

The "Arnold" Knit Umbrella Drawers

(Basket Stitch)
These garments have the following qualifications:

First—Are cut in such liberal proportions that they will not bind, draw or gap and will always maintain their shape.
Second—The mesh or stitch is so open and porous that in the hottest weather they are sure to be cool and extremely comfortable, and none of that clinging, sticky feeling so disagreeable and annoying.
Third—The tie string is so arranged that there can be no gathering or puckering in the back and pressure under the corset.

Fourth—The new stitch is so interlocking and strong that the garment will outwear all others and give splendid satisfaction.

Thompson & Aldrich
Rec. 6-17-09.

These were immeasurably more accurate. Mr. Brown replied that he knew of no men he thought more of individually and less of collectively than the members of the finance committee. He did not accept their conclusions as a body on the cost of paper production.

Tillman on Newspapers.

"These very papers that are asking for free paper," said Mr. Tillman, "are the very headlines of protection, and they deny me the opportunity to buy this cost, or these shoes," illustrating by pointing to the articles of his attire, "yet they want free paper."

Looking about the senate with a deep scowl, Mr. Tillman brought his foot down on the velvet carpet with resounding effect as he added:

"They are hunches."

Then he took his seat. Senator Bailey was also heard briefly. In a facetious manner he suggested that an amendment should be drawn giving the benefit of free paper to free trade papers and leaving a duty on paper used by protective tariff journals.

Mr. Brown still held the floor when the senate adjourned earlier than usual, to permit a democratic caucus. He will resume consideration of his amendment for free paper tomorrow.

Immediately upon taking up the tariff bill today the senate agreed to the amendments previously offered by Mr. Aldrich for the committee on finance, relating to flint, glazed and other surface-coated papers and calendars, cigar bands, etc., composed of lithograph paper.

The duty on writing and typewriting paper, etc., as recommended by the committee provoked a dispute between Senators Bristow and Smoot as to whether it raised or lowered the rates of the Dingley law. The Utah senator contended that it lowered and the Kansan that it increased the duty. An amendment was offered by Mr. Bristow lowering from 3 to 2 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem the duty on this class of paper. The amendment was rejected, 27 to 35.

SHARP CONTEST IN THE HOUSE

Tennessee is Curious About Foreign Cost of Production.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—A sharp contest developed in the house today over the motion of Representative Hull of Tennessee to call upon the state department for information gathered through diplomatic channels in regard to wages and cost of production in foreign countries, except Germany. Mr. Payne read a letter from Assistant Secretary Wilson stating that the department had no information which exactly met the request of the resolution.

Mr. Hull then offered amendments to make it clear that he desired the reports transmitted to the ways and means committee. Mr. Payne opposed the request, saying that all members of the house were privileged to inspect the reports on the same conditions as those imposed on the committee—that of keeping them confidential.

Some of the consular agents, Mr. Payne said, stated that the information was received under a pledge to regard such information as confidential.

"If we ever expect to show our face to the world and ask for further information, we had better observe this condition," said Mr. Payne.

Mr. Hull moved the previous question on his amendments and resolution and Mr. Payne moved to lay the entire matter on the table.

Finally Mr. Payne's motion was held to be in order and a vote was ordered, resulting 112 yeas and 70 nays. A point of no quorum was made by Mr. Hull, whereupon Mr. Payne moved to adjourn until Monday and another roll call was ordered. The motion prevailed and the house adjourned.

EVIDENCE OF A FORGERY

Stenographer's Testimony Tends to Implicate Brandenburg.

HOW ARTICLE WAS PREPARED

Accused Man Remarked, After It Was Finished, that It Was "Cleveland's Style"—Other Features of the Case.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Broughton Brandenburg showed little concern today as the state continued its attempt to prove that the article sold to the New York Times for $50 as Grover Cleveland's and widely published over the country was a forgery, and to prove that Brandenburg knew it when he sold the article. When court adjourned for the day he was chatting freely with spectators and apparently did not regard as damaging the testimony adduced. Late this afternoon the state began to introduce witnesses to identify the typewriter on which the article is said to have been written and the stenographer to whom it was dictated; then the typewritten sheets of the article itself and their correspondence with the published text. By this testimony the prosecution hopes to prove that the article was dictated in part from notes and part written in longhand by Brandenburg and passed over by him to the stenographer to transcribe on August 18, 1908, more than a month after Grover Cleveland died.

Miss Lillian Bacon, who said she took Brandenburg's dictation of part of the article in question, told how Brandenburg looked over the sheets at her table when they were done, and said: "It is good salable stuff," adding that it was Cleveland's style, or something like that.

Times Editor on Stand.
Charles M. Lincoln, Sunday editor of the New York Times, was recalled as the first witness. Mr. Lincoln stated that he had twice sent a reporter to F. S. Hastings, one of the executors under Mr. Cleveland's will, to ascertain if the article was genuine. Two letters which the witness said the reporter had from Mr. Hastings were admitted in evidence.

