MANY INDICTMENTS ARE IN

Twenty-Two True Bills from Grand Jury After Week's Work.

BEN SLOAN HELD FOR MURDER

Memorial Day to Be Observed by the City Generally, and by Public Offices and the Banks, on Monday.

The district court grand jury after a week's session reported twenty-two indictments Saturday afternoon, and then adjourned for the term. Of the twenty-two indictments returned only thirteen were made public last night as the defendants named in the others are not in custody.

One indictment is against Ben Sloan, the young man charged with being responsible for the death of James Wallace, the young Northwestern passenger train on the evening of Saturday, May 22, near Crescent City. The indictment charges murder, it being alleged that Sloan did, deliberately, and with premeditation and malice aforethought, push and throw said Wallace off said train and thereby fracturing his skull and inflicting serious injuries. In consequence of which said Wallace died. Sloan is held without bonds by order of Judge Wheeler. Jack Pratt, who was arrested with Sloan, but was found not to be implicated in the death of Wallace, is being held as a witness.

The other indictments made public are against the following: Charles M. Sanford on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Sanford is alleged to have shot at and wounded Claude B. Gano, early on the morning of April 15, as Gano was on his way to his work. Sanford's bond was fixed by the court at $1500.

George Thompson and William Henry on the charge of murder. Thompson is alleged to have shot and killed William Henry on the street railway company with the stolen goods in their possession. Their bonds were fixed at $200 each.

Edward C. Thompson on the charge of larceny from a building. He is alleged to have stolen goods valued at $22 from the store of Madson Bros. in Bentley, where he was employed on May 25. His bond was placed at $500.

Charles White on the charge of larceny from the person. White is accused of stealing $4 from Joe Sontich, a railroad section hand, while Sontich was asleep in the Rock Island depot at Underwood. The money was found under a sidewalk in Underwood, where White told the officers he had hid it. His bond was fixed at $500.

Robert Shields on the charge of resisting an officer. Shields is the negro who got in a mixup with Patrol Officer W. J. Miller on May 3 after the officer had placed him under arrest for disturbing the peace. His bond was placed at $200.

Leon Picotte and Henry T. Hott, two joint indictments against each on the charge of breaking and entering Northwestern freight cars on April 15. They are accused of looting cars in a train of which Picotte was conductor and Hott brakeman between Missouri Valley and Council Bluffs. Their bonds were fixed at $1000 each on each count. Both are out on bail.

Harford Reed, three indictments on the charge of embezzlement by bailor. Reed is accused in one indictment of the theft of harness belonging to W. H. Plummer, in the second of the theft of a horse belonging to H. E. Plummer and in the third of the theft of a horse, the property of C. C. Taylor. Reed is a horse trainer and is alleged to have sold the animals which were placed with him to be trained. His bond was placed at $500 under each indictment.

John O'Neil on the charge of making threats to extort. O'Neil is accused of representing himself as an inspector at the Union Pacific transfer yards and to have extorted $5 from L. Lafadri under threats of delaying Lafadri's shipment of stock and household goods. His bond was placed at $500.

R. D. Edwards on the charge of larceny from a building. Edwards is charged with stealing a quantity of harness from the barn of Frohman Brothers at 612 South Main street on the night of April 19. His bond was fixed at $300.

The grand jury returned "no bills" in the cases of John Sheffield, charged with keeping a gambling house and Charles Adams, the negro who built a fire in an empty car in the local yards of the Burlington railroad and was nearly smothered to death.

SWEDISH BAPTISTS ANTI-MULCT

Go on Record Against the Law and Will Be Active Work.

Following an address by Rev. W. C. Barber of Des Moines, superintendent of the Iowa Anti-Mulct league, the Iowa Swedish Baptist conference, at its session Saturday morning, adopted a resolution endorsing the plan of the league to secure the repeal of the existing mulct law by the next legislature.

The conference pledged its support and cooperation of the churches it represents in procuring the election of members of the legislature who will vote to repeal this law. The conference also took a stand as opposing the plan of carrying on a campaign for resubmission of the prohibitory amendment, believing that the end could be better obtained by the repeal of the mulct law.

The conference will close with the session this evening.

MUSTACHE AID TO WHITE FLAG

State Lecturer Keptford Shaves Off Own Adornment as Unsanitary and Advises Others to Do Same.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, May 30.—(Special.)—Indications are that there will be more aspirants for republican congressional nominations at the next contest than ever before in the history of the state. This will undoubtedly be true if congress doesn't soon adjourn and allow congressmen can return to repair their faces. The latest aspirant for congressional honors appears as an opponent to Walter I. Smith the standpatter whose position in congress has been said to be impregnable. His opponent is Senator Bruce of Cass county. It has long been said that Smith is in line for the speakership of the lower house of congress. If Bruce pushes his fight it will be an interesting one. Smith claims the distinction of having always been nominated for office in conventions without a dissenting vote. In the primary fight he may not be so fortunate.

