CREIGHTON GIVES DEGREES

Eleven Students Get Bachelor and One Master of Arts.

JUDGE FAWCETT TALKS TO CLASS

Your Evils of the Day Are Fadism, Fashion, Office Seeking and the Lust for Gold, Says the Judge.

Creighton university closed the school year Thursday with its twenty-first annual commencement in the college of science and arts at the university auditorium, Twenty-fifth and California streets.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred on eleven young men, the degree of Master of Arts was given to one graduate of the school, and teachers' certificates were presented to ten of the seniors. Amos Henley was honored with the master of arts degree. Eugene A. Byrne, John T. Byrne, Edward Cahill, Hugh P. Gillespie, Joseph J. Gillespie, John J. Jamieson, Lewis A. Kennedy, Cornelius Lalley, Thomas W. Lannigan, Thomas S. McShane and Cornelius Peacock were granted the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

For the highest scholarship Hugh J. Gillespie was awarded a gold medal. Thomas S. McShane was given second honors for his scholastic attainment. Hugh J. Gillespie also received the gold medal for the best essay written during the year by a senior.

Thomas W. Lannigan of Greeley was presented with a gold medal for the best work in oratory. Thomas S. McShane was given second honors for the best work in this line.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Judge Jacob Fawcett of Omaha. Judge Fawcett confined his remarks to giving the eleven young men of the senior class a warning as to what troubles awaited them in the business world.

Dangers of Today.

He warned them to beware of four god-fadism, fashion, office seeking and graft. He declared fads had a firm hold on the American people now and thought the young men could do a great deal to tear the educated classes away from this "god."

"Fashion," Judge Fawcett declared, "is a tinsel god; it will not bear inspection. If you touch it, it shrinks away."

In office seeking the judge asserted that hundreds of Americans are sacrificing their business to petty politics without receiving any gain. He said it was no longer an honor to attain to a political office.

"The time has come when many of the public offices of the country are filled with men who have grafted their way into them."

The fourth "god" which he held up as a warning he termed the "twin god of gold and graft." This deity he believed did more harm to the men who became wealthy than it did to any of the people who had to give way to permit these men to amass wealth.

Members of Class Speak.

Before Judge Fawcett spoke two orations were delivered by members of the graduating class. Cornelius J. Peacock spoke on "Law and Individualism." While Mr. Peacock was delivering his oration the electric lights in the auditorium went out, owing to a breakdown in the engine room of the lighting plant. It was fully forty minutes before the plant was put in operation again. Mr. Peacock concluded his oration in the dark, but candles were placed on the stage before the program was continued.

The second oration was given by Thomas McShane, valedictorian of the class. The subject of it was "Responsibilities of Educated Men."

The exercises of the evening were witnessed by an audience that packed the lower floor of the auditorium and left unfilled only a few seats in the balcony. Music was furnished by the Creighton university orchestra.

SACRED HEART HIGH SCHOOL

Seven Girls Get Diplomas from the Parish Institution.

The seniors of Sacred Heart high school received diplomas from the hand of Rev. P. J. Judge Thursday at the Sacred Heart parish hall, Twenty-second and Binney streets. Margaret Doran, Mary Gallory, Mary Goll, Josephine Clarke, Catherine Reynolds and Ruth Gentlemen were the graduates.

A short biblical cantata, "Mary of Bethany" was given by a small cast. Ruth Gentlemen took the part of Mary. Margaret acted as Martha and Josephine Clarke assumed the role of Lazarus. A short address was given by Rev. P. J. Judge.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Commencement Exercises of St. Agnes' School Last Evening.

JOAN OF ARC TO BE PRESENTED

Eighth Grade Pupils Will Present Drama, with Musical Numbers Between the Scenes—Magic City Gospel.

The various parochial schools of South Omaha will have their annual commencement this week. St. Agnes' school, with a class of twenty-two, gave its entertainment last evening. The program consists of musical numbers and an ambitious production of the drama Joan of Arc by the pupils of the eighth grade.

