

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The great Closing-Out-Sale of the mammoth piano stock of Foster Bros., the oldest and largest piano house of Columbus, Neb., is a great success. Everybody knows that Foster Bros. carried one of the finest stocks of high grade pianos in the west, including Concert Grands, Baby Grands, Cabinet Grands and Uprights. When we bought this stock for spot cash at a fraction of cost the people of Omaha and the state of Nebraska expected more than ordinary piano value. But music lovers will not be disappointed if they call at once, for such fine pianos were never before quoted at such low prices.

Beautiful STEINWAY, KURTZMAN, CHASE, CHICKERING, KNABE, IVERS & POND, FARRAND, SCHAFF, ETC., ETC., are offered and sold far below the cost of manufacture, and all on terms to suit your convenience.

CENT A MILE TO SEE KING

Union Pacific slashes Rates for Ak-Sar-Ben Festivities.

MEANS THOUSANDS OF VISITORS

Low Fare and Attractive Entertainment Will Combine to Make Omaha Mecca for More Travelers Than Ever Before.

E. L. Lomax, general passenger agent of the Union Pacific, announces that the Union Pacific has decided to give Omaha and Ak-Sar-Ben a cent a mile rate for the fall festivities, or one fare for the round trip, from all points in Nebraska.

Last year other Nebraska lines gave a rate of a fare and a half and the Union Pacific followed with an announcement of a cent a mile. This year all other Nebraska lines have arranged for a rate of a fare and a half, and now comes the Union Pacific with the announcement of a fare for the round trip. The dates on which the Union Pacific rates are effective are October 1 to 5, inclusive, Monday to Friday of the big week. These low rates will undoubtedly bring thousands to Omaha, as reduced rates are always attractive, and the big show Omaha has to offer must be considered.

Omaha now offers more attractions to visitors than ever before during the fall festivities. The shows on the King's Highway will be of a higher order, the electrical parade will be of the usual high class, the military pageant will be larger than anything of its kind ever held in the west and Omaha itself is bigger and has more real attractions than the past.

The military parade will be held Thursday afternoon, the day following the big electrical parade, and this will be a strong enough attraction to hold many people over for another day who might otherwise go home after the electrical parade.

The children's Japanese Tea party is another attraction which will tend to hold people, for it will be one of the prettiest shows ever staged.

Lost in the Jam of Busy Omaha

Louis Hueftle, Prominent Citizen of Eustis, is Swallowed Up in Vortex of Human Flood.

Louis Hueftle, a prominent German citizen of Eustis, is lost in Omaha and his family is unable to find trace of him. He came to Omaha from Lincoln State fair with a friend, Jacob Koehler, last Tuesday evening. Koehler left him near the Krug theater for a few minutes and he had been feeling ill during the evening, and it is thought that he may be unable to get word to his relatives. A message from Eustis received Thursday noon stated that he had not been there. He was a complete stranger in Omaha. Fred Koehler of 1411 Izard street is trying to find him. He is described as a German, about 46 years of age, with a full black beard.

SOLDIER DID NOT DESERT

Pension Examiner Unravels Queer Tale After Long Investigation.

RE-ENLISTED IN A W REGIMENT

Man First Took a Sick Furlough as Equivalent to Discharge and Was Carried on Rolls as Deserter.

Special Pension Examiner Foster is telling a story "just to show that it is not the province of special pension examiners to hunt down men and deprive them of their pensions through some technical violation of the multiplicity of pension laws, but rather to demonstrate that the average pension examiner would sooner help a worthy soldier get a pension, than to deprive him of it." Here is his narrative:

"Dennis Hunt enlisted early during the civil war in a New York regiment and served for more than three years. He was severely wounded at the battle of Antietam and was sent home on sick furlough. His furlough was indefinite, but he recovered from his wound sooner than he expected. He went back to his regiment and was again wounded at Gettysburg and was given another sick furlough after being discharged from the hospital.

