Rosebery Makes Strong Speech Against Motion to Reject Budget.

POINTS OUT DANGER OF COURSE

It May Lead to Revolution that Will Abolish Upper House-Says Six Months' Trinl of Law Would Disgust Voters.

LONDON, Nov. E -- Lord Rosebery, the former liberal prime minister, Wednesday raised the historic struggle between the House of Lords and the House of Commons to a new plane by one of the finest speeches he has ever delivered, in which he warned the lords of the grave risks they were running if they adopted Lord Lansdowne's resolution to reject the budget. If possible, still greater interest was manifested in today's debate. There was not sufficient room to seat all the peers attending, while benefit to both. the public galleries were crowded to their atmost capacity. The duchess of Connought headed a long list of the foremost peeresses, many of whom were compelled to stand throughout.

Lord Salisbury started with a speech supthe archbishop of Canterbury had said that grave doubts as to the expediency of the bishops would stand aside from the Lord Rosebery's course, and there is aldiscussion, as the occasion was one of most certain to be a large number of strict party character. Lord Rosebery folewed in a long speech, giving the lords a vote, plain warning of the danger of the path House of Lards into next week is due to they were treading.

This advertisement ran for at least a week in a big daily, which had a circulation of over 40,000, without bringing in a single reply. The man who wrote the advertisement was a business man, and the paper that ran the classified advertisement had up with him at that very time the question of display space for his business advertising. Naturally the prospect of landing it was not bright. The advertising manager of the paper called on the man and was told that he, the business man, had good evidence that advertising, in that paper at least, would not pay him, the

WANTED-Girl to do general house-work; good wages. Apply XYZ, this of-

'Help Wanted" ad being cited as evidence. A copy of the advertisement was shown to the newspaperman, who said he knew what the trouble was and offered to bet the contract that not one but a dozen replies could be had

The advertisement was rewritten in this fashion: WANTED-Next, capable girl for maid in family of two; no washing; large, gunny, private room and good wages. Apply XYZ, this office.

The day following the insertion of the advertisement twenty-seven replies were received. The faith of the business man in advertising was restored and, needless to say, the paper got the display contract.