Introducing the program will be a grand march, the "Class of 1909," by the orchestra. A short welcome and greeting will follow. Then the "Grand Caprice Honorable," composed by Ketterer, will be rendered by Miss F. Collins and H. Brunnan. The first scene of the drama, "The Forest of Vosges," will be presented next. Following this, the orchestra will render an interlude, followed by the "Valse Impromptu" of Bachmann, by Misses G. McAulay and E. Cunningham. Scene second of the drama, "Royal Residence," follows. During the intermission the "fan fair" by Bohm, will be rendered by Miss A. Burgdorf and Miss L. Kelly. After the coronation scene of the play, Miss A. Smith and Miss B. Lichnowsky will render the "Gallop Brillante," of Sponholtz. Scene IV is "The English Camp." At the close, Miss A. Donahoe and Miss K. Margret will render the "Grand Valse Brillante" of Burgmuller. The fifth scene of the drama is the "Council Chamber of Rouen." The orchestra follows. The program closes with the last scene of the drama, "The Execution." Following this, the diplomas will be presented by Rev. Father James Ahern.

The drama will be presented by the following members of the eighth grade: Joan of Arc, the Maid of Orleans.....Miss Mildred McCrann
Charles, daughter of France (afterwards king).....Miss Rose Hannan
Isabelle, mother of Charles.....Miss Mary Conboy
Lady Agnes, the king's foster sister.....Earl Edmund, French king's cousin.....Miss Margaret Loye

The Bohemian Catholic school will present its first class Sunday at 2 p. m. by appropriate exercises at Stank's hall. This school was organized last summer and classes were formed with an enrollment of about 220 pupils at the usual time for the season's opening. The school has proved successful in every way.

Boxing at Shamrock Club.

The Shamrock Athletic association gave another exhibition at the club rooms last night. The entire evening was given over to boxing, from three rounds up to the amateur limit. The first bout was scheduled for four rounds between Murphy and Sweeney of Indian Hill. In the third round it was apparent that Sweeney was not in condition to fight another round, so the last round was omitted. He had not been in practice long enough to keep his wind.

The second bout was between Dodo and Kelly of the featherweight class. It was a series of astonishing windmills and pawlings in the air. Occasionally there were symptoms of science.

The principal match was between Talbot of Omaha and Brosnihan of South Omaha. The fight was declared a draw at the beginning, as no finish fighting is permitted. This bout was a good illustration of modern fighting. Over half the time was spent in clinches and in exchanging short jabs. Honors were practically even. Although Brosnihan forced the fight all the time, he was able to make little impression on the Omaha boy, who finished as well as he began. Brosnihan also finished strong and seemed capable of ten rounds more. The South Omaha Owls have announced a long program at the Ancient Order of United Workers temple June 24.

Examination of Teachers.

The Board of Examiners for teachers' certificates of South Omaha announced an examination to be held three days beginning Monday, June 21. Candidates for this examination should file their preliminary papers with the city superintendent proving their eligibility to be given a certificate. Among the requirements are a minimum age of 19, graduation from a four-year high school, and either a year's normal training or a year of successful experience in teaching.

Stock Yards Teams Play Ball.

A base ball game is to be pulled off Friday, June 18, between the Hog Yards and the Sheep Barn teams of the Union Stock yards. The game will start at 2:30 p. m., and everybody admitted free of charge. On account of the rivalry existing between these two teams, and the fact that there is a side bet of $500, the prospects are that the attendance will be large. The "Hogs" and the "Sheep" have played two games this season, each taking a game, and this is the game for blood, and both sides are confident. George Brewer will have his ambulance on the grounds throughout the game to take care of the boys who meet with misfortune.

G. S. Kennedy, of the Union Stock Yards Base Ball team is anxious to schedule Sunday games both in or out of the city. The team has won a majority of its games and will put up a good class of amateur ball on any field. Kennedy has a few games scheduled, but can accommodate many more. He says he hopes none of the organizations of the Inter-City league are afraid of an encounter with his team. The boys have no objection to going out of town Sunday afternoon.

Magie City Gossip.

Samuel Macdonald is taking a vacation at Colorado Springs.

Jetter's Gold Top Beer delivered to any part of the city. Telephone No. 8.

Dan Ringer of Grand Island is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Hunter.

Mrs. L. M. Lerd entertained the Magie City King's daughters yesterday afternoon. Clarence Bartlett and Miss Pearl Karstens were married Wednesday by Rev. R. L. Wheeler.

Olde and ends in boys' long pant suits, worth up to $4.50, sale price, $3.50. Nebraska Shoe & Clothing House, corner Twenty-fifth and N. streets, South Omaha.

George Schuler expects to leave for Tokamah, where he will spend a few days on his farm.

A golf game is announced between the Council Bluffs bankers and the South Omaha team at the club grounds Sunday afternoon.
