OMAHA HIGH IN LOUISVILLE

Ad Club Making Campaign for Next Convention of Writers.

OMAHA NEXT SIGNS EVERYWHERE

Fireworks Will Be Used to Call Attention to Virtues of the Gate City for the Convention Next Year.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Members of the Omaha Ad club arrived in Louisville at 7:30 this morning.

Through the main streets of the city the Omaha party drove in a trolley, which had been made into a huge basket by the generous use of corn stalks.

The Omahans all wore white felt outfits. The black horses were salty little pets with "Omaha" on them in visible gothic.

The music room of the hotel on the parlor floor was opened for the Omahans. Guests heard Robert Manly playing "Way Down South in Dixie."

From the roof garden hung another banner with the same suggestion, while the bill board contractors of Louisville have undertaken to guarantee that in every meeting place during the meeting of the Associated Ad Clubs of America, a sign twenty feet long will say "OMAHA-NEXT."

Fireworks Advertise Omaha. Wednesday evening will go off quiet, but the Omahans are to paint the town Thursday evening.

That Omaha stands a good chance for the best convention there is no doubt. The Omahans started a double boom for president of the associated clubs.

While there is a strong tendency to take the next convention to the east, the Omaha delegation, backed by Louisville say the Missouri river is a good place to meet and Omaha the best city on the stream.

STAY IN KIDNAPING CASE

Hearing Goes Over in Barclay Case Until Monday.

CHILD TO JUVENILE OFFICERS

Court Will Not Allow Girl to Go to Either Woman Until After Case is Decided.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 25.—Marian Bleakley, the 3-year-old baby of St. Louis, World's fair fame, who was kidnaped at Topeka last Saturday from its mother, Mrs. J. L. Bleakley, was today placed temporarily in the custody of the clerk of the juvenile court at Kansas City.

An order to this effect was given here by Judge E. E. Porterfield in the circuit court today. He had postponed until Monday next hearings in the habeas corpus proceedings involving Mrs. Barclay and Gentry and until September 7 the case of the little girl.

There were two habeas corpus proceedings on the docket today, both brought by Mrs. James G. Barclay of Buffalo, N. Y., the foster mother of the child. One sought to prevent herself and J. L. Gentry from being returned to Topeka for trial. The second sought to prevent Marian from being returned to the custody of Mrs. Bleakley.

Today's proceedings, though brief, were fraught with much interest and were participated in by the greatly sought 5-year-old child and the two women who have made so strenuous a fight for her possession.

When the proceedings in the habeas corpus case to prevent Marian from being returned to the custody of her mother at Topeka came up Frank Walsh, attorney for Mrs. Bleakley, filed an answer in which it was contended that Judge Porterfield's division of the circuit court lacked jurisdiction. Arguments of this case were then begun. Mr. Walsh argued that as the supreme court had decided that Mrs. Bleakley is the mother of the baby the lower court had no right to interfere.

Pleads for Mrs. Bleakley. Mr. Walsh pleaded that the child be placed immediately in the custody of Mrs. Bleakley.

Then E. F. Stanley, a member of the city council of Topeka, made an offer to the court to give a $10,000 cash bond for the child's safe return to her mother.

The clerk at the hotel said that the first intimation that he had of any shooting came through an inquiry from a New York morning newspaper. This was followed quickly by inquiries from nearly every other newspaper in the city which in the meantime had received the report.

Mr. Bleakley said it was impossible that Marian be taken out of the country's jurisdiction at this time. For, he said, Mrs. Barclay's attorneys wished to present to the court the records of previous trials which, he asserted, showed that Mrs. Bleakley's baby died soon after birth and the child now contended for was not legally hers.

During the progress of the proceedings today Marian nestled in the lap of Mrs. Bleakley, who sat just in front of the judge's bench. During the hearing arguments for the immediate possession of the child, Mrs. Bleakley gave way to tears as she caressed the little one.

Later there was an affectionate parting between child and the clerk of the juvenile court was given Marian and led her from the court room. Mrs. Bleakley will be allowed to visit her.

Crabtree Once Injured. James F. Moore of Tyrone, Pa., was called. He stated that he had known Crabtree since 1894. In 1896 the accused had been employed by the witness in a candy establishment at Tyrone.

Crabtree seemed perfectly aware of being in confinement at all times and was rational in his conversation. Private Durack was next called. He had also been on guard over the accused the day after the killing.

Crabtree's attorney, James F. Moore of Tyrone, Pa., was called. He stated that he had known Crabtree since 1894. In 1896 the accused had been employed by the witness in a candy establishment at Tyrone.

James M. Laporte of Tyrone, Pa., a cousin of Mrs. Eyer, the mother of the accused, was called and testified to having known the accused all his life.

Sergeant Washburn was called and told of the fine character of Captain Raymond, who, he said, believed in controlling his men by persistent drill and discipline.

Mother on the Stand. Mrs. W. Eyer, mother of the prisoner, then took the stand.

Colonel Gardner, the president of the court, had repeatedly admonished the prisoner to keep quiet and finally had him taken to the rear of the room.

Mr. Atwood asked her how she was, when Crabtree jumped to his feet and said: "Don't tell your name or age. Don't tell them anything. Don't tell them anything at all. Don't do it. You have already told too much. They are all against us and will ruin the whole family. I am innocent."

The country to be opened has been held onto by the Sioux Indians as their choice for their first choice of location in the Dakota country, but out of which they were forced by the gold discoveries.

Who Blends Your Coffee? Your Grocer? Does he ever blend it twice alike? Grocers sell all grades of coffee. They grind the high-grade and low-grade in the same mill. Low-grade coffee is bitter—some of it is left in the mill and ruins the flavor of the high-grade coffee ground next. Next time you want a pound, ask for OLD GOLDEN COFFEE. People who are coffee particular insist on having Old Golden Coffee. It is rich in aroma and has a flavor and body never found in bulk coffee. Old Golden is blended by experts—every pound is uniform—it has none of the bitter taste found in ordinary coffee. At Grocers 25 Cents a Pound. TONE BRAND, Des Moines, Iowa. Milled by the Famous Tone Brand Process.
