

Japanese Prince is Received by President Taft

Grandson of Emperor, with Staff Pays Visit to Beverly, Where Audience Takes Place.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 10.—President Taft today received in informal audience Prince Kuniyoshi Kuni, grandson of the emperor of Japan, and through him sent a message of regard and personal good will to his distinguished grandfather.

TRAINING SCHOOL AT LIBRARY

Sixth Annual Appreciation Class Will Begin Its Work on Fourth of October.

The sixth annual training class in library methods at the Omaha public library will begin work October 4, 1909. A competitive examination for entrance will be given September 27 at 9 a. m. in the lecture room at the library building.

The applicant best fitted for library work is the one who has had a fair education, has been brought up in an atmosphere of books and has, above all, a sympathetic fondness for people and an enthusiasm for his work.

The work of the class is limited to methods adopted for use in the Omaha public library and, briefly outlined, is as follows: The selection and classification of the most useful books on various subjects.

The librarian requests all candidates for admission to communicate with her at an early date, if they have not already done so. A personal interview with the librarian is a necessity.

PRUDENCE GOES OVERBOARD

Plausible Explanation of the Havoc Caused by Automobile Speeding.

Slaughter by motor has become so agreeable a sport that it passes up its amusing little records in a column by themselves. It takes the place of slaughter by railway train. It's a mania, a fad, or an epidemic, according to the way you look at it.

We venture an explanation by quoting the proverb, "Experientia docet." All people who have been driving cars all summer are suspecting that they know how they have got over being afraid. Calling themselves experts, they take risks with out blinking.

Seriously, does not this explain the prevailing danger of death? When the railroads were at it, the problem was intricate. You could not say for certain whether bad roads or bad rolling stock or bad employees were to blame. But in motoring, the human element is everything.—Boston Traveler.

CAT'S TAIL ADORNS MONKEY

Novel Surgical Operation on Pet of a Philadelphia Police Officer.

It is not often that a Philadelphia police station is transformed into a temporary hospital, but such was the case the other day, when a street car accident in the morning was the scene of one of the most difficult skin-grafting operations recorded in the annals of modern surgery.

Several weeks ago Lieutenant Boston was presented by a professor at the University of Pennsylvania with a tame monkey. The animal had become quite a pet among the officers at the new Thirty-second street and Woodland avenue station, but it recently developed a faculty of breaking its chain and wandering about the streets.

Yesterday morning when Lieutenant Boston found that his pet was missing and was about to send out a "missing" call to all nearby officers, the monkey, named Brownie, after House Sergeant Brown, limped into the station, crying piteously. One glance was sufficient to tell the story. He had evidently gotten the worse of an argument with a street car. His tail was missing.

IN ONE POSITION 51 YEARS

Veteran Telegrapher Has Unequaled Record for Faithfulness and Stick-tiveness.

Isaac W. Hallam, the grand old man of the telegraph service in the United States, completed his fifty-first year of continuous employment at the office of the Western Union company at Wilmington, Del., recently. During all that time he has not missed a day at his desk, with the exception of a furlough of one week, which he took at the time of his marriage in 1864.

For continuous service as a clerk in connection with a telegraph company his record is unparalleled. For years he has reached the office at 6:30 a. m. to the minute, and has been just as punctual in leaving for his home at 4:35 p. m. Clocks have been set upon the daily appearance of this man.

Woodmen Building is Still in the Air

But Seventeen-Story Building Will Be Delayed Because Site is Not Yet Certain.

"Nothing done yet," was the only word vouchsafed by the Woodmen of the World at noon. If the council is any nearer a conclusion than it has been, the fact is sewed up tight.

An intense effort is being made to keep the proceedings secret and a sort of trial was conducted to find out what member of the council gave the statement to The Bee Thursday that a majority of the council were now against the Strohman and Jackson street site.

It is known that the Woodmen have passed a resolution to adjourn by Saturday noon and a decision must be reached before that hour. Meantime various interests are renewing their activities, those favoring Thirteenth and Farnam being especially active, and there is renewed talk of a big bonus from neighboring interests.

Joe Oberfelder Is a Judge Now

Colonel Joseph Oberfelder of Sidney has been appointed United States commissioner for the district of Nebraska. Mr. Oberfelder is one of the leading citizens of western Nebraska and possesses all the necessary qualifications to fill the office acceptably and administer justice for the government impartially.

