CUMING STREET PAVING ON

Work of Laying Brick Has Been Begun at Last.

WILL BE PUSHED FOR WINTER

One Obstacle to Progress Has Been the Difficulty in Getting Labor, Says City Engineer Craig.

Work has been begun on the paving of Cumming street, at Twenty-fifth avenue. City Engineer Craig has been bringing pressure to bear on the contractor for the paving, Hugh Murphy, and on the street railway company. The brick has been laid along the sidewalk for months, but the company did not have it iron delivered, and after the rails came it was found that proper fish plates had not been ordered, which caused further delay.

Now the proposition is to begin the laying of new rails and to put down the brick paving from Twenty-fifth east as far as the work can be done before the winter weather stops it. Then the city engineer's department will make temporary repairs on the unfinished portion of the street, to make it passable until the paving can be finished in the spring.

The track laying and paving on Fifteenth street will be about finished this week and the street railway company will then move its crews from Fifteenth to the Cumming street job.

"In fairness to the contractors and the company," said Mr. Craig, "it should be said that labor has been very scarce in Omaha this season for this kind of work. I note today that the street railway people are advertising for men at increased wages, 20 cents an hour and street car fare. That ought to bring the men needed. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Murphy has paid as high as $4 a day for teams and $5 to $10 for a horse and driver for this kind of teams. That's pretty stiff pay for that kind of work and even then teams were not plentiful."

In all of the new track construction on the streets the city engineer has been insisting on better work in building the foundation with rock and iron ties, better ballasting and work all around that will wear.

Falls from Wagon, Boy is Killed

Five-Year-Old Lad Falls from Furniture Van and Dies Few Minutes Later.

The attempt of Phillip Zeigman, 5 years of age, to take a ride on a drag wagon, while at play on the street Tuesday afternoon, resulted in his death. The little boy started to climb up on a furniture van at Twentieth and Grace streets, and losing his hold fell back on the pavement. He received injuries which caused his death a few minutes later.

David Schreiber, his playmate, a lad of the same age, called for help. Dr. J. J. Solomon came from his office nearby and, recognizing the injured boy, picked him up and carried him to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Zeigman, 1528 North Twenty-first street. The boy died a moment after he reached home.

Dr. E. R. Porter was called and examining the boy found that no bones were broken. It is not believed that the wagon struck him. An inquest will be held by Coroner Healey this morning. Charles Ewing, tender for the Beebe & Runyan Furniture company, who was driving the wagon from which the child fell, knew nothing of the accident until stopped by a pedestrian. He reported the accident to the police and went to the scene.

An inquest into the death of Phillip Zeigman, the boy who was killed while trying to ride a furniture van on North Twentieth street Tuesday afternoon, resulted in the exoneration of Charles Ewing, driver of the wagon, and his company, the Beebe & Runyan Furniture company.

His little boy was found to have come to his death through contact with some blunt instrument or object, possibly the wagon or the pavement.

Governor Sells Cattle at Auction

Shallenberger Puts Shorthorns on the Block and Other State Dignitaries Bid.

With the air of a prosperous farmer, Governor Shallenberger strode about the sales pavilion at the South Omaha Union stock yards. Wednesday afternoon, looking over a bunch of sleek Shorthorns, raised on his farm at Alma. The satisfaction of the gubernatorial chair never inspired a more contented appearance than that of the real Nebraska farmer worn by the governor. Blue grass and corn made that look like good beef and good cattle that will be a pride after political fortunes have faded.

The sale of the governor's herd began at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The presence of a number of notable people of the state paid a pretty compliment to the governor's cattle. In the throng of bidders were Dean Burnett and Prof. H. R. Smith of the state agricultural college, Regent Copeland of the state university of Nebraska, Chris Gunther, Shallenberger's personal campaign manager and H. F. Burns of Minneapolis, a prominent breeder of Shorthorns. Colonel E. M. Woods was the auctioneer.

Fodick had bought an overcoat and sweater for himself, a coat for his wife and a coat and new hat for his little daughter. The goods cost him $95 and $95, supposed to be the remainder of the $90, was found in a drawer in the home of the family.

Street Car Line Will Be Built Past the Exchange

Tracks Are to Be Extended at Once Through the Union Stock Yards.

Agreement has been reached between the Union Stock Yards company of South Omaha, the Street Railway company and the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company, whereby the latter is to build at once an extension in South Omaha.

The extension will start at Twenty-fourth and O streets, cross the O street viaduct and run to the Union Stock Yards Exchange building. It will then extend in a northerly direction through the yards, over the Boulevard to L street and west along L street to the Burlington tracts at Thirty-sixth streets. The cars known as the South Omaha, via Twenty-fourth street, cars will be run over the new line.

An effort has been made for some years to get the street railway company to build out L street, across the L street viaduct. This viaduct has been found unsafe for heavy cars and for some time an effort has been made to have it replaced by a new viaduct. The new plan will give service to the people of West L street without having to cross the L street viaduct.

The party occupying the special car was Clarence H. Mackay, C. C. Adams, third vice president of the company and Colonel Harvey. They arrived over the Northwestern on the Overland Limited at 7:10 a. m., and left about 10 o'clock on the fast mail, nearly three hours late. The mail was a little late in starting. The men were most enthusiastic of the contemplated spin across Nebraska on the Union Pacific, especially when they were told that they would pass the Overland before it was out of Nebraska.