"After several months he recovered from his wound and, supposing that his sick furlough was equivalent to a discharge, he failed to return to his original command. He was a little doubtful about the legitimacy of his discharge, and fearing that he might be classed as a deserter, hesitated about going back, as about that time the government was shooting an occasional deserter, so he determined to re-enlist under another name in a Massachusetts regiment.

"He served with the Massachusetts regiment until the last year of the war and was again wounded at Petersburg and was sent home to die. But he didn't die. He reported to his Massachusetts command just before the grand review in Washington and was mustered out with the regiment.

"Several months after the close of the war he applied for a pension. It was held up for various reasons, particularly from the fact that he claimed three separate wounds, but not all of them from his last enlistment.

"Hunt positively insisted that he had no other service except in the Massachusetts regiment, but was determined to explain the discrepancy of the two other wounds which had been perfectly established by his repeated physical examinations before the medical examining board. The two old wounds indicated that they had been received two and three years previously. But Hunt was obstinate and would not give away his earlier enlistments.

"Finally a special examiner was sent to his old home in Brooklyn and after making some inquiries among friends and relatives the examiner discovered that Hunt had served in a New York regiment for three or more years before enlisting in the Massachusetts regiment, and was in some of the hottest battles of 1862 and 1863, but under another name.

"Further inquiry showed that he was carried on the rolls of the New York regiment as a deserter. His record as a soldier was, however, first class, and he was again investigated by a special examiner, who is now stationed in Omaha, and Hunt finally admitted that he had served in the New York regiment. He denied any intention of deserting. But held that as the government was making it pretty hot for men charged with desertion, he concluded to change his name and enlist in another regiment where he would not be known.

"The examiner saw the real merit in the case and instead of seeking to show the man up as a premeditated deserter, sent in the full story of the case to the pension department. Every detail of Hunt's story was corroborated, and the pension department of its own volition removed the charge of desertion from Hunt's name and awarded him a pension from the date of his first wound at Antietam in September, 1862. He was granted arrears from that date and only a few weeks ago, here in Nebraska, he received from the pension department a check for over $2,000 arrears and a notification that he had been placed permanently on the pension roll."

Writers Hold Up Field Club at the Bankers' Dinner

Squeeze Extra Dollar Per Man, Finding They Have Club by Short Hair.

Sixty colored waiters successfully worked the Field club for $60 on the occasion of the dinner to the Nebraska Bankers' association. As a result there are some missing colored faces at the club.

Just before the dinner was to be served to the assembled and hungry visitors, became known that a "strike" was on. Some of the "extra help" employed conceived the bright idea that they had the club by the short hair, as it were. The waiters were to receive $2.00 for the evening's work and the sum demanded was $3.00 a man.

The head waiter and the steward held a hurried conference and then put the matter up to Acting President Sherraden and the house committee.

"Nothing to do but submit to the hold-up," was the verdict. But the head waiter was told to discharge the ringleaders the next day.

"We ought to have been prepared for a trick of this kind," said President Sherraden. "They tried the same game last year at the banquet for the National Live Stock exchange. If we had had a few more club members on hand we would have told the whole crew to shove their heads under the tables themselves. When William Hughes, secretary of the Bankers' association heard later of the 'hold-up,' he said that if he had known of it he could have secured enough young bankers to have acted as waiters."

FRANCES WILLARD OFFICERS

Mrs. Clara E. Burbank is chosen President of this W. C. T. U. organization.

The Frances Willard Women's Christian Temperance union elected officers for the year at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. Lavery in South Omaha. Superintendents of departmental work and delegates to the state and county conventions were also chosen.

An address was made by Rev. Charles W. Savidge at the afternoon session. The meeting was attended by Mrs. F. B. Heald, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance union. The secretary reported a paid up membership of 160. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Clara E. Burbank; first vice president, Mrs. George W. Covell; second vice president, Mrs. H. N. Craig; recording secretary, Mrs. Albert W. Eaton; treasurer, Mrs. Hannah Rowley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. J. Roberts.

