MORE BALLOON EXPERIMENTS

Destruction of Gas Bag at Jackson Far from Discouraging.

HAPPENED ONCE IN ITALY

Colonel Glassford Says Explosion Was Unusual, and Other Balloons Are Coming to Continue Work at Signal School.

The destruction of the United States signal service balloon No. 12, at Jackson, Monday evening, after the successful flight of Captain Chandler and Lieutenant Ware, will occasion only a temporary suspension in the balloon experiment work at Fort Omaha. Another balloon is now enroute from Fort Myer, Va., for Fort Omaha, and the balloon experiments will be resumed at an early date.

The accident to the Chandler and Ware balloon Monday evening, is the first of its kind happening in the United States, and could only happen when the balloon is near the earth. The fall of the aeronauts was for only a very short distance, and none of the delicate instruments were injured.

"An accident of a similar character happened in Italy a few years ago," said Colonel Glassford, commandant at Fort Omaha, "with much more disastrous results, but with no fatalities, as I remember. While such an accident is unusual, it is likely to occur under like circumstances as prevailed with the Fort Omaha balloon. The ascension of Captain Chandler and Lieutenant Ware was a complete success, and the destruction of the balloon was simply an unpreventable incident."

While the hydrogen gas generating plant at Fort Omaha is in excellent working order, the big gas tank is not working satisfactorily and has not yet been accepted from the manufacturers. The gas with which balloon No. 12, was inflated Monday, was forced into the balloon directly from the gas generators in the hydrogen plant room. It requires from twenty-four to thirty hours to inflate as large a balloon as No. 12.

Captain Chandler and Lieutenant Ware succeeded in making a number of photographs while in their balloon flight Monday, all of which will be reproduced for a record of their trip, and many of which will be furnished the press for publication.

THREE GRAIN COMPANY SUITS AGAINST ROADS WEDNESDAY

United States Circuit Court Will Hear Action to Compel Union Pacific to Pay Elevation Charges.

The suits of the Updike Grain company for $6,742.16, the Nebraska & Iowa Grain company for $2,509.74 and the Crowell Lumber and Grain company for $698.29 for earned elevation charges against the Union Pacific Railroad company will be brought up for trial in the United States circuit court Wednesday morning.

The suits are brought on the basis of the order of the Interstate Commerce commission at its hearing in this matter in 1908 granting these respective allowances for elevation charges on the same basis that similar allowances were granted by the Union Pacific without contest to the Omaha Elevator company and the Transmississippi and other grain companies. The complaint against the railroad company by the plaintiffs were those of discrimination against them for the benefit of favored grain companies. The Interstate commission order was that the elevation allowance should be paid the plaintiffs by March 1, 1909.

The Union Pacific Railroad company has resisted the payment of these elevation allowances to the plaintiffs and hence the suits to compel the railroad company to obey the order of the Interstate Commerce commission.

Earling Does Everything but Talk in Omaha

President of Milwaukee Might Be Termed "Strenuous" as Well as "The Silent."

"Yes, we built the coast extension during the hard times and we built it on time and for that we are proud of ourselves," said E. J. Earling, president of the Milwaukee, who arrived in Omaha Tuesday afternoon, looked over the city, attended an informal banquet at the Omaha club and left at 10:40 for Kansas City.

Accompanying Mr. Earling were W. J. Underwood, general manager of the Milwaukee at Chicago, E. W. McKenna, second vice president in charge of operation; E. Lass engineer of maintenance of way, and W. F. Foster, superintendent of the Iowa lines. The party was traveling in Mr. Earling's private car which was attached to the regular Milwaukee train.

On alighting from the train the party took occasion to inspect the new Union Pacific dining car which was made from top to bottom in the Union Pacific shops at Omaha. They all pronounced it a marvel of beauty and construction and Mr. McKenna wondered that some of the finer work was done in Omaha.

