Places Blame on Engineer

Forgot His Orders and Ran by Meeting Point, Says the Coroner's Jury.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 13.—(Special Telegram.)—Superintendent Bignell of the Burlington today made the statement that the cause of the wreck at Burnham yesterday was simply a case of a forgotten order. "Engineer Gillispie," he said, "had orders to stop at Burnham and he forgot. The engineer has been a reliable man and he does not drink and had no worries. Consequently how he forgot cannot be explained."

It was published this morning that Coroner Matthews had forgotten the orders when it should have been said that it was the engineer. The conductor gave the orders to the engineer. Coroner Matthews this afternoon held an inquest and the jury brought in a verdict to the effect that the wreck was caused by the negligence of the engine crew of the passenger train in not following orders to stop at Burnham.

BANKERS WILL MEET TODAY

American Association Begins Annual Convention in Chicago.

BILL OF LADING PROBLEM

Executive Council Confers with Shippers and Railroad and Drafts Form for Discussion by Convention.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The preliminary conference of the thirty-fifth convention of the American Bankers' association, which were held today, show that the bill of lading problem will be one subject of the first importance which will be exclusively dealt with by the delegates. "The bill of lading question," said Louis E. Pierson, vice president of the association, "is one of the greatest commercial problems of the day and it will soon be settled to the satisfaction of bankers, carriers and shippers."

The conference on the variety of the commercial paper was one of the few meetings of the day in which free rein was given to all who desired to discuss that subject and was the only meeting in which interests other than banking institutions had a share. Mercantile associations and railroad lines were represented at the conference and took part in determining the form of the resolutions seeking state and national laws for uniform bills of lading.

The cry of the bankers has long been for a bill of lading which would make the carrier issuing it responsible so that it would be a safe negotiable instrument. Liability of carriers. The shippers represented were equally anxious for a solid foundation and the importance of the question was presented by Henry Dunkak, president of the New York Mercantile exchange, who declared that if the bill of lading were not used as a basis of credit, "the business of the country would come to a standstill or else become concentrated in the hands of a few."

The railroad representatives did not oppose the resolutions and this was taken by the bankers to indicate a closer degree of harmony than has prevailed since hereofore the carriers' liability has been the principal bone of contention. In addition to unanimous approval by the conference, the resolutions for uniform bill of lading laws were acted on favorably by the executive council of the association in the day and will be before the convention for final action. The work of the other committees which met during the day was largely the preparation of reports to be submitted to the convention. Express companies and their issuance of express money orders will be the subject of criticism from the special committee on that subject.

Against Guaranty Plans. The various questions of national financial with which subject the currency commission of the association is currently held in abeyance until after the report of the federal monetary commission has been made.

The bank deposit guaranty plan and the postal savings bank were frowned upon by the federal legislative committee which will report adversely on these propositions and will suggest as a substitute that the national banks be permitted to organize savings banks with segregated capital.

The main meeting of the afternoon was the gathering of the executive council of the association to which all reports and resolutions destined for the convention must be submitted. The session of the council was held closed doors and it was later announced that the suggestions of the various committees had been approved without exception.

Supervisors of State Banks.

Coincident with the preliminaries for the main convention of the national association of supervisors of state banks was held at which the supervisors from each state represented outlined the condition of banks in their state. The representatives from Kansas and Oklahoma spoke strongly in favor of the guaranty laws in force in those states. A. M. Young of Oklahoma declared that it was not easy for an improper person to open a bank in his state and J. M. Dooley of Kansas, insisted that had the bank guaranty law been in force throughout the country for forty years it would have offset all the losses suffered in that time by depositors.

Interest will center tomorrow in the address of James J. Hill of the Great Northern Railroad company, who speaks on "National wealth and the farm." Committee and officers' reports will be taken up in the morning session.

Speaker Cannon Talks.

The bankers of Chicago tendered a banquet to the executive council of the American Bankers association tonight. Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, was the principal speaker. Speaker Cannon made only an informal talk, but took occasion to make a few remarks about government by the people. "This is a government by the people," said Speaker Cannon. "The people have their chance to speak every two years. The government is no better nor no worse than the people demand. There must always be a large number of people who follow a certain leadership, yet disagree with it in order to make the present day form of civilization."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Pres. Gen. Taft today pardoned L. A. Foster of Salem, Ill., now serving a life sentence at the Leavenworth penitentiary for holding up a stage coach in Texas in 1888. Foster committed the crime single handed, robbing six passengers. Mrs. J. W. White, wife of the president of the German National bank of Mason, Tex., both of whom were passengers, urged the pardon, on the ground that the sentence was excessive, that no one was hurt, that the prisoner had been sufficiently punished and that he took only $9 and a watch from the passengers. The watch was returned to its owner. Foster is 59 years old and broken in health.

