The closing chapter is being written in the romance of Zelaya, the bandit.

This is a good day to resolve to do it now. Mr. Weather Man please switch.

In resisting bombardment that Saully Hook balloon exhibits as much good nature as the late Dr. Cook.

Planetary insanity is being exploited, now that the public has wearied of reading about hookworms and pellagra.

The Corn show visitors will find the latch string out in all directions in Omaha. Don't stop to knock, but come right in.

In a country where so many men are ambitious to become lords there is little danger that the upper house will be abolished.

Some men seem able to buy up insurance companies with the ease and grace of a woman casually stopping at the ribbon counter.

The open door may be a fact in Manchuria, but the wily Japanese merchant is driving out all competition of the white man by his cut rate prices.

The cynical will be quick to observe that the defaulter who now pleads quins of conscience waited two years to feel the sting, and then his money had run out.

The federal plum tree is trembling again, and several Nebraskans are expectantly waiting beneath its boughs. A Christmas gift of considerable size awaits somebody's outstretched hands.

Colonel Bryan finds much occupation in nominating the republican presidential ticket for 1912, a fact which may mean that the colonel has lost his interest in the possible democratic nominees for that year.

Judge Grosscup, having come out in advocacy of a new party committed to the policy of an equal distribution among all men of the fruits of their labor, may expect some heart-to-heart talks from his friends, the socialists.

All who claim to be able to cure tuberculosis have only to establish proof with Yale university and get $100,000, an anonymous alumnus having deposited the forfeit. Now let the Dr. Cooks of the white plague crusade bring on their affidavits.

Again the iconoclastic voice of the government is heard, this time in the effort of the Agricultural department to wipe out the term "New Orleans molasses," there being, in the opinion of the department, no longer any such thing. No "N. O.?" Thus vanishes another fond tradition of childhood days, when the American boy carrying the brown jug to the store knew no greater paradise than to lick the cork.

Mr. Gaynor's turning down of the Tammany leaders who nominated him presages interesting events when he shall have taken his seat as mayor of New York. His open declaration that he is no dummy of Tammany, and that he will not tolerate the presence of office-hunters about his office, may be taken to give New Yorkers confidence that the judge really intends to give the people a personal administration. The more the tiger views the wreck of his hopes from the late election the less it finds it has saved.

The Corn Show.

The great corn exposition, which opens to the public in Omaha tomorrow, is national in its scope. It is more than that. It is world-wide, for its effects must eventually touch all humanity.

The object of this exposition is primarily the comparison of results and the discussion of methods. It brings together the thoughtful, earnest, active men of agriculture, whose work in life is literally to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before. These men are the combination of student and dreamer crossed with the hard-headed, practical man of business. Their thoughts are bent in the one direction, that of improving the general quality of the agricultural output of the world.

The great corn exposition, which has come to its present measure of success through the efforts of Omaha people, is a splendid expression of the scientific thought of the times. Its success means wealth added to the material prosperity of the world, and with added wealth must necessarily come increased social advantages.

Savings Banks Life Insurance. From Massachusetts comes a demonstration of what can be accomplished by the experienced investors' handling of a community of small funds, in the successful operation of the savings banks life insurance system.

One year ago the Massachusetts state actuary estimated that the savings banks insurance rate was 25 per cent lower than that charged by the industrial companies, which later cut their rates in Massachusetts 10 per cent. Since then the savings banks offered insurance at 15 per cent less than the companies, and now, on the basis of the dividend, the actuary figures the rate as 23 1/2 per cent less than that of the industrial.

Energy of the Future. Barely eleven years have elapsed since the wonders of radium became known to man through a woman's discovery, yet in that little while an entirely new realm of science has been opened up, with a promise to solve that which has vexed those looking far into the future—the problem where man is to obtain his energy for the work of the world.

South America's Awakening. What was accomplished in the United States as a result of the opening of the transcontinental railroad line may be expected to follow the operation of the first steam road across South America, now nearing completion.

State Control of Combines. The decision of the supreme court of South Dakota sustaining the constitutionality of the anti-discrimination act adds to the encouragement of the citizen desirous of seeing trade maintained in natural competitive channels.

SERMONS BOILED DOWN. Ignorance is the weakest protection possible to innocence. Moral blindness is often due to pressure on the money nerve.

Don't Mortgage the Morrow. to pay expenses of today—or mortgage your family's future comfort that you may enjoy yourself in the present. Spend as you go if you will, but not until you have first put by a portion of your income for the protection of your family.

It has been accurately demonstrated, according to Prof. Frederik Soddy of the University of Glasgow, that a pound of radium will yield an energy 250,000 times greater than the combustion of an equal weight of coal.

Employees' Insurance. The conference under the auspices of the National Civic Federation called to consider the various forms of insurance for working people developed but one feature. It is more unanimously agreed than ever that the solution of the problem under consideration is extremely difficult.

Roll-Top Strategists. Additional evidence is contained in the annual report of Secretary Meyer of the Navy department that the day of the "roll-top strategist" is over, and that this branch of the service is to be administered henceforth on a basis of practical efficiency.

Moral Instruction in Schools. In the race of the New York millionaires to outdo one another in the cultivation of fads, it is not surprising that one of them has come forward with a fund for a scheme to establish a radical course in morals in the public schools, with specific reference to varied virtues, including humor, courage, economy and cleanliness.

Opportunities to Help. President Lovett of the Union Pacific has a splendid opportunity to slip a really acceptable present into Omaha's stocking. Just let him go casually over some of the plans endorsed by the late Mr. Harriman for improvement for his road's service in Omaha, and give them his "O. K."

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT. Pittsburgh Dispatch: We quite agree with the ministers that there is "no need for a new religion," but we are quite confident that there is great need for the extension of our old religion.
