

Bell, Doug. 618—BOTH PHONES REACH ALL DEPTS.—Ind. A-1841
We Close at 5 p.m. During July and August, Except Saturdays at 9:30 p.m.

July Clearing Sale of Wash Goods

These are our regular choice styles. No old or passed Wash materials allowed here.
Imported Chevron Suitings, regular 40c, now, per yard 25c
Imported all linen, 36 inches wide, regular 50c, now, per yard 25c
Printed Madras, regular 20c quality, now, per yard 12½c
Imported Bordered Ginghams, regular 60c, now, yd. 35c
Linen finished Suitings, regular 15c, now, yard 10c

See our 16th St. window.
Remnants of 10c, 12½c, 15c, 18c and 20c Wash Materials, at, per yard 5c
—East Basement.

Continuation of the great sale of Men's Shirts.

Thompson Brothers

Bee 7-19-09.

PEACE IS SLOGAN OF MAYOR

Against Prohibition He Urges Silence
by State Convention.

LOCAL DEMOCRATS WITH HIM

County Convention, He Says, Will Declare Against County Option
and the Early Closing Proposition Saturday.

The democratic state convention will not declare for county option or for early closing, if not I can help it.—Mayor James C. Dahlman.

The gauntlet has been thrown down to Mr. Bryan, Governor Shallenberger, Richard L. Metcalfe, et al, and if the prohibition forces even hint at making a move in the interests of prohibition Mayor Dahlman will meet them more than half way and tip that move in the bud, checkmating them at every turn of the road.

Mayor Dahlman, who has shown himself to be a smooth politician, says he will keep quiet if the other fellows will and if a move is to be made on the prohibition question that move will be started on the other side. The mayor will not show himself as the aggressor, but will stay on the defensive in the event his position is found to be in need of defense.

"The liquor question has no place in this year's campaign," says the mayor. "All we are to do this year is to elect supreme court judges and regents of the state university; I mean, that is all we have to do in the state campaign. If we are to have any platform at all we will have to touch on some things other than a judicial and educational nature and probably will reaffirm some of the degradations contained in the last platform, such as the non-partisan judiciary, direct vote for United States senators, and other beneficial changes."

Time to be Silent.

"But as far as the liquor or prohibition questions are concerned I, for one, think that both parties should this year be silent.
Next year this question is bound to be uppermost."

The county platform to be adopted next Saturday will doubtless declare against county option and against this 8 o'clock closing law and it is possible, our delegates to the state convention may be instructed to get a similar plank in the state platform. If this is done then we will, of course, make a fight for it, though I am not in favor of starting anything at this time.

"We will not sit back with our arms folded and allow the other fellows to swoop down on that state convention and get snap judgment on us and get a county option closing plank in the platform, however, but we will be on deck fully armed to protect our rights and what we believe is for the right."

Case Against Woman Dismissed.
SEATTLE, Wash., July 19.—(Special)—Chas. Williams, and Harry Middaugh, were arrested by the Seattle county officers, and are being held in jail at Fort Pierre for the officers from Nebraska, who want them on a charge of stealing a bunch of horses from Fred Ogden, at Millie, Neb. The men got their horses as far as western Stanley county before they were caught, and had disposed of several of them.

Wanted in Nebraska.
PIERRE, S. D., July 19.—(Special)—Chas. Williams, and Harry Middaugh, were arrested by Immigration officers soon after their arrival from Hongkong and held for deportation. They were dismissed by United States Judge Hoffman today. The man who says he is well known as a New York newspaper correspondent, proved that she was born and educated in Iowa, and was the wife of a Red Bank, N. J., man.

Oblique Killed in Wreck.
TOLEDO, O., July 19.—Theodore Gullow of Monroe, O., was killed and five others were injured in a wreck of the Wheeling & Lake Erie passenger train No. 5 at Trowbridge, sixteen miles east of here last night. The train jumped the track near the station, and the engine and combination coach went into the ditch and the three others cars left the track.

But, he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr. Rucker said that Mr. Macom was wrong in his conclusions, while Mr. Macom was right. Mr. Macom, he said, had proclaimed himself to day to day as the watch dog of the treasury.

"But," he added, "he has cost in my judgment more money by the delays he has occasioned by his objecting moods than all the other members."

Continuing Mr. Rucker said: "I don't know how the gentleman recognized himself when I gave the description of a man who appeared upon my ranch and asked for food and shelter. If a correct measurement was made according to the gentleman's own measure of his standing he would be about six feet five."

The republicans shouted with laughter, which was turned into applause when Mr. Macom arose.

He did not, he said, purpose to bandy words with Mr. Rucker, "for I do not consider that he is worthy." He challenged

Mr. Macom to a duel.

With biting sarcasm, Mr.