Selections from the Story Teller's Pack

A Sad Case. ANY stores are current in legal circles regarding former Judge W. T. Wallace, one of the best-known jurists in the history of San Francisco, but here is a new one, vouched for by 'Billy' Barnes, at one time district attorney. Wallace was examining a candidate for admission to the bar. All questions had been satisfactorily answered and the lawyer had passed so brilliantly that Wallace decided to put a simple question to terminate the ordeal. Owing benignly at the young man, he asked: "What is the liability of a common carrier?" "Although lawyers the world over and from time immemorial have wrested with this problem; though millions of words have been taken into the record of various cases in which this unanswerable question was involved, the fledgling calmly eyed the judge and at last solemnly replied: "Four honor, I must beg you to withdraw the question. I did know the answer, but, unfortunately, I have forgotten." For a minute Wallace eyed the young man; then, turning to the lawyers who were grouped around him, remarked: "Gentlemen, this is a sad case; in fact, a calamity. The only living man who ever knew the liability of a common carrier has forgotten."—San Francisco Call.
Ticked by the Bishop. When the Bishop of London was at Williamsburg a couple of years ago he heard a story of one of the of the American episcopates which delighted him greatly. A great celebration had been held a short time previously at Jamestown to commemorate the first English settlement in America. Bishops and clergy of the Protestant Episcopal church were there in hundreds, and the open air exercises lasted all day. As evening fell many of those who had come by steamer from Norfolk or Richmond sought to be driven back to Williamsburg to see that historic city. As John Johnson, landlord of the Williamsburg hotel, was taking up a load of passengers just outside of the ruined tower of Jamestown church a portly bishop came hurrying up. "Can you give me a lift to Williamsburg, driver?" he called. "Sorry, sir," said Johnson. "Every seat's taken." The bishop stepped back, and as he did so something shining fell from the overcoat get their share. About noon the boat casts anchor off New Dorp beach, Staten Island, and here a launch meets it from the sea. Sid Hospital to take over the mothers and sick babies on board who have been assigned to hospital. Hospital physicians examine the applicants. Probably twenty-five or thirty will be taken into the launch, which will later appear with the well out from the hospital to go home on the return trip of the barge. The rocking of the anchored launch evidently tends to bring out all the vocal powers of the infants, and even as it puffs and chugs away toward the beach a strange and discordant infantile medley is wafted back. The sea side hospital has two wards for mothers and sick children, a ward for well children, a ward for mothers—having cradles the foot of the beds for babies, a ward for very sick children, porches facing out on the ocean, screened in and made into open air wards, model diet kitchen with pasteurizers, sterilizers, electric range and oven, fully equipped modern laundries and ammonia cooling plant, and a large and efficient corps of physicians and nurses under the supervision of Dr. Charles W. Goodwin. The buildings of the hospital with their long wide porches, the sandy beach stretching down to the water in front, a beautiful cedar grove in the rear, convalescent children playing about, clean and well cared for, their mothers close at hand—all make a spectacle not soon forgotten. And this care and attention and comfort and life saving costs the poor patients not a cent. Out of a season of 1,771 patients only 181 were unimproved, with but 84 deaths. Even when death is inevitable at the time the little patient is examined, it is received anyway, an individual characteristic of this hospital, which is really the big and vital feature of the enterprise maintaining the Floating Hospital, although the latter is more spectacular. A happy cargo is carried back in the launch to the big barge. Shortly afterward the tug gets up steam and the young travelers are homeward bound. The bathing goes merrily forward, snatches of singing are still heard, and the nurses move back and forth, with practiced eye and hand maintaining order and ministering to wants. "It's hard to get five little ones ready and down to the pier by 8 o'clock," said one fragile, dark-eyed mother in broken English, "but it has saved my babies." "I wish," said little Rachel, who was the star speaker of "pieces" in the show company, "I wish we could always have a sick baby to we could go on the ocean every day. It's grand."

