Don't pay the agent's fancy price when a rebuilt machine looks as well—works as well—and lasts as long as any new one.

Our "Rebuilt" are practically new—parts that have been worn are replaced with new ones—the machines are refinished by experts who formerly worked in the typewriter factories, and every part, action and complete alignment is gone over carefully as a watchmaker goes over a watch.

We will save you half—sometimes more—on any make you want—and, furthermore, we will guarantee each rebuilt machine to stand up like new.

Last evening closed a brilliant week in Omaha society. Some of the largest weddings and receptions of the season were given during the week. Among the larger weddings were the Everts-Comstock nuptials, Tuesday evening; the Pullman-Ribbell wedding and the Rogers-Cullman wedding, Wednesday evening. Thursday there were two large and elaborate receptions, one given by Mrs. John A. McShane and one by Mrs. G. W. McGeath. Friday and Saturday Mrs. J. J. McCullum gave two large luncheon parties and Saturday evening the Spens-Keelene wedding and reception in Council Bluffs was attended by a large number of people from Omaha. Besides these large affairs, there have been numerous smaller ones and some social affair was given at Happy Hollow each day during the week, with the formal closing last evening, when a short vaudeville program was given following the dinner. About 200 dined at the club last evening.

Omaha people are such globe trotters that at least quite a number of the social leaders introduce the new styles and fads almost as quickly here as in New York City, which is the acknowledged Paris of America. One of the popular fads, which is really quite artistic, is the wearing of artificial flowers. Not the kinds of artificial flowers which were worn by the artistic and natural looking ones, that it is almost impossible to detect that they are not the real ones. Orchids are the most popular. The orchid, as every one knows, is the most fragile and perishable as well as the most expensive blossom, so that these artificial substitutes are a welcome accessory to the well dressed woman. Of course there are other flowers used beside the orchid. The brilliant scarlet polka-dot, which is so popular in California, is another favorite blossom and is worn considerably with black gowns. In one of the musical comedies this week at the theater, lilies of the valley were effectively worn. Both natural and artificial blossoms were quite in evidence at some of the smart functions of the week.

At Happy Hollow.

Prominent among the beautiful October weddings was that of Miss Edna Keelene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Keelene, to Mr. Coprad E. Spens, which was celebrated last evening at 8 o'clock at St. Paul's Episcopal church in Council Bluffs. Green and white made a pretty color scheme for the decoration, palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums decorating the altar and clusters of chrysanthemums were tied to the ends of the pews. Mr. Simms, organist of All Saints' church, presided at the organ and played the Lohengrin bridal chorus for the entrance of the wedding party and "Traumerl" during the ceremony. The ushers, Mr. Arthur Keelene, Mr. A. M. Jeffrey, Mr. John T. Stewart, Dr. Mr. E. M. Fairfield and Mr. J. E. Buckingham, entered first. Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, of Atlanta, Ga., maid of honor, was the first of the brides attendants and Miss Jean Ellwood of DeKalb, Ill., came next. They were gowned alike, in pale green chiffon over white satin, with trimmings of silver and pearl. Mrs. Glenn C. Wharton was matron of honor and wore a stunning costume of white lace over white satin, with trimmings of silver and crystal. Each carried a garden hat filled with lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern. These were held by streamers of pale green tulle. The bride walked with her father and was beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin, with overdress of white chiffon, with trimmings of silver and crystal. A tulle effect was made of hand-embroidered white satin, with trimmings of real lace on the bodice yoke and sleeves. The long tulle veil was held in place with a wreath of lace and orange blossoms. The groom's gift was a bar pin of sapphires and diamonds, with a pendant of the same. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The bride's gifts to her attendants were jade pendants and the groom's gifts to the ushers were jade scarf pins. M. E. R. Puffer of Chicago was best man and the marriage lines were read by Rev. J. J. Mackay, assisted by Rev. J. W. Jones. Following the ceremony, a large reception was given at the Grand hotel and the guests were received in the ball room, which was a bower of yellow blossoms and green foliage. Huge bowls of yellow chrysanthemums were placed at intervals, and roses of wild azaleas were also used in decoration. The supper room was trimmed with swansons and ferns. The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. George Keelene and Mr. and Mrs. Spens and some of the members of the wedding party. Besides the members of the bridal party those assisting were: Mrs. E. P. Roberson, Mrs. Hoskins of Chicago, Miss Phillips of Chicago, Mrs. Hawkins of Burlington, Ia.; Mrs. A. V. Kinler, Mrs. Arthur Keelene, Mrs. F. P. Kirkendall, Mrs. A. J. Beaton, all of Omaha and from Council Bluffs; Mrs. August Herbers, Mrs. Spencer Smith, Mrs. Frank Finney. About 200 cards were issued for the reception. George Keelene wore a handsome costume of embroidered white chiffon over mesaline. The wedding reception being held at the hotel, there was no opportunity for the guests to see the wedding gifts, so Mrs. Keelene will be seen informally Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, that they might call. Following the wedding reception last evening Mr. and Mrs. Spens went to the private car which awaited them and which was placed at their disposal by the officials of the Burlington. The bridal party accompanied them as far as Omaha. Mr. and Mrs. Spens going on to San Francisco, where they will sail for Honolulu, I. I., and on their return the car will again be ready for them after January 1. Mr. and Mrs. Spens will reside at the Clarinda at Thirtieth and Farnam streets.

