Some Things You Want to Know

Delicate Scientific Instruments.

—Mankind owes a great debt to the men whose ingenuity has produced instruments which permit the scientist to go far beyond the ordinary range of his senses. Through the modern telescope the scientist looks far into space and beholds millions of suns outshining our own, objects of such immensity that our minds cannot grasp them, and of such distance that the unaided eye cannot see them.

The bolometer, devised by the late Prof. Langley to measure the heat of the stars, is a marvelous instrument. The heat of the average star is no greater to us than the heat of a candle placed three miles away, yet this delicate instrument will measure the varying degrees of heat given off by different stars.

The dividing engine, used by scientists to make spectroscopic gratings for analyzing the rays of light, is perhaps the most delicate machine man has contrived. The Rowland dividing engine will rule 120,000 parallel lines on a single inch of surface.

Another will draw fourteen lines on the edge of the finest tissue paper. It was almost an insuperable task to get the wheels perfect enough to do the work, but the ingenious construction finally served the purpose. When the machine is in operation it must be left alone, as even the proximity of a human being will interfere with the true lines of its lines.

Another very perfect machine is the Whitworth measuring machine, which will determine thickness down to the millionth part of an inch. When one desires such a degree of accuracy it is an easy matter to set the machine a shade too tight.

The Shew microscope is another remarkable instrument of the laboratory. The person who has seen the breakfast bacon slicer in a grocery store will understand something of its principles. When the scientist wants to examine the cross section of a little corpuscle too small to be picked up with the hand he uses the exact mechanism of hard paraffin and that in another corner of softer consistency. Then he puts it into his little slicing machine and is able to make slices so thin that it would require 25,000 of them piled on top of one another to make a stack an inch high.

Time measuring instruments of precision were the forerunners of all the delicate machines of science. Ever since man has navigated the seas beyond the sight of land he has needed the most accurate measures of time in order that he might place his longitude with reasonable correctness. At the English government observatory $200,000 to the man who would invent a chronometer so accurate that longitude could be told within thirty miles and descending reward down to half as much for the person who could tell it within sixty miles.

There are machines in common use today which make services so small that they appear to be of little value. One of these is the ordinary tumbler. Yet each of them must have a perfect head and a perfect thread. They are used as screws for the fourth jewel wheel of a watch. All the operations with them are done more by the sense of touch than of sight and it is marvelous how acute the human sense of touch may become. Some time ago a bicycle manufacturer brought some balls intended for ball bearings to watchmaker to show what perfect specimens he had produced. The watchmaker said they were not round and wagged his head at three depressions on each ball. A micrometer was applied and it showed that on each ball at the exact spot pointed out there were depressions of less than the thousandth part of an inch.

FUTURE STATUS OF PEERS

Probable Course of Premier Asquith Topic of Discussion Throughout Great Britain.

MODERATES URGE CAUTION

They Insist that Budget Should Be Disposed of First—Government Will Outline Its Plan This Week.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Of even greater interest than the possible changes in the cabinet is the course the government is likely to pursue upon the reassembling of Parliament. Premier Asquith has kept his own counsel and the views of the liberals vary according to their shade of radicalism.

Extreme liberals strongly favor an immediate attack upon the veto power of the House of Lords, leaving the budget and all other legislation until the party has settled its account with the peers. The Irish members, too, are believed to support this view.

The more moderate liberals, seeing the possibility of the disorganization of the finances of the country by this course of action are urging the government first to introduce the budget, which the lords, accepting the result of the election as an endorsement of the government's financial policy, are already pledged to pass.

Insurgents Win Victory in Fight at Las Garitas

Forces of Nicaragua Government Are Defeated by Revolutionists Under General Mena.

BLUFIELD, Nic., Feb. 6.—Despatches received here describe the engagement which took place between the provisional forces under General Mena and the government troops. In an official dispatch General Mena says that he defeated 500 of the enemy, commanded by General Garcia, a Guatemalan, at Las Garitas, which is midway between La Libertad and Guaymas.

Mena completely routed the enemy, capturing many prisoners and rifles. The losses to the Madriz forces were heavy, while the provisionals suffered but slightly. General Mena is pushing forward to join General Chamorro at Comapa, which is well along the way to Managua. Chamorro in the last few days in his advance upon the capital executed a flank movement, thus evading the Madriz troops, who expected to engage him at Acopyapa. Comapa is one and one half days' march from Managua province, with a clear road from there to Granada.

Kills Germs

Nothing in medicine is known which accomplishes such vast good in so short a time with weak, broken-down, worn-out, diseased stomachs and sluggish, torpid, lazy livers, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—a standard remedy for germ-laden, impure blood. When you feel dull and sickish, the bile is not flowing right, and the whole system suffers. The organs lack power to convert food into energy. Bacterial germs thrive at the expense of the blood corpuscles. To escape worrisome stomach trouble and liver complaint, go to the aid of the blood corpuscles and kill off the germs that would otherwise invade your system.

Every day's delay means getting further away from health. Don't blunder. Use the intensely effective, non-alcoholic, non-secret—Golden Medical Discovery—the standard stomach, liver and blood medicine for more than 40 years. Get the genuine bearing Dr. Pierce's fac-simile Signature as shown in cut.

Gravest diseases spring from bowel neglect. When the bowels quit working, the liver, sympathetically, goes on strike; the stomach gets out of order and the blood impure. The first aid and the best is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They move and strengthen the bowels and make them regular—curing constipation with its long train of resultant disorders.