"We will soon be doing business on that coast line," said Mr. Earling. "In fact, we have already sent the first material car all the way through, but it will be some time before we are ready for passenger business and then we will be right after some of the through business from Puget Sound."

Mr. Earling said he had acquired the title of "Earling the silent," and for that reason did not like to talk about any future plans of his road.

F. A. Nash, general western agent of the Milwaukee met the party at the station and in the evening tendered them an informal banquet at the Omaha club. The other guests were A. L. Mohler, vice president and general manager of the Union Pacific; E. P. Beck, W. H. Bucholz, E. M. Morsman, Luther Drake, F. S. Cowgill, G. W. Wattles and Eugene Duval.

WOOL VALUES TEND UPWARD

New Wyoming in Original Bags Quoted at Twenty-Three to Twenty-Five Cents.

BOSTON, Mass., May 11.—Local wool values still tend upward, in keeping with the advance in London and the west. Dealings in the Boston market are confined to territory, but the conditions in the west are closely followed. Fairly heavy receipts of Nevada, Utah, Arizona and Wyoming wools have filled up local bins, which for weeks have been empty of old stock. New Wyoming in original bags is held at 23 to 25 cents, while Utah is quoted at 19 and 22 cents, in the grease.

Clements, carrier, Maggie M. Clements, substitute; route 3, Glenn Marstiller, carrier; William H. Marstiller, substitute.

Treasury Statement.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Today's statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve, shows: Gold coin and bullion, $43,465,885; gold certificates, $38,875,910; available cash balance, $120,080,650.

BOYLES IN PRISON GARB

Whitla Kidnapers Are Hustled at Once to Penitentiary.

FORKER STORY IS DISCREDITED

Indications Statement of Boyle Implicating Boy's Uncle in Abduction Will Be Dropped, as Clearly Untrue.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 11.—After the exciting and wearing incidents of yesterday, Mrs. James Boyle had a good night's rest in the Western penitentiary last night and awoke today much refreshed. She is in good spirits and has regained much of her old-time vivacity. Her arrival at the penitentiary last night was after the hour for retiring and she was given only a night dress, while all her other clothing and ornaments were taken from her. She awoke this morning to find only the prison garb in her cell.

Marching in line with the other prisoners, Mrs. Boyle smiled as she went to her first prison breakfast and ate heartily. She was given permission by the matron to make cushions and other fancy work for cell and materials were promised her if she cared to do so. It will be determined today after a physical examination what character of work she will be given. Probably she will be placed either in the kitchen or in the sewing room.

Boyle slept well last night also. He ate heartily for breakfast and submitted gracefully to the barber, who cropped his hair closely. Bertillion photographs and measurements of the pair will be made today.

From all reports that have been received here it is not believed any action will be taken following the statement of Boyle last night. The Mercer county officials discredit the statement and the whole matter probably will be allowed to drop and be forgotten.

Tornado Victim Takes Her Life

Mrs. McKernahan of Bellevue Sets Fire to Clothing and House, Her Injuries Proving Fatal.

Mrs. Margaret McKernahan of Bellevue, who was a tornado victim just a year ago and was mentally deranged by her physical injuries and the loss of her home, attempted suicide Monday by setting fire to her clothes. She died of her burns Tuesday morning after suffering agony for hours.

First Mrs. McKernahan's home was wrecked by the terrific clycone that struck the college and town of Bellevue on May 12 of last year. While running from the flying debris she was then struck in the head and was at first reported dead. Although she survived, her reason was greatly impaired by the trouble and she had been closely cared for since that time by her children, a son of 22 years and a daughter of 16.

Recently Mrs. McKernahan had been living with her daughter, the son being away from home. While the daughter was out of the house Monday afternoon Mrs. McKernahan went out into the road and set her clothing ablaze. Before she could be reached and saved she was frightfully burned and the efforts of Dr. Betts were unavailing to prevent her death.

kindling the memories dimmed by age.

