

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Wheat Sells Steadily Higher on the Omaha Exchange.

WORLD'S SHIPMENTS IGNORED

Bullish Sentiment in Wheat Well Matched by a Similar Feeling Exhibited in the Corn Futures.

OMAHA, Nov. 16, 1909. The very heavy world's shipments for the week had no effect on the opening prices and wheat sold steadily higher with further reports from Argentina.

Weather conditions are still bullish in the corn belt and grain stocks with wheat, the market was strong and prices worked higher.

The sentiment was strongly bullish on wheat today and speculators bought freely at the opening, starting an advance which resulted in a sharp advance with the market was found to lack any offerings from long holders.

Corn was strong with the advance in wheat and general unfavorable weather reports which started heavy buying by shorts who turned bullish owing to the expectations of delayed movement of the new crop.

Business receipts, 10,000 bushels against receipts last year of 1,400,000 bushels and shipments of 200,000 bushels and shipments of 25,000 bushels.

Clearances were 6,000 bushels of corn, 10,000 bushels of wheat and flour equal to 580,000 bushels.

Liverpool closed 1/2¢ higher on wheat and 1/4¢ higher on corn, 100 bushels.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—With a pronounced feeling of bullishness, the grain market opened with the wheat future sold at a paradoxical bullwhip which forced the price up and kept the market strong.

The market was strong from the outset and it traded in defiance of the reports that the wheat crop was good.

Advances in effort to cover "shorts" held over Sunday. Congestion in December was more pronounced than the usual leading.

COPPER COMBINE IS FORMED

World's Greatest Producers and Sellers of Metal Unite to Restrict Production and to Steady Prices.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The upturn in prices of stocks in today's market had its incentive in the greatly strengthened position of the bank deposits by the bank statement on Saturday and in the corroborative evidence of the rumors of a coming copper combine.

The fact that the copper securities was in itself strongly confirmatory of those rumors and the continuance of conference among the leading producers of copper pointed to the same conclusion.

The plan of the new combination was supposed to include a central control of the production of copper, some restriction of production and an increase in price which it was asserted, would be moderate and coupled with its restraint on the advancing as well as declining tendency of the price.

The enormous profits realized out of the United States Steel corporation organization by the stockholders in the constitution of that formation was cited as a possible precedent.

The contraction of nearly $40,000,000 in the loan account of the clearing house banks last week and the small distribution of stock market involved point to other important sources of credit.

It is known that largely the same point of non-reliance upon institutions, accompanied by an actual increase in loans extended, is being observed in the Wall street.
