this condition is expected to result in many men getting out as candidates for the large as it should have been. This was due to the fact that the Cornhuskers had blocks away from the campus. This spring the players have a field on the campus and they practice base ball without taking too much time from their school work.

It was the lack of a diamond on the campus that kept the freshman from showing a great interest in the game. Few-of them showed up for practice, and conscquently the coach has no line on what they can do. Had they responded to the practice call last year, the coach would know this spring just what material he can depend upon. As it is he will have to wait until the spring campaign opens before he can accertain how much good material there is among last year's fresh-

> Lack of brains is, we submit, a wrong champions of its sacred liberties." diagnosis, at least in the great majority of cases. But why the moral cowardice? In many cases the trouble, no doubt, is worse than that; it is moral dishonesty. The passenger is using his employer's money and does not exercise the care that he would with his own money. Again, perhaps a higher rate than 10 per cent is appropriate on dining cars. If the service is satisfactory, or nearly so, it is safe to say that the waiter is of a higher grade than one could find at a hotel charging the same prices for meals; it is necessary to get this higher grade, if the exacting duties of the dining car are to be properly performed. higher grade of waiter may appropriately receive a larger fee. Moreover, the rallways are constantly giving meals in dising cars which ought to be priced 50 per cent higher than they are, if cost is considered; so that 10 per cent on the price is not the same as 16 per cent on the value, This works to the disadvantage of the waiter. The two inexorable facts of the tip question appear to be (1) that there is no way to change the habits of the considerable number of customers who give tips freely and voluntarily, and (2) that many deem It right to pay only the lowest respectable amount, while some others would pay none at all, except by the compulsion of custom. The fact that tips will be paid, and will vary in amount would seem to leave the dining car superintendent no choice but to do his best to make his waiters practice the ordinary civility of always expressing thanks, regardless of the amount of the gift-as the best waiters always do. This is the only workable rule. The passenger can, of course, ignore the "disapproving look," but he should not be required to do so, if the dining car manager can correct his waiters' behavior, for such incidents impair digestion, and thus may damage the reputation of the kitchen! -Railway Age-Gazette.

BELLEVUE ENTERS ON PLANS TO GET THAT BIG FUND

Independent, Are Going After the Money.

Plans for an aggressive campaign in an effort to raise $150,000 have been made by trustees of Bellevue college. The action of Friday afternoon whereby the college board voted against the proposition to consolidate with Hastings college and thereby 1,002 byterian synod means that immediate steps The following resolutions were adopted by the trustees after the merger proposition had been coldly turned down:

"Resolved. That the board of trustees recognizes that Bellevue college is a trust committed to it for maintenance, protection and development at Believue, and we hereby express our determination to maintain the college in its integrity at Bellevue with all its present functions unimpaired; that we recognize the necessity for an immediate and aggressive financial campaign along the lines suggested by the executive committee in October, and that we take up and unremittingly prosecute a campaign for the securing of funds to the amount of $150,000 at least, $50,000 of this amount to be applied to current expenses and $100,000 to be invested as endowment, and we, the trustees, pledge our individual and collective active support in this endeavor, and we invite the friends of Christian education throughout the state of Nebraska and the east to join in this work, so that while the permanence of Bellevue college is assured, its effectiveness may be kept up to a standard of assured compe-