Lincoln's Famous Address

Wayne MacVeagh's Recollections of America's Most Remarkable Plea.

The November "Century" publishes a sketch by Wayne MacVeagh, giving his personal memories of the delivery of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and of the impression it created. Part of his narrative follows:

The address of Mr. Everett seemed to me then, as it has whenever I have read it since, perfectly adapted to the occasion, and exactly what such an oration ought to be. It was of necessity elaborate and long, because it involved a complete justification of the war then in progress and a graphic and detailed description of the battle which had been so recently fought where we were standing; but it was eminently scholarly and eloquent; the classic product of a mind familiar with the masterpieces of all oratory, ancient and modern, and at its conclusion I think every intelligent person who heard it must have felt most favorably impressed with the manner in which the duty imposed upon Mr. Everett had been discharged.

At its close, as I remember, there was a moment of intense music, and then Mr. Lincoln was presented, as only to accept, in a few formal words, the cemetery in behalf of the nation. As he came forward, he seemed to me, and I was sitting near to him, visibly to dominate the scene, and while over his plain and rugged countenance appeared to set a great melancholy. It was somehow lightened as by a great hope. As he began to speak I instinctively felt that the occasion was taking on a new grandeur, as of a great moment in history, and then there followed, in slow and every impressively far-reaching utterance, the words with which the world has long been familiar. As each word was spoken, it appeared to me so clearly fraught with a message not only for us of his day, but for the untold generations of men, that before the conclusion I found myself possessed by a conviction as to its complete justification, of the great war he was conducting, as if conducted, as in truth it was, in the interest of mankind. Surely at that moment he justified the inspired portrait of Lowell: Great captains, with their guns and drums, Disturb our slumbers for the hour, But their silence comes, and their words are all we need.

These all are great, standing like a tower. Our children shall believe his fame, and they shall know, as I know, that he was, in the kindly earnest, brave, unassuming, Sagacious, patient, drearying praise, not a bit.

Next the birth of our new soil, the first American.

And now comes the only inexplicable part of the statement. I waited until the distinguished guests who wished to do so had spoken to him, and then I said to him with great earnestness, "You have made an immortal address."

To which he quickly replied: "Oh, you must not say that. You must not be extravagant about it."

Others then came around him, and I did not see him again until on the train on our way home. He was suffering from a severe headache, and lying down in the drawing room, with his forehead bathed in cold water. He had sent for me, as I knew, to renew our talk of the day before, but I could not restrain myself from saying to him: "You did not like what I said this morning about your address, and I have thought it carefully over, and I can only say that the words you spoke will live with the land's language."

He answered: "You are more extra-
