OMAHANS SEE GREAT WEALTH

Say Nevada Mine Continues to Give Forth Free Gold in Abundance.

LEASES MADE OUT TO EXPERTS

Frank Johnson Says They Have Already $500,000 in Pure Gold and Experts Pronounce the Mine Genuine.

Frank B. Johnson, R. J. Kilpatrick, Frank T. Ransom, A. L. Mohler and other Omaha men interested in the big gold strike at Battle Mountain, Nev., have returned from the mine and are just as enthusiastic as when the strike was first made.

"We are not going crazy over this thing until we find out just what we have," said Mr. Johnson. "I don't know much about mines, and all I can tell about is what I can see. I know we have over $500,000 worth of gold in sight and the experts say that all indications are we have a real mine. We have distinct indications of a fissure vein."

The Omaha company own outright five claims of twenty acres each, or 100 acres, and has a large force sinking a shaft, and the mine is said to have every indication of being a winner. At any rate, the mining experts in that section seem to think that way and big offers have been made to the Omaha men for their stock, but all refuse to sell.

The company has made fourteen leases to experts, who will sink shafts on the claims and give the company one-half of the gold they mine. The town is building up fast and people are pouring in faster than number, can be secured to build shelter for them. Town lots are selling fast and the town is building rapidly. This is not idle talk of promoters, as they brought back photographs of the rising town to substantiate what they say.

Fourteen Leases Made.

According to the conditions precedent in arranging with the Nevada-Omaha Mining and Milling company, owners of the rich strike in this camp, for leases, fourteen lessees Saturday began fulfilling the subsequent conditions—those who have 25-foot blocks must put in twenty-five shifts per month and those having 50-foot blocks fifty shifts per month. In consequence all day is heard the boom of the blast, which, added to the hammer of the carpenters at work on the buildings in the town at the foot of Treasure Hill has awakened the echoes clear across the twelve-mile flat, to the surrounding hills, and given notice to the world that Nevada's gold production will be vastly increased the next twelve months, as well as its population of hustling workers.

In the preliminary work on the part of these lessees there has not been one who has not found good and valuable panning values, which either demonstrated he is on the strike of the big find or has found cross or parallel ledges of value.

The holding company is aiding very materially to the ultimate end. It has arranged for a telephone line connection, has organized a water and light company, planned for a mill of ample proportions to meet all demands, is constructing an assay office, and some of the stockholders are aiding in the construction of a two-story hotel. The two and a half years' time since the leases show a liberality seldom met with and the royalties are also highly satisfactory to the lessees, ranging from 10 to 50 per cent, the latter on ores returning $100 gold to the ton.

As to their "glory hole," there is no diminution in width of high grade streak nor depth of the ore body; in fact, yesterday developed free gold on either side of the wonderfully rich streak.

List of the Lessees.

Here is a list of the lessees, with the block of ground allotted to them:

Block 1—Nevada-Omaha Mining and Leasing company, 200x300 feet of the Limelite claim south of block 2 and nearly half of Valley View No. 1, and 150x300 feet in the northeast corner of the south half of the Valley View. This ground has produced some very rich pannings and assays, some going as high as $700 and a contract for a tunnel 60 feet long is now under way.

Block 2—C. H. Mayer of Rockford, Ill., and Frank L. Reber of Gold Circle, 200x300 feet on the Limelite adjoining the holding company's block to the southeasterly and from which the rich ore is being taken today. The Mayer shaft is down more than twenty feet and a cross ledge, very strong, has been uncovered. This is a good quartz panning well and free gold can be discovered under the glass.

Block 3—Alec Walker, the discoverer of the Valley View group and the Limelite, 200x300 feet adjoining the company block to the northwesterly. Close to the main strike free gold specimens have been unearthed and the other holes produce some rich pannings.

Blocks 4 and 6—J. T. Jones of Ouray, Colo.; J. W. Minnis of Goldfield, Louis Purcell of Reno and others have organized the Bannock Mining and Leasing company on these two blocks. No. 4 200x300 feet and joins block 3 to the northwesterly. There is no doubt today but that they are on the strike of the main ledge and in addition have a parallel ledge and two cross ledges, all of which pan rich gold. Furthermore, there is every evidence that they have a juncture of two of the ledges and at this point a shaft will be sunk. Yesterday's shot in one of the prospect holes disclosed a highly oxidized porphyry, the rock that carries the rich values of the mill. Block 6 is the northwest corner of the Limelite and a southeast portion of the Valley View, joining block 4.

