On Strike.

wonder what things would be like f old Dan Cupid went on strike, Refusing at his bench to stay For longer than eight hours per day!

Think you bright eyes would cease to gleam.
Or poets fall to sigh and dream?
Think you love's industry would wans
Till Cupid started in again?

If so the purpose of this song
is just to say you're thinking wrong;
We'd simply place the works of joy
In charge of some nonunion boy;

And when the striker came once more He'd find a barred and guarded door, And on a placard large announced: This day is faithless Cupid bounced: —Blakeney Gray in February Ainslee's.

"Oh, yes," say the careless ones, "we've heard of the "Victrola." And "Oh yes," say we, "you've heard OF the Victrola, but have you ever heard the Victrola in ACTION. Hear it and you'll stand back amazed—you'll say: "And has the talking machine developed into something as manificent as THAT." You people of the comfortable circumstances—you people who are well off—YOU don't know what you are MISSING if you haven't a Victrola in your home, where it serves as YOUR public speaker; YOUR grand opgera artists: YOUR jokester. And as an educator—but enough of this—your knowledge of things up-to-date ISN'T complete until you have one.

Samurana and a second Upon our floors you'll find every model Victrola made—upon our shelves you'll find a hundred thousand records to make your selection from. Come hear one tomorrow—buy one if it's as glorious as we claim. Have us play it for you until you say it IS. Learn to associate our name with anything in the talking machine line. No other Nebraska house does so large a talking machine business as this one—we represent both the "Victor" and "Edison" Co.'s in Nebraska and are distributers in this section. If you've a talking machine now you wouldn't part with it—until you have heard a Victrola, which is a larger, grander, sweeter, softer, better looking talking machine.
