BANDITS PLAN DEED WELL

More Evidence Shows How Men Looked Over Ground.

REAL ESTATE MAN'S LITTLE DEAL

W. H. Cray Effort Made to Sell Land to Train Robbers When He Found Them in Vicinity of Place.

A varied gist of testimony was produced yesterday afternoon in federal court showing the alleged train bandits were seen in the vicinity of the Lane cut-off three or four days preceding the robbery of the Overland limited, May 22.

The testimony indicated they were getting the lay of the ground, and again demonstrated the careful planning for the robbery, with every possible avenue for escape left open.

Other witnesses who had seen at least two of the men in the same locality were A. J. Hunt, who lived near the Lane cut-off; Emil Pfaff, who worked at the Hart elevator near Mud Cut; Mrs. Anna Pody, who at the time lived near the Forty-second street viaduct.

John Houser of Fremont testified to having seen a man in his store on May 22. He came there to buy maps of Nebraska and South Dakota.

More and More Evidence Added. J. W. McCarty of South Omaha told of searching Woods the night of his arrest and of being present at the searching of Grigware and Torgenson, and said he had put the articles taken from them into envelopes and looked them up.

Other evidence was introduced showing the Ferguson room on North Fifteenth street, and from a waitress in the Uneda, restaurant, where all of the men under arrest took their meals occasionally prior to their arrest.

Roy A. Mason, assistant cashier of the First National bank of Kemmerer, Wyo., identified two registered envelopes that had been recovered from the stolen mail sacks, which were directed by himself with accompanying letters of transmittal, one of which contained $4 in mutilated currency, and the other a number of mining share certificates.

These he had registered and mailed to New York May 21. But $30 of this mutilated currency had been recovered and restored to his bank. The certificates were all recovered.

Matthews Real General. That Matt Matthews, alias G. C. Marvin, is a consummate general and an almost faultless organizer was demonstrated at the morning session.

After the arrest of Woods, Torgenson and Grigware the night of May 27 and the precipitate flight of Shelton from his room in the Shubert rooming house on South Sixteenth street the following morning he went to the rooms occupied by Matthews at 1324 Dodge street and was there shielded by Matthews until late that evening, when he was furnished money by Matthews for his further flight.

Matthews then remained until Saturday morning, took his two trips and deliberately walked away after finding that he could be of no more service to his partners who were then in jail charged with the robbery, and disappeared from Omaha until he was brought here from Elkhart, Idaho.

It was Matthews' loyalty to Shelton that worked his undoing. Up to July 7, Matthews had not figured in the hold-up case at all. It was fairly well known that there was a "fifth" man in the hold-up, but Pinkertons, government officials and the best sleuths in the country were completely at sea to locate or get the slightest clue to the fifth man.

On July 7, after Shelton had been brought back from Denver, he was urged to point out his rooming house and was taken around to several places by United States Marshal Warner and Postoffice inspector Thompson, and finally identified the flat at 1324 Dodge street, operated by Mrs. Adeline Wykoff, as the place where he last roomed in the city.

Mrs. Wykoff did not at the moment recognize him, neither did she know his name, but finally she remembered him, remarking: "Oh, yes, you were the young man who came here with Mr. Marvin."

This was the first intimation the officers had that Marvin had figured in the matter at all. But the clue was of great value, and Marvin was followed all over the country until he was finally captured at Buhl, Idaho, and the elusive fifth man was finally in the toils of the law.

Mrs. Wykoff was the principal witness of the morning. She told of Matthews, or flat just after noon on May 22, and renting the room personally of her.

Mathews Says Good-Bye. Mathews left the house Saturday morning. Mrs. Wykoff met him at Seventeenth and Dodge streets going east. He was carrying two grips, and bidding her good-bye, stated that he was going to St. Joseph. That was the last she saw of him until she went to Twin Falls, Idaho, where she identified him.

Other witnesses of the forenoon were Mrs. Pearl Patterson and Mrs. A. W. Richards of Kansas City, who had each rented rooms to some one or more of the five accused men in April and May of the present year prior to May 15.

Martin Landon, a real estate man of Omaha, testified to having seen Torgenson, Shelton, Woods and Grigware in a saloon at 223 North Fifteenth street.

Mrs. Martin Landon, who operated a restaurant on Capitol avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, identified Matthews as having served him on two occasions in the restaurant about the time of the robbery and said she had also seen Torgenson in the restaurant.

George Jensen, a barkeeper of Fremont, told of seeing three of the men in his saloon the Saturday preceding the holdup. He recognized these men as Woods, Torgenson and Matthews. They had twice bought cans of beer there that day.

Proposed Traction Contract with City is Becoming Unpopular—Asylum Blow Off is Postponed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Nov. 3.—(Special.)—The State Teachers' association began its annual meeting here tonight with four big feeds.

The teachers' association began its annual meeting here tonight with four big feeds. It being agreed in advance that on a full stomach much knowledge could be loaded. So all the things the teachers have been teaching for years and were themselves taught years before counted for naught. The feeds began before and lasted until after bedtime, which broke another of the rules laid down by the first Christiania.

The teachers convened under twentieth century rules and so far as reported there has been no casualties. The collegiate banquet was held at St. Paul's church, with Chancellor Avery as toastmaster. The Peru-Wayne normal banquet was held at the First Christiania university campus, with President Crabtree of the Peru Normal as toastmaster.

The Kearney-Fremont Normal banquet was presided over by President Thomas of Kearney. State Superintendent Bishop was toastmaster of the normal training banquet which was held at the First Christiania university campus, with President Crabtree of the Peru Normal as toastmaster. As a gentle reminder that they were still on earth though enjoying an outing, diphtheria broke out yesterday in the Capital school, striking down one of the teachers. Every precaution has been taken to prevent any spread of the disease, so little or no alarm is felt.