EVOLUTION OF THE HUMAN EYE

It Has Been Perfected as an Instrument of Sight Through Thousands of Years.

The human eye has passed through thousands of years of evolution until it has become best adapted to sunlight, or skylight coming obliquely from above, and resents strong illumination from any other direction.

It is apparent that snow blindness, distress from white sand or water is not caused by the intensity of the light so much as by the fact that it is reflected up instead of down and is not stopped by the rather transparent lower eyelid. If the lower part of the eye is guarded with goggles or by blacking the lower lid no difficulty is found. The eye is provided with a wonderful automatic "iris diaphragm" for its adjustment to various degrees of illumination.

But light without shadows is objectionable because the eye has grown used to shadows and the result is that it is unable to see the shape of objects. On certain days when the earth is veiled by a thin fog which hides the sun while diffusing light with great brilliancy there is a painful glare which the eyes cannot endure without serious strain.

People who expect nothing are seldom disappointed. The man who lectures on prohibition has a dry subject. And many a crooked path has led into a strait jacket.

When the mosquito begins to sting it is time to put up the bars. It is difficult to detect the taint on money that comes our way.

Even a physician can't tell what ails a woman by looking at her. It is the end of his nerve, where do you think you would come in?

Have you often wondered why the grocer carries so many things in stock that you never see?

Philadelphia Homes. The average number of inhabitants in each of the 30,647 dwellings of Philadelphia is less than five. The typical man of living in Philadelphia with one family to the house. This may be said to be the universal practice. Huge tenements do not exist in Philadelphia.

No Free Lunches in Detroit. Officially, the death-knell of the free lunch in saloons was sounded when the town clock tolled 12 last night and the Warner-Tranton law went into effect. But there is still a shining ray of hope for the grievers, one who has had a hot beef eye bread, bean soup and roast beef has vanished from the free lunch counter forever.

DEATH RECORD. Mrs. Vera I. Lyman, the wife of Mr. Walter G. Lyman, 404 William street, died from pneumonia at her home, after a brief illness. Mrs. Lyman contracted a cold on a return trip from the Pacific coast and was sick only a few days. She was the only daughter of Ezra H. Hemming, 3405 North Twenty-ninth street, born in Omaha March 7, 1888. She was a graduate of the Omaha high school class of 1904 and a pupil of the Peru Normal school, 1907. The funeral will be held from the family residence, 404 William street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. T. J. Mackay will officiate. The interment will be at Prospect Hill cemetery.

John M. McCarthy. John M. McCarthy, a well known Johnson county farmer, died at the family home, northwest of Tecumseh, Thursday after a lingering illness of cancer of the liver. John McCarthy was a native of County Cork, Ireland, and was aged 69 years. He came to America some twenty-five years ago and located in Iowa. After living there for some four years he came to Nebraska, first settling near Ogallala, and later moving to Otey county. About eight years ago he located in this county and here he had resided since.

No Trace of Assassin. HURON, S. D., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Although the country for miles surrounding this city has been scoured by armed forces of men to the number of between 200 and 300 no trace has yet been found of the man who shot Officer Hawley Tuesday night. Among the suspects now in custody it is believed that two are familiar with the circumstances leading up to the shooting and from what can be learned the disturbance was a mere fake for the purpose of attracting the attention of the officer so that he might be "gotten away with."

Behind the Screen. A negro preacher in a Georgia town was edified on one occasion by the recital of a dream had by a member of his church. "What was dey a-doin'?" "I was a-dreamin' all dis time," said the narrator, "dat I was in Ole Satan's dominion. I tell you, pashon, dat was shore a bad dream!" "Was dere any white men dere?" asked the dusky divine. "Shore dere was plenty of 'em, but de other hastened to assure his minister. "What was dat?" "Ebery one of 'em," was the answer, "was a-holdin' a coddled pupson between him an' de fire!"—Harp's Weekly.

From Bad to Worse. "Hello, Peckem!" said Miggles as they met on the street. "I hear you and your wife had words and she left you." "Yes, that's right," rejoined Peckem. "That's bad," said the other. "I'm awfully sorry to hear it." "Oh, the husband retorted, "that doesn't worry me but I'm afraid she'll do something worse." "Worse?" echoed Miggles. "What could she do that's worse?" "She could go back," answered Peckem, as he smiled a sickly smile.—Chicago News.
