Nebraska EMPLOYES OUT HUSTLING

Democratic Officeholders Must Work as Well as Pay Up.

GOVERNOR'S CLERK IS BUSY

Prohibition Candidate for Supreme Judge Withdraws and Notices Are Sent Out to County Clerks.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 23.—Not only have the democratic employees of the state been called upon to come across with a portion of their wages to be spent by the democratic state committee in converting republicans to the democratic ticket under the guise of a nonpartisan judiciary, but have been themselves now compelled to get out and hustle.

Mr. Matthews, chief clerk in the office of Governor Schallenger, has been away from his desk so long that his own most intimate friends would hardly recognize him should he return suddenly. The records in the office of the state auditor show that Mr. Matthews drew his warrant for his September salary, but has not been here to draw any since. He is said to be on a vacation by the people in the governor's office or a member of his force, but as a matter of fact the last heard from Mr. Matthews was at Columbus, working like a beaver in the democratic headquarters.

It is a fact that Mr. Matthews did in the democratic headquarters a year ago that got him his job with the governor and it is the same kind of work that is holding his job for him now. Whether Governor Schallenger will pay Mr. Matthews his monthly stipend of $15 out of state funds while he is working for the democratic state committee is a question about which there is little doubt. There is no doubt that the chief clerk will file a voucher sworn to that he has earned the $15 during October by working for the state, notwithstanding he is being kept at Columbus looking after the governor's interest, as well as contributing his knowledge and work to the cause of the democratic judicial candidates.

Judge B. F. Good, democratic candidate for supreme judge, whose friends expect him to receive a good vote among the followers of Rev. Samuel Zane Baller, called at the executive office this afternoon and reported that he had been making an extensive campaign, though laid up for eight days from the effects of drinking Omaha water.

No Prohibition Judges. Mr. I. Stapp, candidate for supreme judge, has notified secretary of state Junkin that he declines the nomination at the hands of the prohibition party and asks that his name be left off the official ballot. As the declaration of A. G. Wolfenbarger, another prohibition candidate, had already been received, this leaves the prohibitionists to vote for the candidates of some other party for supreme judge. Secretary Junkin sent out letters this afternoon to the various county clerks, notifying them not to print two names on the ballots.

State May Lose Thousands. The State Board of Public Lands and Buildings is trying to find out whether the contractor who was to construct the buildings at the Norfolk insane asylum. The contractor boarded his men at the institution and promised to pay when the work was done. He fell down on the work and the board took over the unfinished building, but failed to take over that board money. So now it is figuring to see whether the contractor's bondsmen are responsible for the amount due.

Celticman Dies at Havelock. James Hartshorn of Havelock, 100 years old, died yesterday at his home. He was born in England August 4, 1809. Until a few months ago he was in perfect health and then began to fail, though his death was unexpected. Mr. Hartshorn had been an extensive traveler and was present at the coronation of Queen Victoria. He came to America in 1837. He leaves six sons, four daughters having died.

School Children Exposed. Parents of children attending the Everett school have been thrown into a panic over the discovery that two children of C. W. Robinson, a teller in the First National bank, had died of diphtheria. Sisters and brothers of the dead children attended school until yesterday. The children were 12, 11, 10 and 9 years of age. The boy died Friday morning and the little girl this morning. No physician was called to see the children until the first one died.

When the facts became known school was dismissed, the rooms in which four of the children of the Robinson family attended school were closed and fumigated. The city physician and other physicians are now examining every pupil who has been attending school with the Robinson children to see if they have become affected with the disease, and every precaution has been taken to prevent it spreading.

Other Matthews ordered the body of the little dead boy to be held until he decided whether to hold an inquest, but late this afternoon concluded to wait for some move on the part of the City Health department before taking any further steps.

ANTI-DIVISIONISTS GET BUSY

Election Day in Custer to Be Liveliest One in Years.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., Oct. 23.—(Special.)—During the latter part of the campaign, the all absorbing topic seems to be county division. In all parts of the county the subject is being studied and discussed with the earnestness never before displayed. The people are much interested in the auditor's report of the county bonds that the various counties of Nebraska have had since the organization of the state. It has been demonstrated that not a county has ever escaped without bonds. Higgins is the name of one of the proposed new counties to be set off from Custer at the coming election. Many who have made a study of the question are urging that county division will greatly increase the taxes and farmers living at a distance from the towns, which expect to become county seats will, as a rule, strongly oppose division.

Another feature they are seriously considering is the salaries of four sets of county officers and the additional expense of maintaining four counties, which will cost from $15,000 to $20,000 more under division than it does now. Also the transcribing of the records and the building of new court houses is another additional expense this item alone figuring up to over $100,000.

Custer county has never been bonded and it looks as if it was impossible to get along without bonds in each of the new counties, if division carries. Election day will probably see one of the hottest county fights ever held in the state.

Auto Falls from Bridge.

He was in an automobile and when at the edge of the city and crossing a bridge met a team. Ballerman tried to turn aside for the team and lost control of his machine, which broke through the railing of the bridge and plunged down an embankment a fall of twenty feet. promotion of true temperance, provided, of course, you will give us sufficient time to make the necessary arrangements, and also that you will permit us to carry banners inscribed thus: "True temperance in speech, thought and action." "Prohibition is the greatest foe to real temperance," etc. We know you will gladly avail yourselves of this assistance to the good cause, and will appoint a time and place where a committee of our ladies may wait upon you to arrange for the details of our proposal. You will be glad, we feel confident, to accept this opportunity to inform the public that temperance means moderation, as defined in our dictionaries, while political prohibition is a mere form of intolerance, the antithesis of Christian doctrine. We welcome you to Nebraska, a state blessed with what is generally conceded to be one of the best income laws in the United States; a law which the misguided efforts of the prohibitionists would dispense with a prohibition statute, and would thus exchange the well regulated, legal sale for an unregulated, unregulated traffic, which in all prohibition territory has proved so disastrous to real temperance and good business. We know that you are too intelligent to endorse such prohibition fallacies, which have never yet and never will promote the cause of true temperance, the cardinal virtue to whose support you are pledged. We welcome you again, with our confidence that your deliberations while in our midst will be guided by wisdom and true Christian temperate thought, and that you will reach no conclusions that would necessitate a change of the name of your glorious institution to "Prohibition Union." Awaiting your reply, we remain with our highest regards, THE UNITED GERMAN SOCIETIES OF NEBRASKA. By Omaha Mastermerch, Peter Luvy, President; Deutscher Landwehr Verein