Refusal of Adams County Woman to Marry Henry Rankins Causes Him to Commit Suicide.

JACKSON, Ky., Nov. 3.—Although a dynamite bomb was exploded and thousands of shots were fired last night, only walls and plaster were damaged. Several persons in their homes had narrow escapes as bullets plowed through walls and windows.

D. B. Redwine, democrat, apparently has captured the county by 250 votes for circuit judge over J. P. Adams, the incumbent. The other democratic candidates for all offices also appear to be in the lead.

During last night's celebration the soldiers from Cynthia were stationed on the public square here, but it is reported that they possessed not a round of ammunition. They expect supplies from Lexington today.

Today the military here was reinforced by the arrival of the Lexington soldiers, who were stationed at Crockettville yesterday. The band of celebrating mountaineers was also reinforced.

Attracted by the election reports which are being received here, they were riding into Jackson all day. As they learn the fate of each candidate tonight they probably will follow their custom of firing numbers of reckless shots.

Hargis Man Killed. Tilden Blanton yesterday killed Demosthenes Noble, following an election quarrel after Noble had crippled Blanton's right arm with a bullet. Noble had previously, according to Blanton, placed a pistol at the breast of two of Blanton's brothers.

Noble was a former employe of Judge James Hargis and complications are expected. Blanton, whose father was democratic candidate for county attorney, was acting as challenger, and his story is that Noble was induced to raise a disturbance by discomfited republicans.

PAUL DIVORCE ARGUMENT PROVES LONG-WENDED. Argument in the Paul divorce case was not concluded yesterday afternoon and A. W. Jefferis will end it this morning, replying to address of counsel on the other side.

General Cowin spoke most of yesterday afternoon, but did not quite finish. He dwelt at length on Mrs. Paul's "standing alone when I came into the case." The attorney attacked in particular the evidence of Robert Deck, whose deposition was offered by the plaintiff, and quoted legal authorities to show that a man so confessing an old debt "is not worthy to be believed under oath."

Cowin accused Paul of wilfully blackening his wife's name and declared that he himself was "here to save the children from the disgrace and shame sought to be forced upon them by the husband and father."

He declared "that no report in the books shows any such prosecution as his. Family after family has been lighted by him in his efforts. Talk of love of home," said Cowin with reference to words of Jefferis, "did he think that when he talked of Bodwell, who has two lovely daughters in his home?"

In the morning A. W. Jefferis held the floor, and not only argued the evidence in behalf of his client and against the defendant, but paid his respects also to General Cowin.

The greatest stress of Jefferis' argument was laid upon those letters written by Mrs. Paul to her sister, Maed Allen, and which have generally been held to constitute one of the strongest cards which the plaintiff has.

Jefferis now read extracts from the letters referred to, extracts unprinted and unphotographed.

E. J. Bodwell came in for some hot shot during the argument. He told Bodwell that he would be named as a party to the suit, Bodwell sinks out of town. No explanation from him, either to clear his own name or that of Mrs. Paul. Suppose a man were to come to me and say, 'Jefferis, you will be named as a party in a divorce suit I am bringing.' If I were innocent, would I leave any stone unturned to convince him that the charge was unfounded. If guilty, I might be afraid to face him."

Attorney Robert H. Olmsted also came in for a share of Jefferis' attention with ERNEST GARROW IS DEAD. Pioneer Commission Man of Nebraska City Passes Away. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Ernest D. Garrow, one of the real pioneers of this section and one of the best known men in this part of the country, died at his home in this city after an illness of several months yesterday.

He has been engaged in the commission business for years, and is a member of the firm of Garrow Brothers of Omaha, St. Joseph and this city. He was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, February 11, 1852, and with his family came to this state in 1884, and since has claimed this his home. When only 12 years of age he drove a team to Ft. Smith, on the Big Horn river, and in 1866 went with a big train to Ft. Laramie, and was at that point at the time of the massacre, when within the space of one hour, ninety soldiers and three citizens were killed by the Indians. He traveled all over the west on horseback and made considerable money. He had $10,000 which he invested in a mine at Tishon, Nev., and lost it, after which he returned to this city to again get a start in life.

Mr. Garrow has been a prominent member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows for years and held most of all the offices in that order. He was married in 1880 to Miss Ada Lane, who survives him. They were born three children, A. W. and W. G. Garrow and Miss Mamie Garrow, all being grown. As yet the time of the funeral has not been set. He held many offices of trust while a resident of this city, and was held in high esteem by every one.

Copper Mine Good One. BUFFALO, Wyo., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Senator W. J. The Williams-Luman mine is less than 100 years old, and yet it has attracted the attention of Senator W. A. Clark and other copper magnates, who have made several efforts to buy. The owners of the property are residents of Fremont, Johnson and Natrona counties, who have faith in the mine and will not dispose of their interests unless they see their price. Experts believe the Williams-Luman will become one of the great copper mines of the country.

Vice President of Alleged Ice Trust Advocated Putting Rival Firm Out of Business.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—At today's hearing of the American Ice company for alleged violation of the anti-monopoly law, Special Attorney General Osborne read a letter written by John D. Schoemaker, vice president of the company in January, 1909, to the manager of a branch in New York, saying:

"I understand that one dealer has gone and taken his ice route with him. I think that we should take measures to shut him off from getting ice anywhere, not only in this state, but also in New Jersey."

Another Schoemaker letter suggested how large profits could be realized by skillful distribution of the ice crop among the various cities in which the American Ice company had obtained a footing.
