Woman's Work

Activities of the Organized Bodies Along the Lines of Undertaking of Concerns to Women.

The local executive committee of the Women's Christian Temperance Union finished its preliminary work for the coming national convention Wednesday afternoon. Practically all the necessary funds have been raised, but nearly 150 places of entertainment are still to be found for the visiting delegates. Headquarters for the convention will be opened at the Rome hotel next Thursday and the members of the national executive committee will be entertained there. These women will arrive Wednesday morning. The present headquarters of the local executive committee will be retained at the Young Men's Christian association.

Business men and others are co-operating heartily with the local committee in providing for the comfort of the visiting women. Automobiles have been promised to bring distinguished guests from the trains and others will be placed at the disposal of the reception committee. Telephones will be placed in the Auditorium for the convenience of the women and rest rooms and writing rooms will be furnished there for their comfort.

For the Future

Events of Interest That Are On the Local Social Calendar That Promise Much of Pleasure.

Complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paxton and their guests, Mrs. Randall of Galveston, Tex., and Mrs. Scofield of Cleveland, O., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkins will entertain at a bridge supper this evening at their home. Covers will be placed for thirty guests.

Omaha's delegation to the convention of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs at Lincoln returned this morning enthusiastic over the success of the meeting and with fresh inspiration for the year's work. Several returned Thursday afternoon, but the majority remained for Prof. Charles Zueblin's lecture, "Education and Life," the last evening. Mr. Zueblin fulfilled the promise of the program committee and a delegation of Lincoln and other women who attended the convention will come to Omaha to hear his lecture at the First congregational church this evening on "The Fellowship of the Common Life," to be given under the auspices of the Omaha Woman's club. Tickets will be on sale at the church.

Thursday afternoon the women of Florence met at the home of Mrs. A. B. Hunt and organized a club for the study of Shakespeare. The club has taken its name from the play of Cymbeline and will be known as the Imogen Study Club of Florence. It is planned to take up one of the modern authors along with its work and to spend a half hour each club day with topics pertaining to the welfare of the city of Florence. Hamlet has been chosen as the study for this year. One unique feature of the club is that gossiping is to be positively prohibited. The charter members are Mrs. Robert Olmsted, Mrs. W. A. Yoder, Mrs. B. Hunt, Mrs. Charles Cottrell, Mrs. A. B. Thompson, Miss Prudence Tracy, Mrs. B. C. Fowler, Mrs. George Slett, Mrs. Marion C. Cox, and Mrs. Clifton P. Richardson. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: Mrs. Cottrell, president; Mrs. W. H. Thompson, vice president; Mrs. Richardson, secretary; Mrs. Hunt, treasurer. A pleasant half hour was spent, with music and refreshments. The club will meet once in three weeks.

A postponed meeting of the department of philosophy and ethics of the Woman's movement held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. C. Vincent, Nineteenth and Harney streets.

Other Women Who Drive Cars Have Trouble Also

Omaha women who run their own cars do not appreciate the difficulties and inconveniences they would have in some of the larger cities, and especially in foreign countries. Madam Johanna Gadski, the prima donna, who was heard here last night in concert, is quite an enthusiastic driver, and while motoring in Berlin the singer had the misfortune of hitting a policeman with her car and injuring his dignity. Her description of the incident is amusing.

weeks ago, just before I sailed for America, I had to go to a still higher court. "There were five judges, and the oh! terrible ordeal lasted several hours. The judges said I must go to the street to show that I could drive the car. Outside were all the spluttering policemen and many cab drivers. But I showed that I could drive, and the judges, after a long, solemn talk, decided that I could keep my license, provided I wouldn't bump into any other policeman."