Each member of the following committees are doing all they can to assist in making this encampment and reunion the most pleasant and enjoyable:

G. A. R. Local Committee—E. Reisinger, Commander John Lett, Chairman, H. W. Alberts, R. E. Cutler, M. Robbins and H. M. Deitrick.

Members of the Commercial Club Committee—E. B. Woods, president, A. B. Christian, B. F. Marshal, jr., and C. A. McCloud.

The York Commercial club rooms are open at all hours and hundreds will be entertained by members of the York Commercial club, who are taking an active interest in making every visitor welcome. Many noted Grand Army men, orators and musicians will participate, and nearly every hour, from today until May 13, there will be something doing.

ROW OVER ABDUL'S MONEY

Schefket Pasha at Outs with the Ministry About Disposition of Funds.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 11.—A difference of opinion has arisen between Schefket Pasha, commander of the constitutionalist army that entered Constantinople April 24, and the present cabinet.

Schefkat Pasha is of the opinion that the cash found in the imperial palace of Yildiz after the expulsion of Abdul Hamid should be used to pay the expenses of his army, while the ministers want the money turned into the national treasury. The funds in question now amount to almost $8,000,000 in cash and in marketable securities. Schefkat Pasha has one advantage in the controversy, inasmuch as the money is in the possession of the military and has been deposited in the War office.

A medical commission, with a large quantity of medical supplies for the relief of the suffering, left here today for Adana.

Djeved Bey, former governor general of the Adana villayet, arrived here with the object of explaining to the minister of the interior the origin and cause of the race conflicts in his territory. Djeved Bey has been dismissed from office.

Improvement at Adana.

ADANA, Asiatic Turkey, May 11.—The local authorities have ordered a house to house search with the object of recovering and restoring the loot taken from Armenians during the recent disorders.

The American missionary relief committee announces it has on hand enough nurses to care for the present number of sick and wounded.

The local mills have resumed grinding and the importation of flour is no longer necessary.

Lost Prince is Found in Ohio

Archduke Johann Salvator of Austria, Who Disappeared Nineteen Years Ago, Common Laborer.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Journal today devotes its entire front page to the elaboration of an unequivocal statement that it has discovered "the lost John Orth," otherwise Archduke Johann Salvator of Austria, prince of the house of Hapsburg, who disappeared nineteen years ago after marrying Ludmilli Stubel, an opera singer. Briefly sketched, the Journal story says:

"John Orth" was discovered at Painesville, O., working as a machinist at $15 per week. Previously he had followed this occupation at Grand Rapids, Mich., and Cleveland, O. His reason for making his identity known at this time, the Journal states, was due to his advancing age and his desire that he might be buried in Austria.

Johann Salvator, as the alleged archduke has always been known since he left the court at Vienna, was married in London and he and his wife afterwards sailed for South America in the Santa Marguerita, a schooner which he had chartered. It has always been believed that the archduke lost his life when the schooner sank off the coast of Chili. According to the story of the Painesville machinist, he and his beautiful wife were not aboard the ship. They went ashore at Cusavana, a small port on the Rio De La Plata. It was planned that they should meet the ship at Valparaiso, but the craft sank enroute.

The romantic couple drifted all over the world, finally taking up a plantation on the island of Martinique. In the Mount Pelee catastrophe his wife and their two children were killed. Salvator, according to the journal story, was rescued and came to the United States.

Veterans Return Confederate Flags

Ohio Representatives and Delegation of Old Soldiers on Way to South.

CINCINNATI, O., May 11.—Nine veterans of the civil war, two of them official representatives of the state of Ohio, left last night for Selma, Ala., to return with proper ceremony the confederate flags captured by the Fourth Ohio cavalry on the battlefield near that town. Those in the party were Chairman John A. Pitts of this city and Major W. W. Shoemaker of Dayton, O., appointed by the last legislature to arrange for the return of the colors and the following volunteer commissioners: Captain Thomas H. Osborn, M. H. Richardson, W. H. Hendy, James I. Quinton and L. C. Drangamp of this city; Joseph A. Goddard of Muncie, Ind., and T. C. Lindsay of Dayton, O.

