WHERE DO GOLF BALLS GO?

Lost, Strayed, but Chiefly Stolen is the Answer.

CADDIES WITH STEALING HABIT

Young Crooks that Work in Pairs on the Public Links—Remaking Second-Hand Ones—Professional Dealers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The conundrum used to be, Where do all the pins go? Now it is, What becomes of the golf balls?

As several millions of golf balls are manufactured every year and as so many are used in the past year's play, this year's holes they must go somewhere.

A few years ago manufacturers used to buy up second hand balls of their own make, remold them, putting them on the market again as "remolded balls."

They had a standard price for balls regardless of condition, so that no matter how badly out of a ball might be, it was worth so much to the manufacturer who wanted to make it over.

The idea then was that the interior of the balls was as good as ever and that it was only the outside or gutta serena covering that was injured by use.

Experience demonstrated that this was a mistake and that the life and resiliency of a ball is destroyed by continual hard hitting.

There is an enormous amount of money spent on golf balls and yet their life is very short. The standard price is 30 cents, although some make 25 cents.

There used to be 25 balls, but there was not enough to justify the price and they are no longer on the market. When a player offers to bet a hole or to play a match, which means a ball on each hole and 25 cents, at which price they are picked up by those who make a business of dealing in second hand balls.

Very few golfers will play more than eighteen holes with the same ball. When a first class player succeeds in getting thirty-six or more holes out of a ball without injuring either its driving or putting qualities, he thinks it is remarkable.

Of course a great many balls are lost on the links or at least abandoned as lost until picked up by the caddies or green keepers. These abandoned balls are seldom good ones, because first class players do not lose balls very often and the caddies do not play with new balls more than once in a dozen times.

Of course the legitimate collectors of lost balls, but in the best clubs members are not allowed to buy balls from caddies, which is supposed to discourage stealing, whereas it simply drives the ball finder to another market.

The caddies are the legitimate collectors of lost balls, but in the best clubs members are not allowed to buy balls from caddies, which is supposed to discourage stealing, whereas it simply drives the ball finder to another market.

Some of those National League magnates have queer notions of ethics, anyway. At least two of them, it seems, went into the contest for the election of a league president with but one object before them—the getting of desirable players for their teams.

These two sides that offered the greatest inducements in this line, not their votes. Prominent justice! What could anything be fairer or of sounder philosophy? What matter the relative merits of the candidates? What matter the moral principle of the stake? What matter the attack on the present administration is based on slight admission of error and notice by unscrupulous men. All these considerations must be lightly brushed aside for the one of personal aggrandizement. No matter if the election of one candidate be an abject surrender to avarice and vice, that must be accepted for the promise of temporary reward.

If, as now seems certain, Chicago has secured control of Philadelphia in the National League, which means syndicate base ball, it may be taken as the beginning of the end of two institutions—the National League, as now organized, and base ball as a clean sport. One thing is certain—syndicate base ball and clean base ball cannot exist together; they cannot be made to co-ordinate. It might be going too far to call this a sad day for base ball, but it certainly is true that clean base ball would be a whole lot safer if Murphy were out of the game.

Just think how happy and secure in his position President Heydler might have been all along had he seen his way clear to make that decision in favor of Chicago that day. On the other hand, think what base ball will gain in the end, whether Heydler were deposed or not, by having a man who is strong enough to ignore the Murphy threat and not make his decisions on the basis of the same base ball as he has survived some awful lites and it will outlive Murphy.

Probably Ben Johnson's deft went. The big fellow stood pat on his declaration that if Ward succeeded Heydler he will not sit as a member of the national commission. And Ward was not elected.

Maybe after all this old Western league has a thing or two on the National in electing its president for five years. At least the president of the Western is ahead of the other president.

Fred Clarke have signed a two-year contract with Pittsburgh in one remains for Hans to come across as per usual and get at rest all this speculation about next year's pennant.

Your wise old Pa is loading up on some good, hardwood timber now while the snow is on the ground. That old man is sure some wood chopper.

Will President O'Neill have the fatted calf ready for Fredrick St. Joe? Or would that be fair to the calf?

Well, if we want to know, and John Lester should bring up in Denver, we shall do our best to stand it.

And Murphy, it will be recalled, was one of the first to weep at the brier of poor Polignac.

Well, we have the national commission set, anyway.

Come on with that state league, Nebraska.
