberculosis conference.

Does Jonathan Bryan Forget David Dahlman?

Three years ago when James Charles Dahlman became mayor of Omaha for the first time, William Jennings Bryan was on the other side of the world. In the far-distant Orient and yet, over the bounding, boundless billows, or properly speaking under them, across two hemispheres, this joyous message flashed like a rapier of lightning from the Peerless Leader to the Cowboy Mayor:

"All Asia rejoices with you in your election."

Today Mr. Bryan is at Winnipeg, supposedly, and yet not a word of congratulation has been sent to his old college class and co-patriot.

Governor Shallenberger has sent him need of praise and other men who love Dahlman as well as a dog does a hickory have done so, but not a word from Jonathan Bryan to David Dahlman.

"Has Damon forgot Pythias?" Or does not the Dominion of Canada find in the reelection of Mayor Jim the same exquisite joy that all Asia found?

There is an inkling that Mr. Bryan and Mayor Jim are not as cozy as they once were. They didn't jibe during the recent legislature on matters of state. Not since Mr. Bryan found it convenient to drive that 8 o'clock closing bill through the legislature has their intimacy been as thick, so they say.

Country Club Fails to Secure Sixty-Acre Tract

Defeated in Purchase of Leased Ground by Its Transfer to Investment Company.

The transfer of a tract of sixty acres leased by the Omaha Country club from the Creighton Real Estate and Trust company to the Columbia Investment company is said to have defeated, for the time being at any rate, the hope of the Country club to buy in the property.

VALUE OF THE AESTHETIC

Beautiful Cuts His Figure in Commercial Life of City, Says Brogan.

F. A. Brogan espoke a more beautiful Omaha at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Omaha Real Estate exchange. The speaker, whose theme was "The Commercial Value of the Beautiful," pointed out that in choosing a city for a home more and more people are being influenced nowadays by aesthetic considerations; that while the great majority would continue to be governed on exclusively practical grounds, men such as district managers of departments, had a choice at hand, and so also people retired from active life. In the race between the sister cities of the middle west for supremacy physical attractiveness, he said, would play a highly important part.

Polite Society Lids Will Cover Heads of the Trade Excursionists to Iowa.

While cowboy hats won't go in Iowa, the trade excursionists who leave May 17, for a week's trip through the western part of the state, will wear white hats. The hats will be snow white, sort of polite society effect, turned down a little in front, just such fine white felt crushers are worn on outings or on the street. They will have red bands, distinguishing Omahans from Iowans in every town where the excursion stops.

JUDGE CRAWFORD THINKS POLICE SHOULD BE BIGGER

He is Moved to This Conclusion by Ed Morgan's Experience with a Drunk.

"We ought to have bigger policemen, or else give the small ones big stars," remarked Police Judge Crawford in court Wednesday morning. He was hearing the case of Bert Brown, 2622 Ohio street, who engaged in a wrestling match with Emergency Officer Ed Morgan and came out indignantly "kicked" Saturday afternoon, when Morgan attempted to arrest him on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

DUNN SEES A BOGEY MAN

Thinks Supreme Court Will Knock Out Ruling on Excise Board Designation.

Assistant City Attorney Dunn thinks the excitement is not all over. He expressed the opinion Wednesday morning that the supreme court may knock out the ruling whereby the republican and democratic candidates for the excise board were given the party designation on the ballot, which he said would seat the anti-saloon candidate. Judge Troup's decision to relegate the machines to the rear he admitted to be "technically correct."

All but Six Sign Waivers and Those Six Have Not Been Approached.

GOVERNOR JOKES THE MAYOR

Congratulate Him and Says They Must Have a Good After Eight O'clock.

"Congratulations, Omaha will democratic! Must have kept on voting for you after 8 o'clock." This is the telegram of congratulation Governor Shallenberger sent Mayor Dahlman when he learned the result of Tuesday's election. It tickled the mayor and he says that the governor ought to know how what Omaha thinks of the state's chief executive and his 8 o'clock closing bill when they elected the man who took the lead in "roasting" him.
