

UNCLE SAM RECOVERS MONEY

Postoffice Regains $1,100 Which Robbers Took from Farmer.

POSTMAN FINDS IT IN MAILBOX

John V. Carlisle is Held Up by Negro Woman and Men at Night and Ratted with an Old Trick.

John V. Carlisle, a farmer living near Kearney, lost $1,100 when he was held up by negroes Monday night and recovered the same through the Omaha postoffice Tuesday morning and is now loudly extolling that institution as a recoverer of stolen property.

Carlisle was held up by a bunch of negroes on Thirteenth street near home while he was on his return to the Union station from a trip up to town to buy a pair of shoes.

He was en route to Oklahoma to buy a farm and stopped in Omaha between trains. He had with him about $50 in cash and two cashier's checks, one for $1,000, drawn through the Farmers National bank of Kearney, and another for $100, drawn through the Commercial National bank of Kearney.

Passing down Thirteenth street he was accosted in the dark by a colored woman, who asked him if he could make change for a dollar. He stopped to accommodate the woman, when he was pounced upon by her companions and his pocket book, containing the two checks, his cash was taken. He felt that resistance was useless and escaped from the assailants, went to the police station and reported his loss. The drag net was thrown out, but failed of results.

Mr. Carlisle determined not to give up the search for his valuables and remained over in the city until Tuesday morning.

In the meanwhile the thieves having disposed of the cash, considerably deposited the two drafts in the mail box at the corner of Fifteenth and Farnam streets, where they were found by the mail carrier for that district, James E. Wright of 3111 Leavenworth street, during his early morning collection and turned over to Assistant Postmaster Woodard.

Carlisle again appeared at the police station Tuesday at 10 o'clock and was informed that the drafts had been found. He went to the postoffice and got them.

Carlisle, while certain that it was a negro woman who first accosted him on South Thirteenth street, near Harney, is not certain that her companions were all negroes, there being two or three men in the party.

H. D. Foster Goes Up the Burlington Line

Omaha Man Succeeds George B. Dunbar in Chicago as Assistant General Auditor.

Harry D. Foster of Omaha, auditor of disbursements of the Burlington line west of the Missouri river, will become assistant general auditor of the Burlington route in Chicago on March 1. He will succeed George B. Dunbar, who will retire on that date after twenty-seven years' service.

Mr. Foster has been in the local offices about five years, coming here from Chicago as assistant to W. P. Durkin, the general auditor of the lines west. Prior to his work in Chicago he was connected with the offices at St. Joseph, Mo.

Mr. Foster will be succeeded in Omaha by J. D. Shields, now auditor of ticket accounts in Chicago. This appointment will bring back to Omaha a man who was drafted from the lines west of the river about a year ago. Mr. Shields was formerly auditor of freight and ticket accounts in Omaha in the position now held by J. W. Newell.

Mr. Dunbar's retirement ends a long term with the Burlington, as he first began his work with that road in 1883. He was then just out of Harvard college. He began his work in the freight department, later being transferred to the auditing department.

Edward Blakely, cashier in the passenger department of the Union Pacific railroad, leaves Thursday for Los Angeles where he will be passenger agent for the Hartman lines. He will be succeeded by G. O. Davis.

LACKAWANNA PERSISTS IN ATTACKING DIFFERENTIAL

Insists on Readjusting Freight Schedule that Omaha Jobbers Want to Retain.

In connection with the fight being made by the Omaha jobbers to retain the differential freight rate, now in existence between New York and Chicago and which governs about 45 per cent of the trade, the Lackawanna railroad holds fast to its position asking for a readjustment and increased rates.

A year and a half ago there was inaugurated from New York an additional all-rail differential by the New Haven road on a scale, New York to Chicago, of 10 cents below the standard all-rail rates. It has since been changed to a 5-cent scale, the same as the ocean and water. Its continuance is predicated on the existence of any other all-rail differential. That the company has also established an ocean and rail differential which it justifies by the other ocean and rail differential routes, which exist by virtue of outlets afforded by certain trunk lines to the Central Freight association territory.

The Grand Trunk was the only railroad that would not agree to advance the rail rate to 70 cents and add a differential to the rate.

MUST PAY UP WATER RENTALS

County Board Respects Omaha Funds to County $250,000 Due Omaha Water Company.

In making up the new tax apportionment the county board inadvertently overlooked the $250,000 that must be paid to the Omaha Water company for past due hydrant rentals. This amount was put into a judgment against the city by the United States court.

Comptroller Lobeck discovered the omission and the county commissioners have taken steps to provide for the necessary levy to care for the amount.
