Gleanings from the Story Teller's Pack

Powerful.

Judge Underhill, said E. D. Browne of the engineering department of the Southern Pacific, "was perhaps one of the greatest characters that ever entered the service of a railroad. It was the facile disposition that led to his being appointed right-of-way agent by the Southern Pacific."

"Underhill was all things to all men. The ribald called him a reckless blunderer, the learned called him one of the elect, and the good churchgoer declared that the pulpit would have had one of its brightest ornaments if he had only heard the call."

"He was the most successful right-of-way getter that the company ever had, perhaps, with the exception of my friend, J. L. Buel, who can charm a bird off a bough with his eloquence."

"Underhill was sent up against a tough proposition. There was a farmer whose land lay right in the path of the road, and he was coy about selling. Underhill was sent to see him. They were out driving when the farmer turned to Underhill and said:

"I want to do the right thing, Judge. I have prayed all night for guidance in this matter and I have not been given light."

"We will pray for light right now," said Underhill, and getting on his knees he made a fervent prayer for the farmer to sell his land to the Southern Pacific.

"Awestruck, the farmer listened on his knees to the powerful invocation of the Judge, and when Underhill resumed his seat in the buggy he said:

"I have been given light, Judge. I'll sell the land at the figure you name."—San Francisco Call.

Gets Married and a Good Job.

Governor Hadley told the other day how he happened to select Henry Andrus for penitentiary warden:

"One day Henry and I were out sleigh riding, an old negro driving. We passed the penitentiary and the mansion provided for the warden. I asked Henry if he ever had thought of being warden. He said he didn't know that he had.

"Well, do you think you could fill the bill?" I asked.

"Yes," replied Henry, "I could."

"But, I said, "there is one vital objection to your appointment."

"Henry looked somewhat puzzled over to the warden's mansion.

"You're not married, Henry? I reminded him.

"Ho! Is that the objection?" he asked.

"Just then the old darky drove over a rough place and the sleigh turned over. We were dumped out in the deep snow. I got up sputtering snow, but Henry disregarded the accident altogether. He cause his defeat. As the convention was adjourning I called one of my negro friends and asked him why his men voted against Judge Spencer.

"Why, Senatah," the negro replied, "most of de dull delegates are babbahs and watahs. Dey don't have nothin' agin Judge Spencer—he's a fine man, he is—but you know dat Doctah Tubbs. He's de author of de anti-'tippin' bill. He's de man we was after, an' he had to vote agin de Judge to git de doctah."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Talking of Race Suicide.

Reflection on race suicide caused Zell Hopkins of Junction City to recall the remark made by a woman at whose home a number of people took supper one night, in the political campaign last fall, down in Sumner county. This particular woman, though young in years, is the mother of seven children. Naturally, the children are reasonably close to one size. When the "campaigners" went into the woman's house one of them noticed the bunch of children, and said to the woman in a friendly way: "These all yours, or is this a picnic?"

"They are all mine," she replied wearily, "and it's no picnic."—Kansas City Journal.

Bedroom Bank a Failure.

Because he thought that under a rug in his bedroom would be a safer place for his wealth than a bank, Edward Fahy, a well known young man of Chester, Pa., is out just $95. Fahy had a check cashed on last Saturday morning and took the money to his home on West Seventh street.

He was advised to put the notes in the bank.

"It will be safer here under this rug," he told his mother, Mrs. M. B. Fahy, who insisted that he was taking some risk. Nothing more was thought of the money until a colored boy who is employed in the family was sent upstairs to do some cleaning. Mrs. Fahy forgetting about her son's hidden wealth. When Edward came home, went upstairs and found everything topsyturvy, he made some inquiries, as the money was gone. The colored boy is also missing.

Trying It on the Cat.

This story by Robert E. Watson of Minneapolis, Minn.:

"An Irish laborer entered a drug store, and drawing a paper bag from his pocket, poured on the counter a number of sticky and unpalatable-looking candy lozenges.

"Can ye examine them 'swates'?" he asked.

"They look queer. What is the matter with them?" inquired the druggist.

"Pisen, O'm a-thinkin'. Did ye iver see such stuff? Dinna Dally give them to me bye, and Dinna is no friend of mine."

"Well, I can make an analysis."

"All right, O'll come tomorrow on me way from wurruk."

"The Irishman had reached the door, but he suddenly stopped with his hand on the latch.

"An' how much will that 'notysis be costin' me?"

"Five dollars," was the answer.

"Paddy walked over to the counter and swept the lozenges into the bag, which he placed in his pocket.

"Niver mind," he said, "niver mind. O'll fade me wan to the cat."—Washington Herald.

One Use of the Weed.

Several years ago when Chancellor Mell, of the State university, was presiding over one of the Baptist conventions, a speaker who was addressing the body in the interest of some cause launched into an impassioned arraignment of the tobacco habit. He came very near defeating his object. But Dr. Mell, who presided, the effect was some good-natured remark; and he afterward declared that while the man was making his attack upon the weed he was himself almost dying for a smoke.

On another occasion one of the fair parishioners of Dr. W. W. Landrum, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, saw him with a lighted cigar in his mouth and expressed her disapproval in horrified terms.

But the ever-ready clergyman was not in the least disconcerted. "Madame," said he, springing an argument which the devout lady could not resist, "I am doing what the scriptures enjoined. I am burning an idol."—Atlanta Georgian.

Superstitions of Bismarck.

Bismarck had an intense aversion to thirteen, but a generation for the number three. His reasons for his predilection were that he served three masters; he was responsible for and fought in three great wars; he signed three treaties of peace; he arranged the meeting of three emperors; he established the triple alliance; in the Franco-German war three horses were killed under him; he had three names (Bismarck, Schonhausen and Lauenburg); he acquired three titles, count, prince, duke; the ancient arms of his family are a leaf of clover and three oak leaves. The family motto, "In Trinitate Robur" ("Strength in Trinity"), was surely in itself a leaning in this particular direction. So closely were his feelings associated with the triple number that the caricaturists represented him with three hairs on his head. He had three children.

Forakes Her Race to Wed.

A girl at New Iberia, La., evidently pure white has decided that she would rather be considered a negro and be married to a negro, although Judge Simon in the district court has forbidden the issuance of the license.

The girl does not know her real name. She was deserted in her infancy by her parents, whom it is thought were Syrians. A negro and his wife adopted her seven years ago and all this time she has lived as the daughter of the negro woman.

She fell in love with a light colored negro who lives in Texas. White persons learned of the matter and the girl was taken into court to endeavor to prove whether she was white or black. The court decided she was pure white. The girl pleaded to be designated as a negro, but the court gave orders to issue no license.