Farmer Expires in Field.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Sept. 13.—(Special.)—To have her husband of only a few months drop dead before her eyes was the shocking experience of Mrs. Ferris D. Gilbert, wife of a prominent farmer of Clark county. The husband had been engaged in driving a mowing machine and Mrs. Gilbert had walked to the meadow to talk to him while he was thus occupied. Reaching a point in the field Gilbert dismounted from the machine and gallantly assisted his wife to the seat on the mower which he had just vacated. After conversing for a few moments she banteringly remarked that he had not kissed her. This he immediately proceeded to do, and an instant later without the slightest warning he sank to the ground, soon breathing his last.

NO POLITICS IN CENSUS

Supervisors Must Sever Connection with Political Committees.

EXPLICIT LETTER ON POINT

Commissioners Will Not Be Sent to Appointees Who Do Not Comply with Order or to Those Holding State Offices.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Every measure to be taken by Census Director Durand in carrying out President Taft's determination to prevent politics in the census is the census supervisors and enumerators during their term of office, as emphatically outlined by the president in a letter to Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor. Director Durand has sent a letter, which has been approved by both the president and Secretary Nagel, to all supervisors, calling their attention to the president's letter pointing out that it prohibits a man from holding office or membership in any political committee during the term of his office as supervisor or taking any active part in politics by attending addresses, solicitation of votes or otherwise.

The director declares this order will be strictly enforced and requests that each supervisor inform him immediately whether he holds office or membership in any political committee, and if so, just what political activity during his term of office. If the answer is in the affirmative the director expects the supervisor to send a copy of his resignation from any such position with a statement that the resignation has been accepted.

In view of the provision in almost every state constitution that no state officer shall hold a federal position at the same time, the director also in the letter calls for information on this point. As fast as the supervisors prove that they have met those requirements, the commission will be forwarded, accompanied by oaths of office, a copy of the census law and the preliminary letter of instructions from the director. The latter will only take up the question of the selection of enumerators, and the subject of the test examination of the force of 50,000 men and their designation, for the approval of the director, will for the subject of a more specific letter of instructions which will follow. The appointment of the enumerators will not be made before January next.

STATE HOME FOR SICK EAGLES

of North Platte; state conductor, Henry Rotholz of South Omaha; chaplain, A. Hirschman of Hartington; treasurer, Joseph Stanger of Omaha.

Reports were made by the committee on credentials and by Secretary J. M. Tanner of South Omaha. Treasurer L. J. F. Isgrig of Chadron was absent and his report, which has been mailed, had not been received.

Two Aeries Added.

In his report Secretary Tanner reviewed the progress of the Nebraska aerie during the year. He showed that two new aeries had been added and that the fraternity had been enlarged by 2,000 new members during the year. The new towns that joined the grand aerie were Bloomington and Columbus. He said the financial condition of the fraternity was good.

Over the question of making a recommendation to the grand aerie regarding the creating of an office of grand physician considerable discussion took place. Some of the delegates favored it and some did not. A warm debate among four or five of the members promised, for a while, to be rather lively, but wiser counsel soon prevailed and the delegates were induced to leave the matter until today.

No morning session of the state aerie will be held today. The delegates all withdrew to witness the opening of the grand aerie at the Auditorium. The last session yesterday adjourned until 1 o'clock today. At this meeting the officers for the ensuing year will be elected and the work of the convention concluded.

A smoker was given at the Eagle auditorium last night in honor of the visiting state delegates. Grand Worthly Vice President Hering, Past Grand Worthly President Theodore A. Bell of California and Deputy Grand President John S. Parry of San Francisco were booked to give short talks, but only Mr. Parry was able to be present.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock President Hering called the convention to order, the big hall of the Auditorium being filled with delegates and visitors. He at once introduced Mayor Tracy, who in a ten-minute talk on behalf of Benson bid the Eagles welcome to the little town. At the opening of his speech he presented a large key of wood, painted in gold, to President Ryder.

Make It Bright with Use.

"This key," he said in making the presentation, "this grown rusty from disuse in Benson and we want you Eagles to make good use of it and see everything our little town has. This week Benson is yours."

