DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Fred Deutchman.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—Mrs. Fred Deutchman died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Furrow in this city. Mrs. Deutchman, who was 65 years old, had disposed of her belongings after the death of her husband, only two months ago, and prepared to make an extended visit with a sister in Indiana. The very day of her intended departure she was stricken ill and failed rapidly. Seven children survive, and all were with the mother during her last illness, except one daughter, who lives in Switzerland. Funeral services were conducted today at the Furrow home by Rev. John H. Asling of the German Methodist church.

Mrs. Harry M. Regnier.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Feb. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—The wife of Harry M. Regnier, the local Burlington storekeeper, passed away in her home in this city very unexpectedly this afternoon. A husband and two daughters survive her. The body will be taken east Tuesday evening.

Kathleen Hladek.

Kathleen Hladek, who was 59 years of age, died Monday morning at 1708 South Eighth street. She leaves her husband, two sons and a daughter. The interment will be Wednesday morning at St. Wenceslaus cemetery.

Mrs. I. E. Jenkins.

BASIN, Wyo., Feb. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—Mrs. I. E. Jenkins, wife of one of the leading lumber dealers, died Saturday and her body was taken Monday to her old home at Sheridan, Wyo.

Donkey Larsfield.

Donkey Larsfield, who lived at 1819 Izard street, died at the county hospital Monday morning. He was 70 years of age and was a widower.

GRAFT UNCOVERED IN OHIO

Thousands of Dollars Spent, with No Return to State.

SCANDAL IN STATE PRINTING

Partner of Former State Printer Makes Confession of Method by Which Goods Were Paid For and Never Delivered.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14.—Chairman Beatty of the legislative graft probe committee appointed through the insistence of Governor Harmon, announced today that J. E. Breisford of Dayton, once partner of Mark Slater, former supervisor of state printing, had confessed to him of wholesale grafting in the department of printing at the time that Mr. Slater was in charge.

According to the confession of Breisford, from whom Slater bought goods, he and Slater divided $13,700 drawn from the state treasury on vouchers for the payment for stock never delivered to the state printing department.

Breisford said he received $5,000 for his share and Slater made a clean-up of the remainder.

According to the confession, all the stock sold by Breisford to Slater, and which stands on the books for something over $16,000, was purchased by Breisford in Cincinnati for $1,700, and was sold to Slater for $2,500. This was the only bona fide transaction, and upon it was based the fictitious transaction by which the two procured $13,700.

Breisford went on the stand today in the state probe investigation session and related the details of the transaction to the committee. He was shown a warrant, No. 1,256, upon which he was paid $5,501.75 for goods alleged to have been sold to the state bindery on December 7, 1905.

The entire list of goods itemized was read to him and he testified frankly that not a single item represented goods actually delivered by him to the state; that it was entirely a piece of graft.

Before testifying, the committee explained to him again that the testimony he might give could not be used against him in the criminal proceedings, and he stated that when the same statement was made last week he did not understand it.

The second bill shown him was of March 27, 1906, on which date he had drawn $278.12 for 100 pieces of cloth. He testified that the bill was padded 100 per cent; that only fifty pieces had been sold, making a graft on the item of $175.50. Similar testimony was given as to other bills.

Short Course at Estherville.

ESTHERVILLE, Ia., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—The Emmet county short course in stock raising, agriculture and domestic science will be held here one week, February 21 to 26. The citizens and business men of the city have subscribed over $800, to be given as premiums. The sessions will be in charge of professional men from the Iowa State college at Ames. The college also will ship for daily instruction one carload of live stock and one car of samples of grain, weeds and grass seed. Also on Monday and Tuesday only there will be on exhibition the champion and sweepstakes ears of corn of all the recent great corn shows, which cost Successful Farming company $800. Great interest is manifested in this the first short course, which hereafter will be a permanent enterprise. A large attendance is anticipated.

County Division Sustained.

BASIN, Wyo., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—The supreme court of Wyoming has just handed down a decision that confirms the division of Big Horn county, which was tested in the lower courts. The name of the new county will be Park. This decision has set the politicians in both counties going some. To Big Horn county it will be a blessing in disguise, as the county will now in all probability be solidly republican. Park, the new county, will be about seventy-five miles square, and contains large tracts of irrigated and range lands. It is too early to forecast the political complexion of Park county, though some persons claim that with good management it should be democratic.

FEE SYSTEM LONG ILLEGAL

Political Issue Made Out of Supreme Court Records.

STOCK FOOD MEN AVOID LAW

William Goldsberry, Reporter for Ottumwa Courier, Falls Heir to Big Sum—William Foster's Will.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Feb. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—Discovery was made today that in the office of the clerk of the supreme court a system of fee collections has been in vogue which is not authorized by law. A clerk is employed who makes copies of opinions for outside publishers, and who also makes copies for the use of the attorneys and the court reporter, and the fees for this work are not turned into the state treasury. About a dozen years ago, under Clerk Jones, who is now a subordinate in the same office, this matter came up and the state sued Jones to recover similar fees. A settlement was effected and a law passed forbidding such fees being kept by anyone. Now Deputy Clerk Grubb, who is a candidate for the nomination against Clerk Bousquet, has laid the matter before the attorney general for such action as he may deem proper.