Down in Hepburn's old district there are innumerable candidates for the republican nomination of both standpatters and progressives. It is very likely that each faction will hold a conference and decide upon some representative to enter the primary. Should all who aspire to the nomination enter it would be a serious problem as to what the outcome would be. There is the regular biennial talk of opposition to Hull in the seventh district, but as yet the opposition has not ventured enough to name a man for the contest.

OF with the Mustache.
Another radical reform to prevent the transmission of tuberculosis germs has been started by E. A. Keptford, state lecturer, against the white plague. It is the abolition of mustaches. To show he is in earnest Mr. Keptford has shaved from his own upper lip a magnificent mustache of which he was proud. But beards and the like, he says, are woeful transmitters of disease germs. They are not sanitary. He has set the example and he will ask every man in Iowa to adopt the smooth face style—not for appearance sake, but for the sake of the good health of the community.

Several years ago Dr. Kennedy, when secretary of the State Board of Health, created considerable comment by advocating the abolition of beards among the physicians. He contended that in these beard doctors carried disease germs from sick rooms to healthy communities. Now Mr. Keptford has conceded the argument is good. He will advocate smooth shaves as the greatest sanitary condition.

New Board in Charge.
The new educational board having charge of the three educational institutions is now in charge. The first step taken is to continue in force all policies and methods until they are substituted with new ones. Immediately consideration will be given to the best ways of doing business, and it is expected that a number of changes will be made. At present the secretaries at the state institutions are retained. At the first meeting here the large board will probably make an outline of general policies. It is expected the three members of the financial committee which is to have charge of the actual operation of the schools, will soon be at the head of the city. Of this W. R. Boyd of Cedar Rapids is chairman. It is expected the new board will take quarters on the assembly floor of the state house, probably occupying either the lieutenant governor's rooms or the speakers' rooms. The former were occupied two years ago by the special insurance commission.

SYMPOSIUM ON BLACK PLAGUE
Superintendent of Iowa Institutions to Discuss Question.
(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, May 30.—(Special.)—"The Black Plague" and the Inroads it is making in Iowa will be the chief matter for discussion at the quarterly conference of the superintendents of state institutions under the Board of Control to be held here June 22.

The Black Plague and its influence in the production of blindness will be discussed by Prof. L. W. Dean of the State University of Iowa. He is a specialist on eye diseases and makes the inspection of the inmates of state institutions for the State Board of Control.

The relation of the plague to women's diseases will be discussed by Dr. Anne Burnett of the State Hospital for the Insane, located at Mount Pleasant. Dr. William L. Allen of Davenport will discuss the plague as a causative factor in diseases coming under the observation of the general practitioner and surgeon.

Information as to the ravages on sight, mind and general physical condition worked by the plague, which is said to be increasing in America at a rapid rate.

The question as to whether Anamosa is really a reformatory or not will be discussed by Chairman Felix H. Pickworth of that institution. In this discussion he will tell of the methods used at Anamosa in the treatment of lawbreakers.

For the benefit of the superintendents of the state institutions, who seek to make their buildings more attractive, the surroundings to be as possible, Wesley Greene, secretary of the State Horticultural society, will deliver an address on "What Fruits to Plant for Profit." At several of the general practitioner fruit trees are raised for profit, as well as to beautify the grounds. It is expected that during the summer a number of orchards will be planted at all of the institutions and his talk is designed to aid in the matter of selection of fruits.

COFFIN NAILS BARRED BY GARY

Denson Contractor Refuses to Employ Men Who Smoke Cigarettes.

BOONE, Ia., May 30.—(Special.)—Contractor Gary of Denson, one of the biggest contractors in the west, has taken a firm stand against the use of cigarettes, and in his thousands of dollars worth of contracting which he is to do in this city this summer nary a cigarette fiend will be employed.

When Gary came to Boone he got busy securing the best help possible, and at Fourth and Linn streets he erected a big tool house for the paving gangs. Posted in a conspicuous place in the tool house is a large sign which reads something like this:

"If You Smoke Cigarettes
Don't Ask for Work."
This sign has been seen by all of the employees of the contractor and during working hours and even at noon time when the men eat their meals the smoking cigarette is not in evidence. Mr. Gary figures that if his men spend their time in rolling pills, borrowing matches, etc., he will lose out in the long run, so forbids the use of pills while in his employ.

News from Peru.

