Our Great Corset Sale

The great corset sale continues Saturday. Hundreds of Omaha women are taking advantage of this remarkable saving.

39c, 69c, 79c, $1.29

Four lots, that's all. Not ordinary bargain sale corsets, but maker's surplus lots; regular box goods, but removed from the boxes to facilitate selling, and for quick inspection.

But be early—There are short, medium and long hip styles in great variety. Most any woman can find a corset to suit her.

First 1250 rated resulted in a duet by Rev. Mr. Nyman and Roy Forsythe, the musical director of the revival.

Today the evangelist gave the Rev. Mr. Nyman a handsome stipend and Mrs. Nyman a silver baking dish as a testimonial of his appreciation of their valuable services.

Ministerial leaders are notoriously underpaid, but even so, a stipend and a baking dish scarcely merit a fair take-off on the winnings of the house. We should not blame the Rev. Mr. Nyman who was fairly disappointed with his lot—Chicago Post.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR CHURCH

Optimist and Pessimist Discuss "What's the Matter with the Churches?"

In a symposium in The Delineator for December on "What's the Matter with the Churches?" a well-known, fact-orientated other will be. It was in struggling liberty that Christians separated. Now that liberty has been won Christians are going to unite in order to gain efficiency. Co-operation has worked miracles in the realm of business, and it will work its greatest wonders in the realm of religion.

I suspect also that many of the churches will attempt in the future to do less than they have recently been trying to do. By attempting less they will accomplish more.

The panic is subsiding, and men are seeing that it is not the mission of the church to do everything.

Many noble works must be left to other agencies which have a place in the community.

What is the matter with the church? First, the church is made up of human beings, and not archangels. Second, it works upon material which can be gotten into shape not years, but in ages.

Third, it holds up ideals which can not be realized in today nor tomorrow, nor the day after.

Fourth, it has come upon times when all institutions, including even the state and the family, are not only attacked, but challenged to give a reason for their continued existence.

Finally, the tragedy of the world's life is known today as never before, and inefficiency has become the one sin which has no forgiveness.

A doctor signing himself N. O. C., from Kansas, sets forth his views in these strong words:

The minister (called) of God talks himself hoarse on Sunday about vice, etc. but he seldom gets off of Easy street. He does not know what goes on in Hard street.

He might as well talk to him in a rain barrel, if he does nothing for their continued existence.

They talk about working in the Lord's vineyard. They are up in an apple tree most of the time.

The Salvation Army, with all its noise, is doing a practical Christian work. God bless them, they are not afraid to go down among the sons of toil and down among the outcasts and poor of this prosperous (I) nation.

They are not afraid of getting dirt on their hands. They go plumping in earnest. I am not a pessimist. I have had some little experience in this life as a physician and have seen both the top and bottom. I do not speak of the little village church where people are more so, or equally, where the employer is not ashamed to have his employee sit in the same church.

There are some noble men and women in the church who are doing good and trying to live right. I do not condemn all the churches nor all the good people, but until the church wakes up and take up the work at hand they will never get the people to believe in them.

HOT TIME AT A REVIVAL

Money Raising for the Benefit of an Evangelist Was a Corker.

After Evangelist Forsythe, "assisted by his wife, sons and the local clergy," had been stirring things up in Morrisonville, Ill., for about four weeks, their recent "revival" there closed with a bang-up Sunday night service at which $600 was raised to recompense Mr. Forsythe for the 34 converts which he had made.

The Morrisonville correspondent of a down-state paper describes with great gusto the affair, which was, it seems, in the hands of Rev. A. C. Nyman, "the new pastor of the Methodist church," says the correspondent:

"Rev. Mr. Nyman's method of securing the funds was to announce to the audience that some one would sing a solo for $50 and the audience would proceed to 'chip in'

to get the musical number. Officers Frank Schlegel, the big policeman of Morrisonville, on a dare from some one in the audience, gave a vocal solo for $10, ten different persons contributing a dollar each.

White he was in the agony of his effort there were several who offered twice this sum if he would quit."

But he was the only star witness, the correspondent hastens to say:

"The barbers' trio, Frank Clower, William Compton and Thomas Pence, three tonorial artists well known in Taylorville, brought $100 into the evangelist's fund.

These three barbers were all converted during the revival. What was called 'the preacher's wives' duet number was sung by Mrs. C. A. Nyman and brought $100.

And there were a number of minor performers:

Jack McFree, the tent janitor, gave a solo for $25; Charlie Forsythe, a son of the evangelist, for $25; Dolph Pence for $100.
