

CROWELLS TO MOVE HERE

Big Blair Firm Will Erect Plant in Omaha. GRAIN AND DAIRY TRADE GROWS

Crowell's Coming Promises an Additional Elevator to the Market Town and Creameries Must Put Up More Buildings.

General enlargement of the grain and the creamery business in Omaha is shown by plans of the Crowell Grain and Lumber company to move to Omaha the headquarters, which have been maintained at Blair, and the additional rooms the Fairmont Creamery company will erect on its plant at Twelfth and Jones streets.

The Crowell company already has one of the large terminal elevators in Omaha, and grain dealers say the increase of business following the firm's removal to Omaha will mean another terminal elevator.

Crowell, Jr. intends moving his family to Omaha from Blair. The company now maintains an office in the Brandeis building and Mr. Crowell is on the market daily, but the headquarters of the company have been maintained at Blair.

This promises an additional elevator; the Nebraska Hay and Grain company sold the elevator operated by the firm recently to an entirely new company and has bought the old feed and flour mill on Hamilton street and Belt line, which will be remodeled for an elevator. Omaha thus gets a new grain company and a feed mill which becomes a terminal elevator.

So rapid has been Omaha's growth as a butter market that the Fairmont Creamery company demands more room and will expand, having bought additional real estate to the extent of $15,000 on which to build.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce commission, which so strongly commended the centralizers of the creamery industry, has had a stimulating effect. Attacks of the Department of Agriculture and the railroad at the same time, went for nothing, and the more favorable railroad rates granted from interior points to the centralizing plants, has brought to Omaha a flood of cream so deep the creameries can scarcely come to the surface.

The 15,000,000 pounds of butter made in Omaha may reach 20,000,000 pounds this year if the creameries can increase their capacity in time to handle the raw material.

CHILD SAVING FUND IS O. K.

Board of Trustees Assumes Balance and Joslyn Approves His Offer of $25,000.

The board of trustees of the Child Saving Institute has agreed to assume the balance needed to complete the building fund of $75,000 and George A. Joslyn has expressed himself as satisfied with this arrangement and will allow his conditional subscription of $25,000 to stand. In assuming this balance the board of trustees is in reality presuming that the amount needed will ultimately be subscribed by those who have intended to do something for the fund, but who have, for some reason or another, delayed in sending in their subscription.

The amount assumed by the board is $23,410. The traveling men's committee has now raised $182.86 and Chairman V. G. Lindgren of the committee said Tuesday morning that he thought his committee would be able to collect $1,000, but it would take a little time to round it up, because of the late start the committee had.

The traveling men's committee collected $99.60 Monday and the money is still coming in.
