TWO HILL LINES TO BILLINGS

Burlington May Put Its Cheyenne Road in Good Shape.

BUYS LAND FOR THIS PURPOSE

Will Use Colorado & Southern to Orin Junction, Northwestern to Shoshoni, Then Its New Kirby Route.

The Burlington is considering the plan of improving its line from Holdrege to Cheyenne to make the second through line from Omaha to connect with the Northern Pacific at Billings. The line has been built for twenty years and has a splendid low grade all the way from Holdrege west and would make a good road for heavy hauling.

According to the present plan the Burlington will use the Colorado and Southern, which it owns, to Orin Junction, and then use the Northwestern rails west to Shoshoni, where the new line from Kirby south through the Big Horn Basin will be met.

Pursuant to this plan the Burlington has been buying land in Cheyenne to make a connection between the Burlington and Colorado and Southern. Land within the heart of Cheyenne has been bought at a considerable expense.

By using the Holdrege-Cheyenne line, the Burlington would have a route 64 miles long between Omaha and Cheyenne, while the Union Pacific is but a little shorter, with 60 miles. The Burlington has been making every effort to establish a line to the northwest with a minimum grade, and this seems to solve the problem. The Northwestern between Orin Junction and Shoshoni has some heavy grades, but the Burlington expects in time to build a line of its own across that section of Wyoming, and will use the Northwestern as a temporary expedient.

Work has begun on the Burlington line from Kirby south through the Big Horn Basin, but this is going to be a most difficult piece of work, as the road will have to build so that it can run over the top of the Boysen dam. It will be a most picturesque route, as the walls of the canyon rise perpendicularly about 900 feet.

Low Rates for the Fall.

Omaha now stands a good chance to get low rates to the fall festival of King Ak-Sar-Ben and for the National Corn exposition. The Burlington has made the first move in this direction by announcing that it will give reduced rates to the Nebraska State fair, which will be held at Lincoln September 8 to 18. The rate will be a fare and a half, with a minimum of $1.

Application was made some time ago for these rates, but several roads opposed the proposition. The Burlington has now taken independent action and has announced that it will make the rate. This action has met with the approval of the secretary of the Western Passenger association.

Ak-Sar-Ben and the corn show directors have not asked for rates up to date.

Later Burlington Announces.

The Burlington announces that it has arranged to run its train from Nebraska City two hours later than formerly to accommodate those desiring to go to Nebraska City in the morning and return in the evening.

A special train of seven cars, carrying the members of the National Editorial association, will arrive in Omaha Thursday over the Burlington at 1:15 p. m. The association is enroute to the Seattle exposition via Billings on the Burlington.

WINTER WHEAT IS RIPE NOW

Grain All Over Nebraska Ready to Cut and Farmers Are Lining Up Forces.

Winter wheat all over Nebraska is ripe and ready for harvest and the farmers are simply waiting for the fields to dry so they may put the harvesters to work. In some places half of the crop has been cut. Rain has not damaged the wheat on the Omaha and Lincoln divisions of the Burlington. Conditions for corn are unqualifiedly good on all divisions except under the water on some part of the Wynome division. The prospects are for 100 per cent of a crop on the Omaha division and 100 per cent on the McCook division.

Anatomik
FOOTWEAR
The present age knows no invention or development which means so much to humanity in general as does Dr. Cole's wonderful Anatomik Shoe.

THOUSANDS upon thousands of people—young, middle aged and old—are suffering from some one or more of the symptoms produced by some stage of the malady known as "flat-foot," or broken-down arch, as it is frequently called.

The early stages of "flat-foot" are usually the most painful. At this time very little, if any deformity or change in the foot's outline can be observed, consequently the pains are attributed to other causes—frequently to rheumatism. The rheumatic-like pains may be in the feet, calves of legs, knees, hips, back, and sometimes there is a dull pain in back of the neck.

Other symptoms are swollen, painful toes, enlarged great toe joints, pain in the heel, bunions, cramps in the feet, toes drawn up or down, weak ankles and a generally "used-up" feeling at the end of the day.

Come to our store and let us demonstrate to you a simple lesson in foot anatomy and you will quickly see why Anatomik Shoes are considered by thousands of people to be one of the greatest blessings ever given to humanity.