We have sent the chief of police away on a vacation and the few officers we control we have escorted to Omaha to help that city take care of the crowd there during the week.

"Benson may not be the largest town in this state, but it is hospitable, and you can enjoy yourselves while you are here. We'll do all we can to show you a good time."

After these words of welcome the mayor defined the policy and intentions of the Eagles, as he understood them. "The Eagles," he continued, "wish to do the right thing by all their brothers. It is their wish to help each other. They do not fear aid."

"When a man is sick the Eagles will come to his aid. This fraternity is real one and there is no wrangling about giving up money to help the needy. "The Eagles are growing better, day by day, and they will soon come to be what their head officers want them to be. Benson and Nebraska will help them along. I trust, by leading in the forward movements."

President Ryder Speaks.

President Ryder, responding for the state aerie, thanked Mayor Tracy and Benson for its warm welcome and declared that he and his brothers appreciated what the little city was doing for them.

In the serious part of his speech he advised the Nebraska aerie what he believed to be the best thing for them to do in helping the grand aerie to progress. He said they should discuss in their convention, the matter of buildings, sick benefits and the social side of the fraternity, for by this method they would be able to start an uplift for the society.

"I am sure," he said, "that you delegates can get a great deal of good out of this convention and out of the national convention. It is your duty to take these good things back to your local aeries and study them out, so that your members can be benefited. "There are three vital things, as I look upon our work. These are the regulation of sick benefits, the social features and the discussions about uplifting the fraternity. "You may rest assured," he said, with one hand resting on the big key given him by the mayor, "that we will use this key in the right way and that we will give Benson reason to welcome us again. "The Eagles are proud of Benson; it is one of the best little cities in the grand aerie. This building which the local aerie has built here is a good-natured crack which has planned great things and has been looking up for substantial things. "President Ryder made his remarks brief in order that the convention should be held all that the next president of the grand aerie, Vice President Hering, had to say. "In a portion of a few light remarks, in which he took a good-natured crack at Omaha and the 8 o'clock closing law, he said he knew why people moved to South Omaha and Benson from Omaha. He said it was because they practically had to go to bed in Omaha at 8 o'clock. "The fraternity now is not running very smooth as regards sick benefits, and it is the duty of each aerie to study out better methods and reduce the cost of these benefits. It is imperative that each aerie should protect its old members. "A member of an aerie is transgressing upon his duties when he gives more time than he should to his aerie. He should not take his time away from his wife and family. There is no need of spending too much time in the buffets. "It would be well if the members would try to cut down the expensive banquets that are held so often each year. Make the social side of the fraternity less prominent than it has been in the past. "I feel that it is the duty of the Nebraska aeries to discuss these things and start a movement for better things. If they do the members from this state will soon be given better offices in the grand order."

Stoker in Evening.

Last evening was given over to a smoker and everybody had a good time. J. M. Tanner of South Omaha was chairman and the principal address was delivered by John Parry of San Francisco. He spoke of the work of the Eagles during and following the great earthquake and fire in that city and what the order accomplished in caring for members of that order and relieving suffering. The address was a most eloquent and convincing one. Others who spoke were Edward B. Gibbons, president of the Michigan state aerie, Detroit; Milton Growe, state chaplain, Owsco, Mich.; H. E. Mitchell, Altoona, Pa.; George B. Zimmerman, Williamsburg, Pa.; and L. Landis, Chadron, Neb.

spent a week in a city where you are appreciated. "Every Eagle feels grateful to Omaha, for we look upon this city as the starting place of our forefathers, the pioneers whose sons are now holding a convention in your city," said H. H. Thompson of Seattle, former grand worthy president of the Eagles. Mr. Thompson explained in closing that terms what the Eagles stood for and what was meant by their instincts, liberty, truth, justice and equality.

"As soon as I learned that an opera was to be put on in Omaha I immediately went to Munich, the home of Wagnerian opera, to be able to tell when I returned just how that opera would compare with your own production," said G. M. Hitchcock, editor of the World-Herald, speaking for the editors. "After listening for two weeks straight from 2:30 in the afternoon until 10:30 each evening I want to say that they haven't anything in Europe which can in any way compare with Paprika Schnitzel, from Bert Colton to Fred Paffenrath. I also saw forty-two attempts at Rheims, but not one could fly as some of the birds that are in Omaha this week."

The oprey will be produced again this evening and also Wednesday evening when the guests will be the visiting Eagles.
