engineering devices which have held the river in its fixed bed and which make the deep waterway.
We have shown him this, and now we are ready to ask him to extend the revenues which do this work into every bend on the Mississippi, and to carry this deep waterway and the protection to farm lands adjacent to it throughout the course of the Mississippi.
We wish to go further than this improvement, reclamation and construction, and to see some broad general plan adopted which shall cover the whole control of the water in the river, shall lessen the floods and give us a more general flow at low water, and at the same time restrict the channel. We believe that this work must be carried on not piecemeal by local divisions and subject to occasional appropriations by congress, as has been done in the past, nor do we believe that this work should longer be subject to the annual arguments and machinations of a rivers and harbors committee.
Plans Are Feasible.
Mr. Kavanaugh said: "Engineers have surveyed the route and have declared a deep waterway feasible and easy of accomplishment. The best civil engineers have declared it inevitable," he said. "Chicago has spent $30,000,000 cutting the channel through the rocky divide, and Illinois is spending $30,000,000 to stop it by locks down to the soft-bottom portion of the Illinois river," the speaker declared. "From there to the gulf the way is clear and the plans are ready."
Mr. Kavanaugh said: "The people will no longer tolerate the 'pork-barrel' method of compelling government engineers to allot funds for river improvements, according to congressional district, nor will they allow the development of the greatest of their highways to depend upon uncertain appropriations."
The speaker said that when congress convenes this winter it will have to consider seriously for the first time the great problem of the conservation of water, which President Roosevelt foresaw, and among other things, the establishment of some big central bureau, probably a department of public works, to undertake the entire control of our running water.
"But," said he, "the deep waterway must not wait for this. In floods and in low water a fourteen-foot channel can be easily maintained."

The Mission
Of these corpuses in your blood that have been called "Little Soldiers," to fight for you against the disease germs that constantly endanger your health. These corpuses are made healthy and strong by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.
This medicine is a combination of more than 30 different remedial agents in proportions and by a process known only to ourselves and it has for thirty years been constantly proving its worth. No substitute, none "just-as-good."

Enough diversion of the serio comic order brightens and lightens the hardship of the presidential tour from coast to coast and to the Gulf. Most impressive in this line is the scramble for the honor of introducing the president to an audience and the local variations in the manner. A correspondent of Leslie's Weekly, traveling with the president, sketched the imposing introductions and other incidents of the tour as follows:
Mr. Taft will be doubly fortunate if he pulls through his entire itinerary of introductions. The introductory speech is the nightmare, as well as the rearing, bucking, stamping, daylight horse, of the presidential trip. The introductory speech is as full of trouble as the who-shall-ride-the-president question. Generally, to settle all the local squabbles over the matter, it is arranged that every prominent man in town shall have a hand in it. So the meeting is opened by the chairman of the steepest ward republican committee, who makes a speech about our glorious land, our fine institutions and our noble, patriotic, high-minded, lovable, popular and distinguished guest, the President of the United States. Perhaps you decide yourself into thinking that the president is going to speak now. Wrong! The chairman of the steepest ward republican club introduces the chairman of the county republican committee, who thanks the great audience for its splendid reception to that most loved, most honored, most splendid, most everything else citizen of the republic, William Howard Taft. Ha, ha! You think that the president comes in here, don't you? Wrong again! The chairman of the city republican committee is introduced, who thanks the audience again for its splendid outpouring, its tremendous enthusiasm, its loyalty to country and its confidence in the highest type of citizenry, the man whom we all love from the bottom of our hearts, William Howard Taft. Now we must have the president! Wrong for the third time! The mayor gets up. You had probably forgotten all about the mayor. Well, he fishes his speech from his pocket—there are twelve pages of it—and reads all about how this fair city has grown from the wilderness, how our sainted fathers fit the Indians, how our twice-sainted mothers accompanied our fathers hand in hand when we have reached the zenith of our prosperity, our fair city—even Pittsburg would be called a blond city on an occasion like this—our fair city opens wide her hospitable arms to welcome the president of the United States, William Howard Taft—"Allow me, Mr. President, to hand you the key to our city." The key is accepted by the president. But don't get excited over the belief that the president is to have his linings at last. Nothing of the sort, for as I live, here is the governor! It's all off now for another quarter of an hour, because the governor is going to run again next election and he has a speech that he must get off his chest for home consumption. He finds the manuscript starts in with the recital of all his state ever did and expects ever to do, "saw" the air in front of the president's face, proclaims him, for the hundredth time, the greatest, grandest, most intelligent, most patriotic and most broad-minded citizen of the greatest, grandest and most patriotic republic—"our beloved president, William Howard Taft." At last the president is introduced.

