

RE-FORMING THE REFORMERS

New Leaders in the Field at Work on Prohibition Forces.

POLITICIANS AND NOT PREACHERS

Conference at York in July to See First Steps Taken to Consolidate Prohibition Forces into One Political Machine.

Prohibition forces of Nebraska are still militant, but at the present time are divided as to methods. One faction insists that when the workers go from the world to politics, they must go in as politicians.

According to inside information Frank A. Harrison of Lincoln, Pawnee City, Panama and other resorts, is a politician per se, and sees no success ahead of the Anti-Saloon league unless it is organized on political lines.

W. C. T. U. Holds Back.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union objects to being made a tail to a political kite and insists that the work can still be carried on along religious and moral lines.

Rev. J. B. Carnes, who has been state superintendent for Nebraska for the Anti-Saloon league, is to go to Ohio to assume charge of a campaign district there.

Rumor has it that a handsome increase in salary accompanies the change.

THE LOCAL ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

A conference has been called to meet at York on July 8, when representatives from all the prohibition elements of the state will attend.

Fellman States Object.

"The conference at York, July 8," says Rev. B. F. Fellman, "is to lay plans for a statewide campaign to elect a legislature favoring a county option law.

The overwhelming majority of temperance men and women in the state favor a county option law as the next step in the enforcement of a prohibitory amendment.

"I have been informed of the resignation of State Superintendent Carnes of the Nebraska Anti-Saloon league. He goes to take charge of a district in Ohio in the same work."

Good, honest proprietary medicines like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound succeed, and the homes of the masses are thronged with them.

FINE MANUAL SCHOOL WORK

First Industrial Exhibit at High School is Distinct Success.

PATRONS THROUGH THE CORRIDORS

Large Variety of Samples of Boys' and Girls' Skill Displayed—Young Women Are Good Cooks.

Remarkable examples in wood carving and iron modeling, beautiful copies of masterpieces in oil and water color paintings and delicious foods and dishes were shown at the first industrial exhibit of the Omaha High school at the school Tuesday.

The corridors and the rooms in which the exhibits were shown were thronged most of the day with interested patrons of the school, and if those who visited the exhibit had the power to order a new building would soon be erected for the housing of the departments of manual training.

The exhibits of the manual training department proper took up the most room and brought forward more expressions of surprise and delight, though the other industrial departments were not slighted by the visitors.

Some Exhibits. In this department were shown examples of wood, inlaid work in checker boards, card tables, cribbage boards, dumbbells, clocks, library tables, Indian clubs, torse bells and almost every conceivable article of small dimension that could be made of wood.

Buncombe, Says

Hall, None of Your Business, Congdon

Water Works Lawyer Says Board Member Went East to See Daughter Graduate.

"Buncombe" is the word used by Richard S. Hall, resident attorney for the Omaha Water company, in saying what he thinks about the talk of compromise with his company put forth by members of the Omaha Water board.

"There is nothing in this compromise talk," said Mr. Hall. "It is all buncombe, I tell you; just buncombe and nothing more."

"Why, why should we think of compromising now after we have spent years in litigation and thousands of dollars in court costs for the general public to be let in the east; you can put two and two together and draw your own conclusions. I will not say any more."

Yes, it is quite probable that President Woodbury will come out here one of these days; he will visit the plant, but he will not come to talk compromise. He has nothing to compromise.

Isaac E. Congdon, one of the emissaries selected by the board to go to Boston to treat with the officers of the water company, declined to be interviewed and said that when everything is ready and in shape for the general public to be let in he will write out a statement for publication.

"I will tell you a story instead," said Mr. Congdon. "A certain woman in this town heard that her neighbor, a widow, was to marry a prominent man and so she went to her neighbor and said: 'Mrs. So-and-so, tell me that you are going to marry a Mr. So-and-so. Is that right?'"

The public be damned.

William Fleming Will Go West to Be New Pioneer

After Forty-Five Years' Residence in Omaha He Will Move to Oregon.

Forty-five years ago William Fleming came to the frontier of the Missouri and now he is preparing to go to the frontier of the Pacific. He came directly from Scotland with his parents and has resided in Omaha continuously since.

"It seems like a long time to live in a city and then pack up and leave," says Mr. Fleming, "but my son is at Salem, Ore., and I don't know why I shouldn't go there, too. And maybe I shall venture up into the northwest further and take up some land."

Mr. Fleming was in the mercantile business for many years in Omaha. Then during the silver craze he drifted into politics. He had been a republican, but, like many others, went over to the democratic party with the monetary wave that swept across the country in the '90s.

Mr. Fleming has been a member of the high school faculty for many years. She has resigned and to her is dedicated the last number of The Register, the high school paper.

POOR AGGIE, HE'S ONLY A PROSPEROUS PLANTER NOW

Erstwhile Leader of Filipino Insurgents Has Settled Down to Peace and Plenty.

Herbert Cook has arrived in Omaha from the Philippines, where he has been employed in the government civil service for the last three or four years. He has been assigned to duty at Department of the Missouri headquarters in the adjutant general's department.

"Conditions in the Philippines are improving slowly, and there still lingers a hope among the islanders of ultimate independence," said Mr. Cook, "and for this reason there is a tendency to lethargy in business matters. The progressive classes are all in favor of the continuance of the American occupation."

"There is less political agitation among the reactionaries in the islands now than for some years. Aguinaldo has settled down to the life of a prosperous planter. Very little is heard of him. He comes into Manila occasionally, but little or no attention is given to his sayings or comings. He has ceased to be an important factor there, politically or otherwise."

"An interesting feature connected with the Philippines is the zeal with which they take to the American systems of education. They learn rapidly and are anxious to learn. Of course there are classes among them that will not try to learn, preferring to continue as savages and bushmen."

The local conditions about Manila and all the towns and provinces occupied by the American forces have wonderfully improved and there is a remarkable scarcity of sickness, considering the climatic conditions and the general unsanitariness of the natives."

PRISONER DRAWS DISTINCTION

Fine Point Raised by D. C. Schroder May Be "Nice" for Jury When Time Comes.

"I did not steal 'em; I just took 'em," declared D. C. Schroder, arrested by a deputy sheriff on a burglary charge, coming from Grand Island, Schroder, who drew this fine distinction came into possession of a pair of chains from a store in Grand Island in such circumstances that the warrant for burglary followed. Moreover Schroder has no ambition to be a cowboy; he presumably wanted the chains for what they might bring.
