Berryman Scores Park Board for Dry Fountains

"It's a Downright Shame After Mrs. Carter's Gift," He Tells Dr. Hipple.

"After all Mrs. Salina C. Carter has done for this city, giving us the magnificent Levi Carter park among other magnificent gifts, I think it is a downright shame that the Water board cannot do something to get water in the drinking fountains this good woman gave to the city of Omaha."

Cigar Girl Tells the Truth About the "Fresh Guys"

Those Cholly Boys Who Think Ten Cents Buys Them License for Her Company.

The good looking cigar girl was mad. She was more than mad. She was boiling over. She had dug up the hatchet and was putting on her war paint with a vengeance.

"It makes me so darn mad," said the good looking one aforesaid, "every time I think of it I get more angry. Just because I have to stand here and sell cigars for a living every fresh guy in the country who spends 10 cents thinks he has a license to ask me to go to a theater, to dinner with him, or something like that."

"Say," she demanded, "do these Cholly boys think I was just born? They must think I just happened. They make me tired. I suppose they think that all my life I have been sitting around on a road-stool somewhere just waiting for them to smile and make me happy."

"Ask me to go to dinner with them!" Here she glanced at the observant friend as though he were personally responsible for the whole thing.

"Say, do I look like I needed something to eat? Don't I look as though I were used to at least one meal a week? Do you suppose I would never get to a theater unless some fresh drummer bought me a ticket?"

Presently she cooled off somewhat. "I know all men are not like these fellows I am talking about. I have been here long enough to know something about human nature. I have them all classified; the only trouble is that every day I have to make some new classes. Of course, there are men who attend to their own business, but they are not the kind who get fresh the minute they see a girl."

"Well, good-bye, here comes a customer. Just stick around within a block or two and if he gets gay you will know it, for I am not going to stand any more of this foolishness."

BLAKEFIELD DEATH ACCIDENT CORONER'S JURY DECIDES

Adds Nothing as in Suicide—Whisky Bottle is Found Near the Body.

John Brakefield, who was fatally injured by a switch engine and died without explaining how he was run over where his home and relatives are, has not yet been lifted completely out of the uncertainty that surrounds the case.

Coroner Heafey's jury at the inquest Thursday morning partially explained the case in their verdict, which was as follows: "We, the jury, find that John Brakefield came to his death by accidentally being run over by switch engine No. 350 and coach No. 17 of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, by lying on the track one and one-half blocks north of Nicholas street, at 11 p. m. Tuesday, June 15, and that he died at the Omaha General hospital Wednesday morning."

It took over forty minutes for the six men of the jury to frame up the verdict to suit their views and the evidence that had been introduced. When it had been signed by Foreman Joseph Teton and the other five jurors, there was still much unrecorded that had definite bearing on the case.

The name as given in the verdict and other coroner's papers was wrong, for according to the man's own signature before he was run over, his name was Brakefield, not Brakefield.

Several witnesses testified that when Brakefield was picked up after being run over, the smell of whisky was strong on his breath and more whisky, in an unopened flask, was found within a few feet of the body on the railroad right-of-way.

The body is still at the morgue awaiting positive identification and the instruction of friends or relatives. Several persons have called to view it.

Brakefield was about five feet, nine or ten inches in height, of medium weight, of rather muscular build and had a slightly brown or yellow complexion, resembling in face a foreigner, with heavy black hair and brown eyes. He was about 23 years of age.

Brakefield is known to have worked a short time at Atkinson, Neb., for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road. He cashed a check for $5.00, the wages he received there, in Omaha a few days ago. He also bought some clothing at the Palace furnishing goods store.