Block 5—O. P. Blom of Battle Mountain, 100x450 feet on the southwesterly end of Valley View No. 1, adjoining the Mayer and Walker leases and also that of the company; the Mayer cross ledge cannot be missed in this ground. Some very rich float was picked up on the lower end of this ground, which was thickly impregnated with free gold and the surface ground has shown lots of colors by the pan.

Block 7—C. L. Haworth of Austin, Nev., 50x300 feet, northern end of Valley View No. 1.

Block 8—C. Roberson and C. W. Roberts of Goldfield, irregular shaped block on south half of Valley View.

Block 9—Walker Murray of Battle Mountain, north half of Valley View.

Block 10—Campbell & Kearns of Reno, north half of Valley View No. 3.

Block 11—Paul Keel of Colorado Springs and Alec Walker, south half of Valley View No. 2, which sidelines partly Nos. 1 and 2. Good pannings on new workings. This block with block 3 will constitute part of the property Messrs. Keel and Walker will put into a company.

Block 12—George Hailey of Hailey, Idaho, 300x300 feet on the Limelite, near the center, joining block 3 and the company block on the west. The tunnel which the company is running to crosscut the rich ledge encountered a stringer of ore on this ground that panned well.

Block 13—John Hug and Slim Johnson, on western end of Limelite adjoining blocks 2 and 4.

Block 14—Harry S. Wessell and W. H. Conner, north half of Valley View No. 2.

Block 15—B. F. Bogart of Seven-Troughs, east end of Limelite. Mr. Bogart looked over the ground for the first time on October 14 and was well enough satisfied with Red Cross Gives Out Stamp Selling Plans All Over U.S.

Association Everywhere in Country Make This Announcement on the Same Day.

Mrs. Albert Edholm, the Omaha representative of the National Red Cross association of the United States, Tuesday gave out the preliminary announcement of the association plan for selling its stamps this year for the anti-tuberculosis work.

"Originally," said Mrs. Edholm, "the national association was to have one-third of the proceeds for its work in advertising, getting out the stamps and circulars and for administrative expenses generally. Now, a new arrangement has been made, and the local organization will retain 80 per cent of the money realized from the sale of stamps. This money will be devoted to anti-tuberculosis work in the local field."

"We probably shall offer the stamps for sale after Thanksgiving. They will cost 1 cent apiece and, judging by the success of the stamps last year, we should dispose of a great many here. All over the country the work has been systematized now, and the national organization will carry on an extensive advertising campaign. The increased percentage to be realized locally will undoubtedly inspire the workers to greater efforts than ever, since we shall be able to acquire funds for far more effective work in the local fields."

GOVERNOR MEETS FRIENDS

Shallenberger, Harrington and Other Democrats Hold Quiet Session on Political Expediency.

Gov. Shallenberger slipped into town from Lincoln yesterday and M. F. Harrington from O'Neill and they and other well known democrats of Omaha had some heart-to-heart talking on the subject of bank guarantee laws, political expediencies and kindred topics, from which, it is understood, sprang no decisions for a reversal of the governor's determination not to call an extra session of the legislature to enact another bank guarantee law.

Chairman Reagan, former Chairman Tom Flynn and the candidates projected around among the committee members for several weeks before they settled upon the boiler inspector for the care of the active campaign work. George Rogers was wanted originally for this position, but pleaded too much business. The boiler inspector's work takes him all over the city, argued the managers, and he has a wide acquaintance with the ward and precinct workers, so it was finally decided to let him handle the funds and do the organizing.

It did not take long for the news of Wolfe's appointment to spread among the leaders who are always willing to work at election time for a consideration that will reimburse them for time lost. As a result the city boiler inspector is finding that the position is not one conducting to peace of mind. He is meeting with a continual demand for funds to do work in the various wards and from now on he will devote considerable time to dodging charges that he doesn't think can deliver the goods. Those who can will have free access to Mr. Wolfe, who reckons to get very busy with the outside work of organizing at once.

Earl Keller, who has lived for years at the entrance of Fairmount park, Council Bluffs, is not the Earl Keller who got into an unfortunate situation in a Ninth street resort in Council Bluffs Sunday night, but he is suffering much uneasiness of mind just the same, for fear his friends may think he is the man.

This Earl Keller is but 22 years of age and is newly married. The man who got his name on the police blotter also lived in Council Bluffs, but he was about 40 years of age.