The work was under the direction of Dr. H. C. House, assisted by Prof. Cornell and a number of soloists from out of town. The cantata, "The Rose Maiden," by F. H. Cowan, was the production. The chorus was not only large, but showed a wonderful training in every way. The solo work was especially fine, affording a rare treat to lovers of real music. The solo work was by Miss Lillian Dobbs Helms was especially pleasing. Miss Edna Larsson, the contralto, was a decided success, while Mr. Cord Aller, with his rich baritone voice, did excellent work.

PRESIDENT IN PITTSBURG

Chief Executive is Guest of Associated Yale Clubs and City.

VISITS THE BASE BALL PARK

Address at Banquet of Sons of Eli in the Evening—Visits the Base Ball Park with Brother Charles.

PITTSBURG, May 30.—Away from the cares of state at Washington, away from the tariff and the task of filling federal offices, President Taft thoroughly enjoyed himself Saturday through fifteen hours of play and continuing excitement. He made four speeches at as many different places, rode many miles by automobile and special trains, played pitcher in a game of ball at the Allegheny Country club in the early afternoon and then, returning to town, as through the eleven innings of the contest between the Pittsburgh and Chicago teams of the National league. The president assisted at the dedication of a fountain in Arsenal park, attended a business meeting of the Associated Yale clubs, had luncheon at Sewickley Heights, fourteen miles out of the city, and tonight was the principal speaker at the brilliant banquet which brought to a close the annual sessions of the Western Yale clubs.

Pittsburg's welcome to the president was a continuous ovation. Wherever he went he was met by crowds of cheering thousands. The streets through which he passed were fairly blocked with humanity. After the ball game, while the president's automobile was threading its way through Sixth street, there was at one time a seemingly impassable human barrier across the thoroughfare. The police, however, were a way, however, and the president's car passed safely through. The president, during the early part of the day, was the guest of the city and the state. Later he was turned over to the Yale men. He left the sons of Old Eli at play at the Country club while he journeyed back to the city to witness the professional game of base ball.

President at Ball Game.
The ball game was a departure from the original program, which caused some disappointment to the Yale men, but which apparently brought joy to the 15,000 Pittsburg "fans" gathered on the grandstand bleachers and overflowing into the playing field. Private boxes in the upper part of the big stand were tendered the president, but he chose to sit in the main body of the grandstand surrounded by a perfect jam of Pittsburg "rooters." On either side of the president were Secretary of State Knox, a staunch supporter of the Pittsburg team, and Charles P. Taft, principal owner of the Chicago "Cubs." Consequently the chief executive was torn by conflicting emotions. He wanted both teams to win and was happy when the score was a tie, which it was from the seventh to the eleventh inning, when a whole flock of "bears" crossed the plate and broke up an exciting game, by a score of 8 to 3. President Hadley of Yale also sat with the president. Captain Archibald Butt, military aide to the president, was in the party and nearby to explain the fine points of the game in minute detail, was President Charles W. Murphy of the Chicago club. Secretary Knox and the president's brother had great fun in wagering as to the outcome of the contest and appealed in turn for the president's support. "No, sir," replied the president, "I insist upon maintaining a judicial attitude on this matter."

In Pittsburg's half of the "lucky seventh" the president set the crowd cheering by standing "for luck" with the rest of the great crowd. All through the game there were calls for cheers for the president and they were given in great waves of sound which echoed back from the high hills overlooking the park. The president's assistance to the Pittsburg "rooters" in the seventh resulted in the local team tying the score. With the score still tied at the end of the eighth the president exclaimed: "I hope it goes beyond the ninth; then we will get more for our money."

It was suggested to the president that if he remained for the finish of the contest he would be late for the banquet tonight. He replied that he could get a dinner "most any old time," but seldom could see a better game of base ball.

Pittsburg's College Game.
The president made his debut on the diamond at the Allegheny Country club where, following luncheon at the residence of H. R. Rea, he held a reception and mingled with the Yale men, who were the guests of the club for the afternoon. Two teams of resident and visiting Yale Alumni were matched in a ball game and the president pitched the first two balls for the visitors.

In the parlance of the game he had "little or no speed and utter lack of control," but was taken out of the box before much damage was done. As a matter of fact, the two balls which the president threw at the batsman hit the home base and reached the catcher on the first bounce.

"First bounce used to be out," the president protested, but he was unceremoniously relegated to the side lines.

The day of the president's visit was one of blue skies and brilliant sun. The afternoon grew intensely warm and the president, before going to the country, changed from the formal dress of the morning to a sack suit and straw hat. Secretary Knox's wardrobe was not so convenient and he wore his top silk hat until he reached the Country club, where, under the pretext of having his picture taken with the president in the same sort of headgear worn by Mr. Taft, he borrowed a Panama hat from a friend and positively refused to return until the day was done.
