

HOT FIGHT FOR THE BALLOT

Mrs. Pankhurst's Strenuous Activities for Woman Suffrage.

BRITISH LEADER IN AMERICA

Characteristics of the Struggle in England and the Campaign that is Planned in This Country.

Mrs. Emmeline Gould Pankhurst, leader of the militant woman suffragettes of England, founder of the Women's Social and Political Union, prophet and sponsor of that aggressive form of the woman suffrage movement which in England has lifted the question of woman's enfranchisement from the academic sphere into the realm of practical politics...

It is about four years since the speaker at a Liberal meeting in England was interrupted by a dark-eyed, dark-haired young woman of 35, who asked, "Are you going to keep your promises to the women of England?"

For twenty years the Liberal party in England has been busily promising all things to all men and enfranchisement to women. It was one of the party's professed principles until a decided majority of the masculine voters returned it to office.

At the time of his death, Mrs. Pankhurst was in the midst of a municipal campaign in which she was leading a woman suffrage agitation. For the woman suffrage movement is not a new thing in England, where the women have been granted the right to vote for every office save that of member of Parliament.

Ever since the late sixties of the nineteenth century, when John Stuart Mill introduced the first suffrage bill striking out so that the suffrage would not be limited by sex, Parliament has been besieged by suffragists. It has received more and longer petitions concerning this subject than any other. Between 1870 and 1895, the year marked by the beginning of militant tactics on the part of the women, 1,000 petitions on woman suffrage, one containing 27,000 names, were addressed to the nation's lawmakers.

Following the first agitation in 1865, the National Union of Suffrage Associations was organized. Mrs. Fawcett, widow of a former postmaster, is president of this society, from which Mrs. Pankhurst withdrew to organize the Women's Social and Political Union. The more fact that in England women do enjoy all of the political rights save that of voting for members of Parliament shows that the more conservative organization have accomplished good.

The small group of women who followed her has been steadily augmented until the Women's Social and Political Union now has 30,000 members. Last spring, one monster demonstration was made by the suffragettes resulted in the arrest of 200 women. Among these women were artists, actresses, journalists, mill hands, factory workers and women of birth and breeding.

to an article calling for reform in prison methods, so practical good may result. What has been accomplished? Mrs. Humphrey Ward, at a meeting of the Women's National Anti-Suffrage League, held to oppose the work of the suffragettes, said that the mass of the female population of the British Isles had been unmoved by the agitation and that though "the militant suffragettes might rush the House of Commons, the women anti-suffragettes are strong enough to prevent them from rushing the constitution."

Something Doing All the Time. Heckling and harrasing cabinet ministers in every possible way in their homes and in public places; blocking traffic in narrow thoroughfares; chalking "Votes for Women" on the portals of the homes of the officially prominent; compromising the dignity of the courts by protests against man-made laws; interrupting meetings, rushing the House of Commons—all these things are part of the program prepared by Mrs. Pankhurst and carried out under her direction by willing lieutenants.
