

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE

FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER

VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR

Entered at Omaha postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily Bee (without Sunday), one year, $4.00...

OFFICES. Omaha—The Bee Building.

Communications relating to news and editorial matter should be addressed: Omaha Bee, Editorial Department.

REMITTANCES. Remit by draft, express or postal order payable to The Bee Publishing Company.

STATEMENT OF CIRCULATION. State of Nebraska, Douglas County, ss: George B. Tasechuk, treasurer of The Bee Publishing Company...

Table with 3 columns: Circulation category, Amount, Total. Includes rows for Daily average, Total, Returned copies, etc.

Notary Public. Subscribers leaving the city temporarily should have The Bee mailed to them.

It's a hard times campaign in Nebraska, all right, on both sides of the political fence.

Having torn Nicaragua asunder, the rebels will undoubtedly make the people pay for the rent.

That person who is advocating the making of pants without pockets never could have been a boy.

Havana quotations of eggs at $2 a dozen must mean that Cuban hen has stopped laying again.

Have you registered this year? If not, your last chance to register comes next Saturday, October 23.

When the coal barons tried to bribe Mayor Schnépp of Springfield he simply gave the schnapp away.

In maintaining an open door at Panama it is evident that Uncle Sam intends to keep his hand on the bolt.

The trouble with the good resolutions being directed at the Spanish king is that he broke them before they were made.

Senator Lorimer of Illinois, back from his watch on the Rhine, has a plan to control the mainspring of the Mississippi.

Parisians will be ready enough to discount their notes when those American singers begin their raid upon the banks of the Seine.

The effort to foster a presidential boom for the governor of Ohio may be construed as a move toward harmony in the democratic camp.

The ruddy spashes with which Gary began his riotous career as a full-fledged city indicates an ambition to change the vowel in its name.

It turns out that it was his cleverness in the crockery business that enabled the late Mr. Buchanan to become a success in handling diplomatic china.

On his first visit to Tammany's quarters Judge Gaynor innocently wondered where the tiger was. Probably concealed in a brass tube at one of the polls.

Judge Gaynor's assurance to the braves in the Tammany wigwag that he intended to stamp out graft must have amused the chief keeper of the wampum.

The master bakers, now in convention here, put the high price of bread over onto the Board of Trade speculators, who, they insist, are getting all the dough.

If we could strike a balance between the newcomers to Omaha and those who are occasionally removing from the city the result would still be largely in our favor.

Chicago's action in taking from the fire department control of the safe-guarding of places of amusement emphasizes how speedily the lessons of such a visitation as the Iroquois theater fire are forgotten in a busy city.

Governor Shallenberger talks about the deposit guaranty fund being a tax, but not even the Oklahoma decision upholds it as an exercise of the taxation power.

The Oklahoma law was sustained by the state supreme court only as a police regulation, and if it is upheld finally it will be on this ground.

More "Nullification."

As if it were not enough for the courts to nullify the laws by which our democratic legislature sought to nullify the constitution, we now have a flagrant case of nullification by the democratic party managers themselves.

Among the great reform measures put on the statute books of Nebraska by the late democratic legislature is one amending the corrupt practices act designed to make it fence high and barbed wire tight.

But lo and behold, the time approaches and passes and no report from any democratic treasurer showing money on hand, or contributions received in excess of the sum of $25.

Only after this default is proclaimed in the public prints does the democratic national committee come to the front, claiming to be the treasurer of the state committee, with a sworn declaration that, although he is the nominal treasurer, no money has come in to him or gone out from him.

The law is very explicit that all campaign funds must pass through the hands of a duly constituted treasurer, and it is notorious that the democrats have spent money.

Nullification No. 1. In the second place, the law requires the filing of a sworn statement by the treasurer not later than the fifteenth day before election, but none was filed by the democrats.

Nullification No. 2. In the third place, the law requires this statement to include not only all contributions in excess of $25, but also "the source of any money discovered in such treasurer's hands at the beginning of the campaign."

Great is "nullification" when committed by democrats in the name of reform and the democratic party.

A New Uplifting Influence.

One of the signs of the times is the share being taken by the great department stores of the large cities in the movement for social uplift.

The spectacular feature of any new movement, is of course, that which gets the widest publicity, and the careless public has noted only that the stores have begun the abolition of "rats" from hair, and frills and furrows from costumes.

The democratic platform adjuration not to vote for a democratic candidate because he is a democrat is now completely repudiated.

According to the sworn statement of the treasurer of the democratic committee not one dollar has come into his hands for the current campaign from anyone contributing more than $25.

Even more personal is the work being quietly and effectively done behind the scenes through the employment of experienced and womanly women who conduct an individual campaign to inspire among the clerks a brighter and higher outlook in life.

While rival claimants to sensational achievement are striving to wrest each other's laurels, it is refreshing to turn to a man, who in the same field of endeavor and glory has steadfastly pursued his way with honor, maintaining the confidence and esteem of men by attending strictly to his own business.

Like Peary and like Cook, Abruzzi has spent much of his life in striving to wrest from the earth the secrets which it has stubbornly withheld from man.

With a record of achievement that the scientific world and that all thoughtful men marvel at and honor, Abruzzi has remained as modest as he has been industrious.

It is impossible to avoid the suspicion that Attorney General Wickensham will not be detected in the act of weeping.

with an American heiress, he withdrew to the summits of the Himalayas and continued his work.

Americans divided in allegiance between the fault-finding Peary and the complacent, but flamboyant Cook, may well pause to consider for sage reflection the case of that inveterate explorer, Abruzzi, a worthy example of the man diligent in his business who shall stand among kings.

