man frequently arrested here. Edwards states that he assisted in aresting Downer and Fred-Torgensen at Everett last October, and found in their grips nitro-glycerine, fuse, caps and a complete safe-blowing outfit. Torgensen is now with Woods in the Omaha jail.

Detective Alexander McDonald has left for Omaha, where he may complete the identification.

"I don't care to say who I may be or who I know," answered W. D. Woods, one evidence, Mrs. Hennings declared August of the hold-up suspects Wednesday noon, when asked if he were really Dan Downer, the notorious police character of Spokane and vicinity. He had been asked if he knew Chester

Edwards of Spokane, and why he did not admit he was Downer. As Woods replied his characteristic eye twinkle and faint smile showed, and he tried to divert the conversation to his dinner. "This is fine turkey you're feeding us." he said to the deputy sheriff who brought him a tin plate containing his food, a cup of black coffee and a large tin spoon with viands. "Sure," replied the deputy, grinning

"That turkey was raised on the left flank of an antique pack mule." Nevertheleus, Woods, Torgensen and

They were confined in separate cells, Woods and Torgensen in solliary waiting cells adjacent to the jailer's office and Gordon in the general cell with a number of other prisoners. All seemed remarkably cheerful for men in their plight.