"We will try to keep up with the progress of the west," said Mr. Mackay, who is a westerner by birth, being a son of one of the millionaires who made their money in the early days of California. He gave out the information that the Postal company is now stringing a large number of new circuits through the west, using the heaviest copper wire which went 48 pounds to the mile. It is said that the company was stringing new circuits from Salt Lake to San Francisco, following the Southern Pacific. New circuits will pass through Omaha, one new wire being now placed between Omaha and Chicago and two new wires to Denver.

Mr. Mackay said the business of the company was great and that it had got back to the high peak it reached in 1906-07. Mr. Adams, vice president of the company, said they were on a trip of inspection to the Pacific coast and before returning would travel 10,000 miles.

Cruelties of the Congo. BROKEN BOW, Neb., Oct. 19.—To the Editor of The Bee: I was much interested in your editorial, "Congo Horror Again," April 18, 1908. It leads into a realm of wonderful possibilities in political thought.

What right has the highest civilization of the times to close its eyes to the atrocious crimes committed by foreign rulers upon their subjects? What right to close its ears to the wailing cry of outraged human beings because, forsooth, the accident of birth has placed them in a less favored land? The poor Russian Jew in his native land has borne the torture of the cruel, murderous Cossack by generations, while the civilized world has blushed with shame that such atrocities are possible in this twentieth century. The poor Armenian has felt the dagger of the ruthless Turk while the civilized nations have looked on without a protest. Cruelties beyond all description have been practiced in Guatemala and other so-called republics.

These things exist in every half civilized country of the world, where either because of their impotence, law and order cannot be enforced or because of their viciousness, cruel, selfish, ambitious rulers, devoid of human feeling, destroy those who stand in their way. What shall the civilized nations of the world do about it? Are we or are we not our brother's keeper? Have we the right to intervene as we did in Cuba? Have we reached the point where the poet's dream may become a reality?

Would it be possible to have a federation composed of representatives of the civilized nations of the world to whom these things are reported, and who should decide when their respective governments might intervene? Or shall the savage and semi-savage peoples of the world be left to work out their own salvation and come up to our standard along the slow and devious bloodstained trail that we have traveled? Does the position we occupy in the world as it is, or as we are or are we not our brother's keeper? Have we the right to intervene as we did in Cuba? Have we reached the point where the poet's dream may become a reality?

Each member of the police department will be given two days leave of absence on full pay as a recognition of faithful services during the last six weeks. The police department has been called upon to do considerable extra work during this period, which includes a convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, the strike of the street car men and various events. Chief Donahue recommended to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners that they recognize the meritorious services by granting this privilege and the recommendation was adopted unanimously. The men will be given the leave of absence when their services can be spared. A few will be allowed the privilege at a time so as not to disable the department.

The Anti-Sunday Theatre Society made application to the board to order all places of amusement and entertainment to be closed on Sunday. The communication was received at the meeting last night and it was referred to one of the committees. The communication reads as follows: The Anti-Sunday Theatre Society of America requests of your honorable body that all Sunday be observed by the city of Omaha and that all places of amusement, shows, theaters, concert halls and public places of amusement or entertainment be ordered closed and stay closed. If these places were closed the people would remain at home or attend the Sunday services at the churches.

J. H. Jameson of Kemmerer, Wyo.; Lee Marvin of Schuyler and H. R. To this must be added $400 for hospital drugs, transportation and printing.

The health commissioner insists that he needs more help instead of being made to get along with less. As a means to getting at least part of the $2,000 needed, he suggests that there will be a balance of $100 left in the Emergency hospital fund, which the council might find a way to transfer, and urges that the council take steps to provide the necessary fund to prevent the alternative of discharging the larger part of his force.

Councilmen Bridges, Brucker and McGovern balked on the resolution to spend $200 to light the street five nights during the Women's Christian Temperance union convention, but the other nine members voted for the resolution. Bridges said the money should be spent for lights out in the wards at points where there are none. Brucker would give it to the poor rather than spend it on lighting. McGovern would devote it to lights and to roads so that his constituents could get in their winter coat.

Council Berka maintained that the women needed light as much as organizations of men. "They need more light," vouchsafed Councilman Brucker.

The argument was participated in by Sheldon, Funkhouser and Davis favorably to the resolution, and the opponents did not go any further than to express disapproval of the president being established.

City Clerk Butler presented to the council the petition ordinance for a reduction of street car fares, also a resolution in its favor from the South Side Property Owners' club. He likewise brought in a letter from the State Railway commission, telling the council it has no money to make any reduction in fares. The street railway at the present time and advising the council to have the valuation made at its own expense. These things went to the committee of the whole.

Advice of Colonel Harvey to Mackay with His Postal.

EDITOR SAYS BUILD FOR FUTURE

He, Head of Big Telegraph Company and C. C. Adams Stop in Omaha on Their Tour of the West.

"I talked with Mr. Mackay until 2 o'clock this morning to try to show him that this entire country is booming and that he must build for the future or his company will be swamped," said Colonel George Harvey, editor of Harpers, as he sat nursing a shoulder broken in an automobile ride in the private car of Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company and multi-millionaire. "I am most optimistic of the future and especially since we have been traveling in the glorious west which refused to go backwards during the panicky times of two years ago. The requirements of the next ten years will be greater than can be cared for by the telegraph companies and the same observation applies to railroads unless they move fast."

The party occupying the special car was Clarence H. Mackay, C. C. Adams, third vice president of the company and Colonel Harvey.
