For This Story the Writer Was Awarded A Prize.

Charlotte Kaufman, 137 South Fifteenth Street, Omaha, Neb., aged 13 years; seventh grade, Comenius school; M. J. Kaufman, father, Miss Mullen, teacher.

FOR SALE—At a bargain, 400 acres near Harrisburg, Banner county, Nebraska, practically all level.

Mr. Smith had always wanted to buy a farm, but could get none to suit his wife, who was very particular.

One day while looking through the Omaha Daily Bee, Mrs. Smith came across the above ad, and calling her husband by phone, told him about it and asked him to look it up.

He did so and found that the land, which was well cultivated, contained a large fruit orchard besides quite a bit of gardening and a seven-room house.

They decided to buy the farm and went to South Dakota and found it was just what they wanted, and could get it at a bargain.

Mr. Smith inquired why he wanted to sell such a nice farm and why he advertised in the Omaha Daily Bee.

He told them he intended to go in business for himself and that so many of his neighbors had advertised with good results that he thought he would do the same.

He found it paid to advertise in the Omaha Daily Bee.