In the Field of Electrical Experiment

HE recent announcement of some day be harnessed to move the traffic of the railroad over the mountains has been a prediction that was undented, but that this would be accomplished in the immediate future was yesterday announced for the first time, although the energy of the company has been devoted to that end for the two years past. The work of changing the power upon the Sacramento division, which extends over the Sierra Nevada mountains from Reno to Sacramento, is the most ambitious ever undertaken in the way of electrical outfitting. It is necessary for the road to increase its carrying capacity for freight. The continued use of steam as propulsive power would mean that more tunnels would have to be bored. This would take eight years, and cost about $2,000,000. The electrification of the division, experts estimate, will take two years, and result in an increase of 75 per cent in the speed of moving trains, while reducing the nonproductive tonnage by 20 per cent. This means many more trains over the division, the prevention of congestion and bigger dividends. Expansion of the Telephone. Some significant facts are embodied in the recent annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, which show to what extent the telephone has become a part of modern life. The report has to do largely with a financial statement of the company's affairs, but incidentally reference is made to the extent of the service and its efficiency as a means of communication among the people. The following extracts are reprinted from the report: "There was a total of 4,824,023 telephone stations connected to the Bell system, as against 3,830,000 at the close of the previous year, an increase of 25.6 per cent. (A single instrument, with its equipment, is termed a station.) Of the total there were 1,383,114 exchange and toll stations connected to the Bell system by toll or long distance lines, but operated by some independent companies or associations having subsidiaries or common contracts with the Bell system. The total wire mileage of the Bell companies for toll and exchange service was 9,520,715, over a million miles being added during the year. The daily average of calls handled by the Bell companies was 13,802,000, or at the rate of about 4,900,000 a year. The plant additions were $15,524,000 for exchanges, $3,812,000 for toll lines, and $2,660,000 for land and buildings, making a total of $21,996,000. During the last nine years a grand total of $78,472,900 has been expended in enlarging the Bell properties. "Of the total value of the telephone plants owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph company and associated companies, real estate constitutes 2 per cent, underground conduits and cables 20 per cent, copper wires and aerial cables on poles 18 per cent, poles, not including wires, 25 per cent—$5,000,000 of this represents ownership of rights of way over private property—iron wires 4 per cent, and central office equipment 23 per cent. "The associated operating companies show reductions in floating indebtedness and increases in cash on hand, a net improvement of $5,000,000. The Western Electric company shows an equal improvement, so that the current and floating indebtedness of the associated companies is well within the limits of current operations. "The Bell business as a whole, excluding duplications and treating it as if operated by a single company, showed a substantial improvement. The total earnings showed an increase over the previous year of $7,000,000, the total expenses an increase of $2,100,000. The balance of net earnings was $4,900,000, and after deducting $11,054,500 for interest and $21,325,100 for dividends, there was left $1,820,400 in undivided profits. The combined balance sheet shows total assets of $89,044,300, with a surplus of $1,750,000, and depreciation and other reserves of $46,480,300. "There is shown a considerable increase in the number of shareholders, there being at the end of the year 35,370 shareholders, with an average holding of sixty each. By means of the issue of the balance of the authorized $45,000,000 convertible bonds, the financing of the company and its associated companies is completed for 1909 and 1910, including the payment of $21,000,000 notes maturing during those years." Electric Flashers. The combined output of the Niagara Falls power companies is over 500,000,000 kilowatt hours per year. Illuminated signs are a feature of some of the subway cars in New York. The sign lights the name of the next stop. A new invention entirely dispenses with the telegraph operator in railroad work. Each train as it passes over the road automatically makes a record on a sheet in the train dispatcher's office. By means of the financing of the Bell system, the engineer can at any time signal direct to the engineer to stop, slow down or proceed. The largest electric transmission line in the world is that of the Niagara-Syracuse-Auburn line, which transmits 30,000 horsepower a distance of 163 miles. The Col. Oakland and Miss. River. Cal. connects via 222 miles in length. This plant has a capacity of 1,250 kilowatts and there are over 100 substations on 1,775 miles of circuit on the system.
