pared by the delegates or other members be exempted at its sessions; papers prepared by the order and dealing with the work of the institution, discipline and advancement of the subordinate series may be read and discussed; entertainments of approved character may be held under convention auspices; recommendations to the grand aerie regarding the laws, or the order may be adopted; visitation of subordinate series for instruction and encouragement may be arranged for; and in general such work may be engaged in as will be effective in arousing enthusiasm among the members of the grand worthy president, and a copy of the minutes of every convention shall be promptly forwarded to the grand worthy president, who shall determine by his approval or veto whether any action therein recorded was had in violation of the laws or powers of the grand aerie.

It is elsewhere provided that only a past worthy president may be eligible to become president of a convention.

Under the present law of the order state organizations may be formed whenever there are two or more aeries in a state on petition of a majority of the aeries.

Fight on Amendment.
The committee provision was not satisfactory to the radical autonomists and it was attacked on the convention floor by Thomas H. Greevy of Pennsylvania and others. Mr. Greevy offered an amendment to allow any past worthy president to call a state convention instead of giving the power solely to the grand worthy president. This amendment was hotly debated, but was defeated by a vote of nearly 400 to 10.

The committee amendment was then adopted by a large majority. The state autonomists ascribe their defeat to the fact they were not well organized and were not united on any one plan of autonomy.

Some of them are satisfied with the committee plan, saying it is a step in the right direction. They express hopes that the powers of the state aeries will be enlarged by future grand aeries.

Among other provisions contained in the amendments proposed by the committee and adopted by the convention are these: Giving the grand aerie power to provide a ritual and rules and regulations for the local aeries.

Prohibiting the establishment of aeries in towns of less than 2,000 population.

Giving grand worthy president power to suspend an officer of the grand aerie for violation of the ritual, suspension to extend to the next meeting of the grand aerie.

Allowing grand worthy president to appoint deputy grand worthy presidents for special occasions and in any particular jurisdiction, the deputies to have all necessary powers of the grand worthy president.

Raising the amount paid by subordinate aeries to the grand aerie for paraphernalia from $20 to $25.

Providing no charter shall be issued until aerie has paid $25 and has sixty qualified applicants.

Changing the rule in regard to appeals from decision of the worthy president.

Providing uniform accounts for all aeries, establishing methods of keeping accounts and providing that aerie must keep their accounts in books provided by the grand aerie.

Providing all fees and dues must be paid in advance in order to entitle member to right to vote or to receive benefits.

Making it compulsory to drop members in arrears.

Says They Have Not Overcharged, but Have Stayed with Regular Rates.

Secretary Ryder of the Eagles' convention committee came to the defense of the Omaha hotel men Friday. At the session of the grand aerie he secured the floor for a few minutes and explained that the attack on the hotel men of this city had been unjustified, for there had been no raising of rates as had been alleged.

"The convention committee," he said, "published a list of the rates to be charged by the Omaha hotel men. This list was sent to every aerie in the country and nobody needed to pay more than the published prices."

"We have inquired at the hotels and have found that none of them charged prices higher than those published in our official list."

"I engaged several rooms before the convention for delegates who wrote me in advance stating just what kind of accommodations they desired. I have not heard a complaint from one of these men. The truth, indeed, is that many of them have come and thanked me for getting the rooms. Every man who has come to me has declared he received fine treatment at the hotels."

Harry Appelbaum Laments Departure of His Convention Twin, Charley O'Malley.

The convention twins have separated at last. Harry Appelbaum, private secretary to Tim Sullivan of New York, and a prominent delegate to the convention, in spite of his popularity walked the streets alone Friday. He was shunned by all other delegates and had to pursue his way even to the Paxton bar with only his own reflection in the mirror to keep him company.

The cause of his loneliness was that Charley O'Malley had gone home. These two had been glued together with apparently a Damon and Pythias devotion during the entire session. Together they walked the streets in the day time and they occupied the same bed at night. They were dubbed "the convention twins."

Consequently when O'Malley picked up his belongings and left early Applebaum found that in his devotion to his "twin" he had grown apart from all the other delegates. He is now wearing crepe and is trying to get familiar enough with some of the other delegates to chum up with them.

GIFT TO MONAGHAN DRAWS TEARS
Overcomes Retiring President, Whose Wife Lies Seriously Ill.

Retiring Grand Worthy President Bernard J. Monaghan was so nearly overcome Friday morning when the officers and members of the grand aerie presented him with a beautiful chest of silver that he was unable to finish his response to the presentation speech made by Eddie Hirsch of Baltimore.

Mr. Hirsch in his address said the gift was not offered for its intrinsic value, but as an expression of appreciation for the untiring work of the grand worthy president for the order.

A Very Special Sale of Discontinued Lines

This means something very different from discontinued styles. It means a complete revision of the various makes of PIANOS heretofore carried on our floors. It means a readjustment in what we conceive to be a better proposition or relation of one grade to another, so that we may be better able to give our piano patrons BIGGER VALUE for their money—grade for grade.

In order to quickly effect this purpose, we have decided to place on sale all of the pianos of several makes which we shall no longer handle, and make STARTLING PRICES move out these pianos rapidly.

In justice to the makers no names are given in connection with these pianos, but the figures tell the story. You must see the pianos, and note the various makes, to fully appreciate what this very special sale offers.
