

BEAUVUE CHAUTAUQUA MEET

Third Assembly Begins Saturday with Strong Corps of Speakers.

HADLEY AND HANLY HEAD LIST

Governor of Missouri, Former Governor of Indiana and Oklahoma's Blind Senator Gore Among the Lecturers.

The Beauvue chautauqua will open its third annual assembly at Beauvue this afternoon. The first number, the opening address by Judge Edmund M. Bartlett on the subject: "The Origin and Object of Chautauqua," will be given at 2:30, and thereafter for a week and two days sessions will be held every afternoon and evening.

Among the "head liners" on this year's chautauqua "bill" are Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, of Standard Oil prosecution fame; former Governor J. Frank Hanly of Indiana, a speaker on prohibition topics; Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, of Oklahoma's "Blind Man" fame; Senator Ramon Reyes Lala, who is supposed to have preceded Aguinaldo in insurgency against Spain in the Philippines; Rt. Rev. J. J. Keane, bishop of Coneyague; and a number of local speakers.

Tenting and camping privileges are offered those who might desire to spend the week in the open under the ancient trees of old Beauvue, and tenters will have access to the college building and grounds, including the tennis courts, athletic grounds and the base ball park. Additional camp service will be provided for the week of the chautauqua and tickets of admission good for the entire season will be sold for $1.

Program for the nine days of the chautauqua is as follows:

WEDNESDAY. 2:30 p. m.—Concert by George Green's band. Introduction remarks by Judge A. L. Sutton, president of Beauvue chautauqua. Opening address by Judge Edmund M. Bartlett, "The Origin and Object of Chautauqua."

PAINTING FROM MUNICH HANGS IN BEE BUILDING

"Conquest of the Prairies," Done by Irving R. Bacon, Marks Transition of West.

The "Conquest of the Prairie," one of the largest canvases ever exhibited in Omaha, is the title of a painting in oil which now decorates one of the panels in the west of the Bee building. The painting is the work of Irving R. Bacon, a Detroit artist, who has been studying for several years in Munich, where this painting was made.

The late Edward Rosewater suggested to Mr. Bacon the subject of the painting early in 1904 and the last five and one-half years have been put in by the artist in studying his subject and executing this masterpiece. Before being shipped to America the painting was exhibited in Munich and the painter received honor awards and many compliments on the work.

"The Conquest of the Prairie" is executed in faithful detail and the artist himself, when he undertook the work, said that he considered it "a grand opportunity to express the remarkable transition our great west has passed through in its course of development." The painting depicts the life of a half century ago. In the foreground are the Indians in correct costume and savage regalia and real aboriginals in countenance. Running with the Indians, who are mounted on ponies, is a herd of bison, while back of this scene is shown a train of prairie schooners, with a mounted scout pointing the way.

Colonel W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," was consulted by the artist for this part, the famous scene included in the composition at the suggestion of the late Edward Rosewater. Finding the type in Colonel Cody the scout on the canvas faithfully depicts the forerunner of civilization who helped open the boundless prairies for the settler.

In the extreme background of the picture a railway train is shown across which steams a pioneer train. The trestle looks much like the Union Pacific bridge across the Missouri river and the city back of it could easily be mistaken for the sky line of Omaha.

The painting of the "Conquest of the Prairie" will be hung in the rotunda of the Bee building temporarily, where it can be viewed by visitors. It remains the property of the artist.

WESTERN UNION WILL NOT BUY OMAHA NATIONAL HOME

General Superintendent Cook Says Company Does Not Care to Own Office Buildings.

General Superintendent T. P. Cook of the Western Union Telegraph company spent a few hours in Omaha, arriving at 2:30 a. m. and leaving at 1 p. m. over the Rock Island. He is on a trip to all important offices of the company in the west and will go through to the coast. He is conferring with the local superintendent and inspecting the operating departments.

Mr. Cook had a long conference with Superintendent Nelson of the local office and spent two hours in visiting the operating and other departments.

While here Mr. Cook denied the report that the Western Union would buy the Omaha National bank building in which the local offices of the telegraph company are located.

"It never has been the policy of the Western Union to own offices in any city. The reason for this is that the company always wants to be centrally located and if it owns property in one part of town that is well situated now, in fifteen years that same property is liable to be on a side street."

Mr. Cook said he was well satisfied with the conditions he found in the Omaha offices and with the affairs of the company all over the country.

"I have just been through the operating department here and find everything in first class shape. The Omaha office is doing an excellent business. All our western offices, indeed, are doing a big business."

The business conditions in all lines of trade are good all over the west. Chicago is having a big trade and the signs are that the west will continue to prosper this fall."

Mr. Cook said the Western Union would make no improvements in any of its offices this year. If any expenditures were made, he said, they would be in the toll line.

The Western Union now has direct toll lines from Chicago to San Francisco and other coast cities.

MANUAL TRAINING LUMBER

Two Thousand Feet Have Been Bought by Prof. Wigman for School Use.

Two thousand feet of lumber, one-half pine and the other half hard wood, have been bought by Prof. Wigman for his manual training classes for the coming school year. This is one-third as much more than was used last year.

Some minor improvements have been made in the manual training rooms this year, but only 200 boys can be accommodated. Prof. Wigman expects that nearly twice this number will make application for the course and he hopes that before another year a building can be erected sufficient to accommodate all who desire to take the manual training work.
