

NEW HOMES EASY TO GET

Springing Up on All Sides in Omaha Just Now.

WANT ADS TELL A FINE STORY

Brief and Breezy Narrative of the Case with Which Homes May Be and Are Being Obtained in This City.

That the campaign of home building is being most successfully waged on all sides in Omaha is evident from the large number of new buildings springing up. One grading contractor now has contracts for digging seventy-five cellars.

The ease with which homes may be acquired in Omaha is told daily in The Bee want ad columns, and especially on Thursday, Home Day. Real estate dealers realize how fast Omaha is growing and are right to the front with schemes to provide the new comers with homes on arrangements which all may meet. New industries moving to Omaha and the growth of those already located require more men, and these must have homes and their families.

M. T. Martin of Payne Investment company says: "Does buying a home on monthly installments appeal to the average wage earner or salaried man? I venture that fully 75 per cent of the people who are bought in this manner. And, mind you, we not only sell them, but they are paid for, not one purchaser in fifty falling in his effort to own his own home."

J. F. Glover of the Glover Realty Syndicate—we find an increased demand for lots and lots and lots of people who are sick and tired of paying rent. From present indications there will be more people buying and building this year than ever before, and as Omaha real estate will never be any lower, now is the accepted time. People from out of town are being attracted more and more by the prospect and are investing their money in Omaha.

Under the present plan of selling houses and lots the man on a moderate salary is enabled to buy himself a home with practically the same money he now turns over to his landlord every month, and as his equity in the property increases he takes more pride in himself and is a good deal more independent. There is nothing that makes a man feel like looking the world in the face more than being a property owner.

P. O. Nielsen of P. O. Nielsen & Co.—It is surprising the number of people who are seeking to purchase homes at this time of the year. Most every one of them want to pay on the easy term plan. This proves to me that your home day campaign is effective and that you are educating the people along the right lines to make Omaha the solid city of the west.

"I have been told that half the people in Omaha own their own homes and a large part of them are paying for theirs by monthly payments. Let the other half get busy and they won't need to worry over the high prices of living."

A. H. Walsh, Benson & Meyers—The young man who has laid by a few hundred dollars toward the purchase of a home has taken the first step toward affluence.

"From just such a start have the majority of large fortunes resulted. After the start has once been made and the first modest home purchased all his energies are put forward to paying out on his contract.

"Money is applied on same which the savings bank would never get. He is impelled to reduce the indebtedness by every means in his power, and the few dollars here and few dollars there which he formerly spent foolishly and for which he received no adequate return are used in this manner. The place is at last paid for, and if good judgment has been displayed in its purchase he finds that under his care as the owner and owing to the unusual increase in value of property in a rapidly growing city, he now has a place readily salable at considerable above the purchase price."

OMAHA STILL WORKING TO GET BIG BALLOON MEET

No Decision as to Site of International Event Will Be Reached for Some Time Yet.

Omaha has not given up hope of securing the international balloon meet for this summer. The commercial club is still working on the proposition. Word was received Thursday morning that the matter was not decided as yet. The decision is in the hands of a committee consisting of C. G. Fisher of Indianapolis, H. G. Lambert of St. Louis and C. J. Hawley of New York. The latter stated that no decision as to the place for holding the tournament would be reached for some time.

Omaha has natural advantages of position greater than most cities because of the distance the balloons may fly from this city, no matter what direction the wind happens to be. It was shown that at St. Louis last year with the prevailing wind from the southwest the distance of the flight was limited.

Expensive experiments are being made by the Omaha Gas company to try to convert Omaha illuminating gas into a lighter gas which will float balloons. The matter of the amount of gas will be taken care of, as the company has a six-inch main running to the proposed site of the meet. Because of the illuminating and heating properties of the Omaha gas, it is too heavy to float the big bags, which will require 20,000 cubic feet in ten hours.

An effort is at least being made to put Omaha on the aerial map, and whether anything comes of the attempt, to bring the races to Omaha it will at least result in a greater interest in aeronautics.

The New Improved 1910 Detroit Ideal Gas Stoves and Queen Steel Ranges are now coming in. They are marvels of perfection. More improved and better than ever. They both have a national reputation. Read below how well people who are using them speak of them. We sell them at a cut price for cash or on small monthly payments.

Queen Steel Range This is what Mrs. Pearson, 2911 So. 15th street, said a few days ago, and the same hundreds of other housewives who are using them say: "I never saw a range before that takes so little fuel and heats up so quick. Two or three little shovelfuls of coal will cook a meal and bake at the same time. It is a beautiful baker and I am perfectly delighted with it."

Detroit Ideal Gas Stove Mr. Branch, 2921 S. 16th St., says: "Talk about difference in gas stoves. There is a big difference in good ones. When I bought the Detroit Ideal I was going to buy one like we had before because we thought it was all right, but the Detroit Ideal has it beat in every way. I could not have bought anything that so thoroughly pleased my wife as it does."