Superintendents—Christian citizenship, Mrs. D. G. Craighead; franchise and temple work, Mrs. George W. Covell; medical temperance, Dr. Myra Wells; Sunday schools, Mrs. F. K. Spalding and Mrs. H. N. Craig; social functions, Mrs. W. C. Ogil; medal contest, Mrs. F. A. Fallanbee; soldiers and sailors, Mrs. Herbert Freeman; press, Mrs. C. J. Roberts; flower mission, Mrs. A. E. Newell.

The delegates to the county convention which meets in South Omaha, September 30, will be Mrs. H. N. Craig, Mrs. W. C. Ogil, Mrs. Jay Lavery, Mrs. C. J. Roberts, Mrs. King, Mrs. Albert N. Eaton, Mrs. F. K. Spalding, Mrs. Clever, Mrs. J.

Editors to Get the Best Newspaper Men of Nebraska and Western Iowa at the Den Monday Night.

Monday will be editors' night at the Den, when the knights of Ak-Sar-Ben will entertain as their guests the newspaper men of Nebraska and western Iowa. Knowing these learned men are up on high-class oysters, they have been held to the rear until the singers have all learned their parts in the beautiful opus of Paprika Schmitzel. The editors will be the real critics of the performance which will be given for the entertainment of President Taft. Three other performances will be given during the week for the entertainment of the visiting Eagles, and if the oyster makes as decided a hit with the lay Eagles as it has with the grand officers, the fame of Ak-Sar-Ben will be spread broadcast all over the country.

WHO KNOWS G. L. PARKS?

Has Been Troubled Greatly With Chronic Kidney and Liver Complaint.

NO "HOCUSPOCUS" ABOUT "NEW METHOD"

When a man like G. L. Parks voluntarily offers a testimony like the one below, there certainly must be something to what he says. Mr. Parks tells of his suffering for years with a chronic trouble which at times was so severe that he was unfit for work of any kind. Often after sitting down he was unable to rise again because of his suffering. For years this trouble existed, continually becoming worse in spite of all sorts of treatment. Now Mr. Parks is well and has had absolutely no trouble for a long period, but it required the "new method" treatment of the Austro-American doctors to give him a cure. Read his own words:

"Omaha, Neb., Aug. 1, 1909.

"To the Public:

"When I commenced taking treatment from the Austro-American doctors I could hardly drag myself down to the office to see them. When I would sit down I could hardly get up again, as I had been suffering for years from a chronic kidney and bladder trouble. After taking their treatment for three days I felt so much improved that I started to work. I have been gaining right along and have had no return of the old symptoms, am working every day. There is no 'hocuspocus' about their treatment. Write to me or call on me at 215 1/2 Harney street, Omaha. I will gladly answer you. G. L. PARKS.

"215 1/2 Harney street."

The "new method" treatment is known only to the Austro-American doctors, who conduct offices and laboratories on the fourth floor of the Range hotel, opposite the Orpheum theater, at Fifteenth and Harney streets. The new method treatment consists of properly diagnosing the cause, ascertaining the direct causes of the ailment and then eradicating the cause. When the cause is removed, as in the case of Mr. Parks, of course no further trouble is experienced and a complete cure is effected.

Dr. Milen is chief of staff and he is assisted by a staff of the most eminent specialists in the country. Dr. Milen assists in the diagnosis of every case and personally directs the course of treatment. No case is ever accepted for which there is any doubt of a permanent cure being given and the following diseases are successfully treated:

Paralysis, rheumatism, gotto, epilepsy, fall stone, diseases of the liver, kidneys, stomach, blood, chronic and nervous diseases of men and women.

Separate quarters and strict privacy for men and women.

Consultation and examination free. No fee asked until the patient is cured.