The flags belonged to the rifle scouts which were a part of General Forrest's command.

DEATH RECORD

Captain James Murray.

FREMONT, Neb., May 11.—Captain James Murray, a resident of this county for forty years and at one time prominent in democratic circles, died at his home in this city yesterday of general debility at the age of 77. He was a native of Milwaukee, Wis., and previous to his removal to Nebraska a school teacher. He served during the civil war as captain in a Wisconsin infantry regiment for three years and was for two terms a member of the Wisconsin legislature. He came to Nebraska about forty years ago and later served two terms as county judge of Dodge county. He was a charter member and past commander of McPherson post of the Grand Army and a very active member of St. Patrick's church. He leaves one son, Mark Murray of Pender and three daughters.

Wilson Reynolds.

FREMONT, Neb., May 11.—(Special.)—Wilson Reynolds, one of the best known citizens of this city for the last fifty years, died last evening at the age of 83. He has enjoyed good health and the full possession of his mental powers until within a few days of his death. A native of New York state, he came to Fremont in 1857 and invested quite extensively in land. A strong anti-slavery man, he allied himself with the republican party at its organization and took an active part in the party management. He is survived by two sons, B. W. Reynolds and Cassius Reynolds of this city.

Captain Jackson Kirkman.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Captain Jackson Kirkman, formerly a Mississippi editor, and well known confederate veteran, died at a hospital here today. He was one of the officers known in the south as "the immortal 600," who, as prisoners of war were placed under the confederate fire on an island near Charleston by the union army as a measure of retaliation.

Peter Eagle.

KEARNEY, Neb., May 11.—(Special.)—P. Eagle, a prosperous farmer living four miles north of town, dropped dead Sunday morning. He started coughing and seemed to be choking. He called for help, but before he could reach the bottom of the stairs he expired. Deceased was 57 years old. He leaves two sisters and three brothers, having never been married. The funeral was Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Jane Milligan.

BEATRICE, Neb., May 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Jane Milligan, aged 60 years, an old resident of Wymore, committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid. She was found in an unconscious condition and a physician was summoned, but he was unable to revive her. She leaves a family of seven children. Ill health is assigned as the cause.

Alfred A. Pecock.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 11.—Alfred A. Pecock, proprietor and manager of the Ryan hotel, died here last night, aged 62 years.

Will of F. Marion Crawford.

SORRENTO, May 11.—The will of F. Marion Crawford, the American novelist, who died here April 9, expresses the desire that his yacht and the villa Saint Agnello be sold and that the testators body lie buried in the Saint Agnello cemetery.

Cut in Crude Oil.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—Another cut of 5 cents a barrel in all grades of crude oil was announced here today by the Standard Oil company. This makes the second reduction in the price within a week.

CHANGES AT FIELD CLUB

Many Betterments Are Made for Season of 1909.

COURSE IS NOW MORE DIFFICULT

Nine New Bunkers Put In Will Render Battle with Bogey Still More Uneven for Some Golfers to Negotiate.

When the members of the Omaha Field club visit that popular outdoor club for the first time at the opening Saturday, they will see many changes and all for the better. The general outside appearance of the grounds around the club house is changed almost beyond recognition.

The first noticeable change is that the unsightly carriage and automobile stalls have been removed and where once stood that ungainly structure is now grass and flower beds. The caddy house has been moved into the north tract, nearer the tee of the first hole and is connected with the club house by a telephone. This will keep the crowd of caddies away from the club house and will make much more room.

Instead of the crowded dancing pavilion the members will find a pavilion greatly enlarged, in fact nearly double in size. This has been accomplished by lengthening the pavilion, and building a stand for the orchestra in the middle of the north side of the pavilion. The kitchen and dining room space has been doubled by the changes.