Whether pouring his own tea or reading the newspaper, Teddy is painted or stained on the material in brown shades, and lightly touched with the needle to give proper relief to the massive figure of the animal. As in china models, the black cat has found favor with designers of needlework. It is mostly stenciled or cut out and painted on the chair back to decorate, not by its beauty, but on account of the reminiscences the sight of this domestic animal evokes. A black cat, superstition asserts, used to be the familiar of witches. Being an enemy to all constraint, a cat was considered the true symbol of liberty, and for this reason placed by the Romans at the feet of their Goddess of Liberty. Pussy, through the dilation and contraction of its orb, symbolical of waxing and waning of the night goddess, was worshipped by the Egyptians as the emblem of the moon and one of the favorites of Diana.

Embroidery Again

LOVELY embroideries, often displaying artistic designs carried out in a striking scheme of coloring and clever shading, are coming daily more to the fore and within the possibility of small purses and inexperienced workers. Even the trifling trouble of veining transfers is dispensed with to save annoyance to beginners, who find truly pleasing contents, more or less intricate, ready traced on a large assortment of articles in daily use, with a piece begun to show at once the effect of various stitches employed and of the subtle blendings of the new lustrous cottons produced in a bewildering range of shades. Some of these decorative knickknacks, such as boxes, frames and blotters, are even sold semi-mounted. No wonder that with all these aids the art of embroidery is taking on a wonderful development in every home.

WHAT'S THE USE OF WARSHIPS

How Electric Shocks Could Send Whole Fleets to the Bottom.

Lewis Nixon of New York, shipbuilder, graduate of the United States Naval Academy, and for several years one of the chief constructors of the American navy, flouts the theory that the airship in any of its forms will become a formidable war machine.

Instead, Mr. Nixon believes that the death-dealing terror of the war of the future will be the electric shock.

This conclusion has been forced upon his judgment by a careful study of the subject of new war agencies and by closely watching the maneuvers of the Wright aeroplane as it called up the Hudson recently and circled the representatives of the world's greatest navies.

In Mr. Nixon's opinion, warships can guard against the danger of explosives that might be dropped upon them by airships by specially prepared armor. He believes, though, that sooner or later there will be perfected a gun or some other piece of mechanism for hurling a thunderbolt that will shock to death every man aboard a warship, irrespective of its protection.

"I am convinced," said Mr. Nixon to an American reporter, "that the thing could be done now, but the mechanism is so crude that the thunderbolt, or electric impulse, would kill the man who should release it, as well as the enemy. It is possible, of course, that some foreign nation already has perfected the necessary machine with which to hurl this deadly bolt. I hope, however, that it has not been done. When the principle is mastered the result will make war so horribly destructive that the human race, through the sheer force of nature's first law—self-preservation—will abolish war."

"The aeroplane is mainly interesting now on account of the fact of what may grow from it. Possibly we shall see them like swarms of giant locusts flying over an beyond armies, to occupy positions and to cut off communications.

"For purposes of observation they will be of great use. The helicopter, owing to its smaller dimensions, seems best adapted to such uses, especially to be carried on men-of-war.

"So far as I can see, the dirigible which will combine much that the aeroplane is now proving out, is the ship of the future."—New York American.

CARS CARRY DEAD WEIGHT

Sleeping Car Train Most Costly Method of Transportation.

The most extravagant and costly method of transportation in the world is the sleeping car train, which carries two tons of dead weight for every passenger moved. The great weight of passenger cars is due in no small measure to the great length to which these cars have grown in recent years. The body of a modern "sleeper," over seventy feet in length, supported on a truck at each end, may be regarded structurally as a bridge carried on two end pierce. And in the case of the car, as of the bridge, the bending stresses tend to break it in two, and therefore the weight of material necessary to resist those stresses increases in a much more rapid ratio than the length. Moreover, the concentration

The Cheerful Druggist.

"You seem to be doing a good business," said the meter reader to the druggist. "It's unusually good tonight," replied the cheerful druggist. "I've had seven patrons who asked to see the city directory, five who used the telephone, eleven who bought postage stamps and one who wanted me to remove his porous plaster. It's a rush of business like this that makes a druggist wish he had been brought up a motorman, or a truck driver."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