Maintaining the Ancient Landmarks.

One of the pleasantest features of the celebration of Cornwallis day at Yorktown is the reminder that this is one of the ancient landmarks of the nation that has been preserved in all its original integrity.

Old Yorktown stands today practically as it stood on that memorable occasion when the surrender of the British general ended the Revolutionary struggle.

In the tremendous progress of the American people since that day when Cornwallis laid down his sword, they have in too many cases been heedless of the sacred spots where the early struggles were fought out.

Our local democratic contemporary has discovered that our form of government has been all wrong ever since the founders of the republic framed the constitution.

Evidence is not lacking that the railroads err in thinking the time ripe for an increase in freight rates.

Let young men turn to the skilled trades and they will find remunerative employment in a field much closer to the competition of women will never drive them.

The democratic platform adjuration not to vote for a democratic candidate because he is a democrat is now completely repudiated.

Secretary Wilson, who has been touring New York state investigating the conditions and causes of abandoned farms, says that the trouble is with the farming and not with the farms.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

epiously if all the Panama libel cases are thrown out of court.

Taking Note of the Curves.

Washington Post. The Crane incident served to give notice to Japan that its diplomatic curves were not being overlooked.

How Did They Escape?

Chicago Record-Herald. Nineteen deaths resulted from base ball during the season just ended. It is a curious fact that no umpires were among the killed.

Omaha's Sartorial Freak.

St. Paul Pioneer Press. At the Omaha banquet to the president, one guest wore a dress suit with a red necktie. It has not been reported whether he was a native of St. Louis or of Houston, Tex.

An Answer Off Hand.

Minneapolis Journal. James J. Hill has promised to contribute to a magazine an article entitled, "What Must We Do to Be Fed?"

Development of Ocean Travel.

New York World. At a time of celebrations in honor of early navigators the departure of the ocean liner Cleveland on a voyage around the world is of interest.

Litigation Over Railroad Pass.

Boston Transcript. The United States supreme court has an interesting free pass question before it.

Soothing Effect of Time.

Philadelphia Record. We have happy evidence that the Mexican war occurred a very great while ago.

Who Will Cut the Melon.

Indianapolis News. Evidence is not lacking that the railroads err in thinking the time ripe for an increase in freight rates.

Chances for Young Men.

Denver Republican. Let young men turn to the skilled trades and they will find remunerative employment.

Reclaiming Abandoned Farms.

Boston Herald. Secretary Wilson, who has been touring New York state investigating the conditions and causes of abandoned farms, says that the trouble is with the farming and not with the farms.

Objections to a Party Conference to Outline Policies.

Washington Post. Mr. Bryan's policy issues from the mangle loudly protesting that he does not want a national conference and cannot see why anybody else should want it.

MR. BRYAN'S FEARS.

Washington Post. It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

It is certain, for instance, that American millionaires are much more admired in Europe than in their own country.

Harriman at Home

Italian Historian Struck by Lack of Admiration for Noted Railroad Financier in This Country.

In his article on America and the Americans, published in the Paris Figaro, the celebrated Italian historian, Guglielmo Ferrero, selects E. H. Harriman as an American type from which to draw deductions.

"In the course of my recent journey to the United States," says Ferrero, "I did not become acquainted with Harriman. I was invited to take luncheon with him two or three days before the time set for my departure to Europe.

"One morning, at my hotel, I received a visit from a young man, thin, clean-shaven, with gold-rimmed spectacles, a sweet smile, kindly eyes, a gentle voice and the face of an ascetic.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"Some days after that I was dining at the home of a wealthy family. The mistress of the house, a very pious Catholic, asked me, in her turn, whether I was acquainted with Mr. Harriman.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

"I answered that I did not. "Too bad," he rejoined. "In him you might see the ultimate incarnation of this evil force. He is a man of a superior sort—there is no use denying that. But it is no less certain that he has made the most detestable use of his brilliant qualities.

DR PRICES CREAM Baking Powder Made from Pure Grape Cream of Tartar

Surpasses every other leavening agent in making healthful, delicious food NO ALUM

PERSONAL NOTES.

The exchange of compliments between Presidents Taft and Diaz lifts us almost to the dignified status held by the gumdrop.

The president's summer residence is closed, and Beverly can now enjoy that supreme calm which has for some time pervaded Oyster Bay.

Five thousand striking needle workers, all of them women, have been led to victory in New York by a woman. They literally had their employers by the throat.

Employees of the government printing office recently hazed some new members of the service, and were promptly fired. Many a college would be benefited by a study of governmental methods of handling rowdies.

Correspondents having provided Abruzzi with a wife, but without giving to the public the slightest assurance that the young people ever heard of each other, have now presented him with a throne.

New York state next month is to vote upon a proposed constitutional amendment increasing the salaries of the supreme court judges in all the districts outside of Greater New York from $7,300 to $10,000.

The judges of this court in the two New York City districts are now paid $17,000, and no change is proposed there.

What power lies in the telephone and the press, knitting closer every day the brotherhood of man, a woman in New York by telephoning to Chicago enables the police to identify the body of her brother by his scars.

REFORM IN PROCEDURE.

Practically Unanimous Approval of President Taft's Plan. Green Bag. President Taft has strengthened the cause of the reform of procedure by adding the weight of his authority to that of the American Bar association.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

The demand for uniformity and symmetry in the political institutions of the several states constituting a vast republic is based on an assumed likeness in their different communities which does not always exist.

EVERY pound of OLD GOLDEN COFFEE is chosen from "Old Crop Stocks," sufficiently aged to develop the rich mellow flavor and fragrant aroma.