While the putting and fairgreens are verdant they are showing a want of rain, and Watson, the golf expert, has a large force of men repairing the water pipes all over the grounds, the pipes having bursted at the joints because of freezing. New flower beds and gravel walks have been laid out and a place provided for automobiles under the dancing pavilion.

The golf course has been improved and made a little more difficult by the addition of nine new bunkers. Five of these bunkers are placed around the fifteenth hole and in front of No. 5 are three bunkers, with one at the side of No. 6.

Hole No. 15 is known as the "dog-leg" hole, and is what is known as "enecheion." Three bunkers are placed in series. The player with the short drive may cross the first bunker at 105 yards, but he will not be in a direct line for the hole. A second bunker is at 125 yards, a little nearer in a straight line, and for the man with the long drive the third bunker is placed at 145 yards in a direct line between the tee and green, thus giving the long driver the advantage.

All the bunkers have been changed from the old straight up and down bunker to a bunker sodded at an angle of 45 degrees. The long bunker along the side of the course to No. 18 has been sodded.

JUDGE CRACKS A LAWYER

Estelle Comes Back at Burbank in the Phelps Case with Keen Retort.

Judge Estelle overruled a motion Tuesday morning to dismiss Frank Phelps' answer to his wife's suit for divorce because Phelps has not, it is charged, paid temporary allmony to Mrs. Phelps.

R. G. Burbank, representing Mrs. Phelps, was displeased by the ruling and told the court that "you are assuming responsibility for this poor woman being without means."

"I'll assume all the responsibility involved," declared the court dryly.

To have thrown out Phelps' answer, the court had said, "would make the case a default one, a kind of legal procedure against which there is nowadays the greatest prejudice among all thinking lawyers and judges, and it is held that in every sort of suit where one side is not represented a state officer ought to be appointed to appear. So that if this motion should be sustained I would permit the defendant to come in and be heard when the cause comes to action."

TURK SUES HIS ASSAILANT

Rudolph Merovitz's Suit Against John Achatz Continued in Federal Court for Two Weeks.

The $5,000 damage case of Rudolf Merovitz against John Achatz for personal injuries received by the plaintiff in an assault made upon him by the defendant in the latter's rooming house on North Sixteenth street last winter has been continued in the United States circuit court for two weeks. The case was set for trial Tuesday morning. It gets into the federal courts on the question of diverse citizenship. Merovitz, being a subject of the sultan of Turkey. Merovitz received a bad cut in the hand during the alleged assault from a knife, the wound developing into a permanent injury.

SCARLET FEVER IS NOT EPIDEMIC, SAYS PHYSICIAN

Rumor of Scourge Denied by Health Commissioner and Other Doctors.

Rumors of a scarlet fever epidemic in Omaha are entirely unfounded, according to Health Commissioner R. W. Connell and other physicians.

Park school was dismissed Monday noon to allow health officers to fumigate the building as a precautionary measure. Special care is being exercised by parents and teachers to prevent the spread of the disease.

Claude Arness, 13 years of age, died of scarlet fever Monday at his home, 2813 Woolworth avenue. The case was a severe one, according to the attending physician, who has another case of the disease in the same neighborhood. Because of the lad's death, the Park school authorities took the precautionary steps.

Another death, possibly not due directly to the fever, but following a recovery from it and supposedly due to the health and condition of the child after having a severe attack, was that of Charles N. Johnson, 7 years of age, who lived at 223 North Twenty-sixth street. His death occurred Monday and the funeral is to take place Wednesday afternoon. There are three other children sick with scarlet fever in the Johnson home.

Southern Baptists to Meet.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—To raise more than their share of $1,400,000,000 for the evangelization of all the heathen and to increase the endowment of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary at Louisville $1,000,000, are some of the projects which will engage the convention of the Baptists of the south, whose biennial convention begins in Louisville with a banquet tonight. Some of the most notable men in the south will be present.