SHAKEUP IN COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY
Acting Superintendent Perkins Suspended and Inspector Gilbert Replaced by Assistant Meliarg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Frank Watley Perkins, acting superintendent of the United States coast and geodetic survey was today suspended without pay and John J. Gilbert, inspector of hydrography and topography, reduced from $3,000 to $2,800 a year as the result of charges of administrative irregularities. The action was taken by Acting Secretary of Commerce and Labor Meliarg. Their cases will be passed upon later by Secretary Nagel, now in the west.
Just on the evening of his retirement from office Mr. Meliarg took action on the charges against the two officials. Perkins was at the head of the survey, while Dr. O. H. Tittman, the director, was in Europe. Dr. Tittman left early in September and has recently returned. The charges, Acting Secretary Meliarg said today, do not in any way affect Dr. Tittman and the two officials named are the only ones against whom charges have been made. Perkins is charged with suppressing official correspondence and shielding employees who have been reported, also with having refused to forward to the head of the department of commerce and labor, charges against the management of the survey and with evading questions officially asked him. A charge of inefficiency has been made against Gilbert.
Reports of commanders of Coast and Geodetic in survey vessels having their wives and families aboard them, some practically living on the craft in violation of the regulations of the department, and of irregular management and disposition of their boats figure in the case. There are also allegations of favoritism through pigeon holing of reports against certain employees in the bureau.
Mr. Perkins left the office for his home early this afternoon. Director Tittman had nothing to say.

U. S. COURT OF APPEALS CRITICISES McPHERSON
Remarks of Judge to Jury Declared to Be Beyond Legal Right of Court.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Because of remarks made to a jury by Judge Smith McPherson of the United States district court at Kansas City the United States court of appeals in St. Louis today reversed and remanded the case of John F. Rudd, who had been convicted of conducting a scheme to defraud.
Rudd was accused of using the mails in an effort to sell a spring lever. The records showed that after the evidence was submitted Judge McPherson said to the jury:
"No man with the slightest degree of intelligence above insanity would say that this pump is practical. Any school boy would know better.
"This man either is guilty of a criminal act or he is an idiot, insane and foolish. The defendant claims to believe in his machine. If he does he is an idiot, crazy. If he does not, he is guilty."
The decision of the court of appeals, written by Judge Hook, says:
"It is the province of a court to comment on facts and evidence, but its comments should be dispassionate and guarded in order that the jurors may be left free to exercise their independent judgment."
In the lower court Rudd was fined $500 and sentenced to serve eleven months in jail.

GAY ACCUSED OF SWINDLING
Man Indicted in Omaha on Fake Wrestling Match Charge Held at Chicago.
CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Thomas Gay of Streator, Ill., charged with swindling James Tierney of the same city out of $10,000 by means of a fake wrestling match, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Fouts here today. Gay is alleged to be a member of the gang against which numerous indictments have been returned at Omaha. He will be taken to the latter city for trial.
The fake match is alleged to have taken place at New Orleans on January 24 last, between Gay and Harry Wright. Gay fell on the mat, it is charged, apparently suffering from a hemorrhage, which in reality is said to have been produced from a cleverly concealed rubber vessel.

GERMAN MAKES FAST TIME WITH AEROPLANE
Hans Grade Flew Mile and Half in Two Minutes and Forty-Three Seconds in German Machine.
JOHANNESBURG, Germany, Oct. 30.—Hans Grade, the German aviator, today won the Laane prize of $10,000 by flying two and one-half kilometres (a little more than a mile and a half) in two minutes and forty-three seconds. The competition was restricted to aeroplanes constructed in Germany by German builders propelled by German made motors. After receiving the prize, Grade made two more flights of about five minutes each in his monoplane.
