GENERAL SMITH IN COMMAND

Troops Will Go Through Maneuvers at Fort Omaha Daily for the Benefit of Visitors to Ak-Sar-Ben.

Brigadier General Frederick A. Smith has assumed command of the provisional division of the regular army, now encamped and about to be encamped at Camp Thayer (Fort Omaha), during Ak-Sar-Ben. General order No. 1, which has just been issued, names this staff:

Personal Staff—First Lieutenant A. La Rue Christie, Eighth Cavalry, aide-de-camp.

Divisional Staff—Adjutant general, Major Daniel B. Devore, Eleventh Infantry; chief quartermaster, First Lieutenant Robert J. Reaney, Second Cavalry; chief commissary, First Lieutenant Robert J. Reaney, Second Cavalry; chief surgeon and sanitary inspector, Captain James W. Van Dusen, Medical corps.

The provisional division is organized with two brigades consisting of the following troops:

Provisional Cavalry Brigade—Colonel Frank West, Second Cavalry, commanding; Second Cavalry (less second squadron); first squadron, Fourth Cavalry; second squadron, Seventh Cavalry; second squadron, Fifteenth Cavalry.

Provisional Infantry Brigade—Colonel Cornelius Gardner, Sixteenth Infantry, commanding; Thirteenth Infantry (less first battalion); Sixteenth Infantry (less first battalion).

Company A, hospital corps, and Battery B, Sixth Field Artillery, will form separate commands.

All enlisted men will remain in their tents between "call to quarters" and "retreat" unless authorized to be absent on pass.

Passes to be absent after call to quarters will be issued only by regimental commanders and commanders of separate battalions and companies.

Enlisted men on pass visiting the city of Omaha will be required to present a neat appearance and wear dress uniform, with the blouse buttoned up. The service uniform, with blouse, or khaki colored shirt will be worn in camp.

LIGGETT HELD BLAMELESS
Discharged from Responsibility for the Death of John M. Campbell by Auto.

The charge of manslaughter against Guy Liggett has been effaced from the records at the order of the county attorney, who decided after the inquest into the death of John M. Campbell and the police court preliminary that there was no evidence on which to warrant holding or prosecuting Liggett.

Liggett was arrested some weeks ago on this charge when his auto struck Campbell and the latter died from a fracture of the skull sustained by falling to the pavement. But the evidence showed that Liggett was not to blame. Campbell alighted from a Sherman avenue car and failed to observe Liggett's auto, into which he ran before Liggett had time to save him. The wheels of the machine never struck the man. The machine was an electric car and it was not going at an excessive rate of speed, according to the evidence.

Sergeant Cole Explains the Disturbance that Arose Over Conduct of Drunken Car Man.

Sergeant Cole of the Signal Corps, takes exception to the version of the story relating to the assault on a conductor on the Florence line near Twenty-fourth and Fort streets Thursday evening.

"I was on the car myself," said the sergeant, "and witnessed the whole transaction. The conductor was drunk or apparently so and carelessly insulted a young woman passenger. A soldier of the Thirteenth Infantry, who was on the car returning to the fort took exception to the action of the conductor, who was a big, burly fellow, weighing twenty or thirty pounds heavier than the soldier. The conductor then applied several indecent and foul epithets to the soldier and the latter struck the conductor, knocking him down and then proceeded to punish him beautifully."

"Every person on the car applauded the act of the soldier and congratulated him for his gallantry and nerve. I do not know the name of the soldier. He was a stranger to me."

The story in reference to the nine members of the Thirteenth Infantry taking part in the disturbance at Thirtieth and Ames avenue, is also denied by Sergeant Cole.

"The soldiers were returning home from down town and happened to be at the point when they overheard some young hoodlums threatening to do something to the car as it came up. Through curiosity they stopped to see what was going on. They were not drunk nor boisterous. There was no cause for their arrest. They took no part in the affair and were exonerated when they returned to Camp Thayer."

Lieutenant Haskell said he was sorry the erroneous report had got out, for it might give the visitors, whom the soldiers were to help entertain, the wrong impression of the army men.

"We have had seven civilians come to the fort today," said the lieutenant, "to ask us not to punish these nine soldiers who were arrested, as they had nothing to do with the disturbance and that they, the civilians, knew this from what they had actually seen."

FEDERAL PRISONER INSANE

Frank Montony, Held for Stealing or Destroying Mail Pouch, is Deranged.

Frank Montony, a federal prisoner held on the charge of stealing or destroying a mail pouch at Lodge Pole, was brought down from Grand Island Friday by Deputy United States Marshal Logan Sammons to be examined as to his sanity. He was placed in the Douglas county jail and an examination of his mental condition was made by Dr. George Tilden, who found that Montony was deranged. He will be held here until a further disposition can be made of his case. He has not yet been tried for the crime charged against him.