Mr. Lincoln adhered under cross-examination to his positive identification of the article as the one Brandenburg had given him. He had cut off the signature and preserved it after sending the article to the composing room, he testified.

The witness said he had not relied on Brandenburg's representations as to the genuineness of the article, his reliance being placed solely on the statements made by Mr. Hastings. Brandenburg had told him when the article was first presented that it and the signature were genuine and he had never called its authenticity in question to Brandenburg's attention, he declared.

Mr. Lincoln said the original article had been returned to Brandenburg after its publication; that Brandenburg had objected to the signature having been cut off, and that he informed the defendant that the signature would not be given up because the genuineness of the article had been questioned.

The witness said that he had no recollection of Brandenburg saying anything about intending to sell the article to the republican national committee, but stated that that committee had called the office on the telephone and asked permission to use the article and credit it to the Times.

Brandenburg Wanted Signature.
After Mr. Lincoln had stated on re-direct examination that Brandenburg had told him he needed the signature for his own protection, Mr. Lincoln was excused, and the prosecution began to read Brandenburg's testimony before the grand jury, which indicted him. In this testimony Brandenburg stated that he had typewritten the article himself.

"Who signed it?" was the question. "Mr. Cleveland," was the answer the

REUNION AT FORT KEARNEY

Meeting to Lay Plans for Creating a National Park.

BIG TIME AT THE OLD SITE

General Carrington, Last Commander in Charge; W. F. Cody, Bryan, Governor and Others Will Speak.

The Fort Kearney National Park association reunion will be held on the site of old Fort Kearney, in Kearney county Nebraska, June 23-25. The purpose of the reunion is to stimulate an interest in the restoration of the old fort and to establish, if possible, a national park on the old reservation.

The old Fort Kearney, was established over sixty years ago, and up to the time of its abandonment in 1892, was one of the most historic points in the northwest territory, and around it centers much of the earliest history of Nebraska. It was the headquarters for the field of operations against the Mormons in 1846-47 and was also one of the main stopping and outfitting points for emigrants to Oregon, and during the days of the gold rush to California, and later to Pike's Peak.

Carrington Last in Charge.
The last troops garrisoning the old fort was a battalion of the Eleventh United States Infantry, with Brigadier General H. B. Carrington, as the last commander of the post in 1892. The completion of the Union Pacific along the north side of the Platte river, rendered the continuance of a military garrison there unnecessary, and the old fort went out of existence. Repeated efforts have been made by the Nebraska Historical society to preserve the old fort and reservation for sentimental reasons, and the forthcoming reunion is the first organized attempt in that line.

The present officers of the Fort Kearney National Park association are: John Maxon of Minden, president; M. A. Hoover of Kearney, secretary; C. W. Norton of Kearney, treasurer; and J. R. Larimer of Kearney, quartermaster.

The site of the old fort is on the south side of the Platte river about five miles east of Kearney. About four miles west of the site was the unique village called Doby Town, one of the relay stage stations in the days of the Butterfield Overland Stage line. Not a vestige of the old town is left and little is also left of the old fort, merely a part of the stockade and remains of the old buildings.

The reunion program, which will cover four days, will include the address of welcome by Judge F. G. Hamer of Kearney, with a response by General H. B. Carrington and addresses by Rev. G. W. Abbott on the first day, beginning at 1 p. m.

Colonel W. F. Cody will be the principal speaker on the second day, to be followed by addresses appropriate to the occasion by Colonel Tom Majors of Peru, Sam S. Gibson of Omaha, W. R. Raper of Pawnee City, Colonel Frank Eager of Lincoln and A. V. Cole of Juniata.

On the third day addresses will be made by Senator Charles E. Johnson, Mr. Charles O. Norton of Kearney, Joel Hull of Minden, Robert Greer of Kearney, Major William Hayward of Nebraska City, Mrs. Mary Morgan of Alma, Mrs. C. E. Adams of Superior, R. R. Randall of Lincoln, W. J. Bryan, Mrs. C. M. Peters of Omaha, Mrs. E. M. Patton of McCook, General Patrick M. Barry of Greeley and Governor Shallenberger.

The speakers on the fourth day will be Colonel David Topham of Kearney, William Knages of Hastings, Curt Shelton, Mrs. Stewart Kearney, Mrs. C. H. Bennett of Alexandria, and others.

Most of these addresses will be reminiscent, interspersed with the program will be appropriate music, camp fires, review of the Nebraska National guard by Governor Shallenberger and staff and camp fires.

Fests will be provided at the camp grounds for all who wish to come out.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Judge Holt in the United States circuit court today reserved decision on an application of Oliver Spitzer, former dock superintendent of the American Sugar Refining company, and of the company's former checkers for a postponement of trial of the seven men charged with falsifying weighing of sugar for today.