Stock Food Men Wary.

Pure Food Commissioner Wright, in the work of enforcing the pure food law, finds that makers of stock foods are resorting to various schemes to prevent payment of the state license fees. One company has changed entirely the name of its stock food product, though analysis shows no change in the product. Another company making a very common stock food claims that its product is in fact a medical substance and is not under the stock food law.

Reporter Gets Legacy.

It is said here that William Goldsberry, a reporter on the Ottumwa Courier, has fallen heir to the sum of $150,000, left him by his aunt, Mrs. Clara McIntire, widow of former State Senator McIntire. Goldsberry is 17 years of age and will get the money when he becomes of age. He was always a favorite with Senator McIntire and his wife.

By the terms of the will of the late General Lewis B. Parsons of Illinois, Parsons college of Fairfield, Ia., will eventually receive the entire estate, amounting to $100,000. General Parsons is the son of the founder of Parsons college.

William Foster's Will.

By the will of the late William Foster, forty years in theatrical business here, his old opera house is to be torn down and a modern business block erected there. It was his evident intent that his heirs should get out of the theatrical business. He left $4,000 to Edward Millard, long a faithful employe and practically manager of his opera house business.

DEMOCRATS FEAST AND TALK

ticket. An insurgent is a democrat who has not quite discovered himself as yet.

Pleads for Harmony.

"With one-half of the republicans agreeing with us it is a good time as democrats to show our appreciation of the compliment by trying to agree with one another.

"What the country needs is more men in office, with the honesty and the courage to enforce the laws that we have now, rather than a constant cry for new laws or more laws as an excuse for inaction or delay.

"All must agree that the divorcement of our courts and schools from the field of party politics is an essential requisite to good government. The fearful mistake made in giving partisanship continued license to run riot through our schools is shown by the recent dismissal of the president of our leading state normal in a manner that brings a blush of shame to the people of the state. This school is supported by taxation, levied upon the property of the citizens of Nebraska. This fact makes more flagrant the injustice shown in the dismissal of an educator of national reputation from the presidency of a great school because petty partisanship was enthroned in power. When the democratic governor got through with the Normal School board, created under the law, later set aside by the courts, there were four democrats and three republicans members of the board, but it must not be forgotten that one of the republicans was Colonel Tom Majors of Peru, and the governor knew that if partisanship was attempted by a member of that board the colonel was more than a match for any two ordinary democrats at the game of politics, so the board was in fact by-partisan, if not a trifle overbalanced with republicanism.

"I hope to see the day come, and that quickly, when a declaration of party affiliations will not be demanded of a candidate for a seat upon the bench, who, if elected, sits in judgment upon the rights and liberties of us all, nor of the school man who has given into his hand the educational interests and the education of the children of the state."

Daylight Saloon Law.

Here the governor said the legislature redeemed all its pledges. He discussed the physical valuation law, the law prohibiting drinking on trains. He said of the daylight saloon law:

"The daylight saloon law has been sustained in every court wherein it has been assailed and has been found effective and easy of enforcement, and is being received with unqualified approbation by all classes of people. No law heretofore enacted ever won its way so quickly into popular approval and commendation. Even liquor dealers themselves, who were first furious at its enactment, are finding that it is helping to relieve them from many of the evils of their business. All who have given the matter a moment's attention know the all-night saloon is a natural haunt of vice and crime, and the producer of misery and woe, and the man who advocates it or opposes the regulation provided by the 8 o'clock law is the advance agent and promoter of state-wide prohibition. The daylight saloon bill does not repeal the right of local option, the power of each community to determine for itself whether or not liquor shall be sold in that locality; the democratic legislature has given every municipality in the state the right to elect their own excise boards, which determine matters of license or no license, and regulation and policing within their borders.

"I am a democrat because I believe in local self-government. I believe in strict regulation of the liquor traffic, such as is provided under our present law. I know that there has been rebellion against this law and that some democrats have advocated its repeal, but the democratic party will never deny to the people the right to police the traffic by confining its sale to the hours which common business practice has made the rule for the sale of almost everything else that the householder needs.

"The democratic party must stand in the next campaign upon the record made by democrats in office and the results of the democratic legislature. The enactment of the 8 o'clock closing law was the most radical thing in the shape of liquor legislation accomplished by any political party in Nebraska since the passage of the Slocumb law. When the daylight bill came before the democratic governor for judgment thousands of active, loyal democrats over the state petitioned him to veto it. Trainloads of objectors and petitioners in boots came to the capitol, many of them active and influential party workers, who vowed if the executive approved the bill they would not only decapitate him politically, but they would forever desert the party. Few democratic leaders of prominence rallied to its support. In the face of seeming party condemnation, the bill was approved; it is gaining ground every day; thousands of democrats who condemned now approve it. Much is to be done yet to make its provisions effective. Because of the advantage gained by reason of the enactment of this law and its approval by the people, opposing the radicalism of prohibition upon one hand and the lawless liberty of unbridled license upon the other, standing always for loyalty to law and good government, we will win the unquestioned approval of the people of Nebraska at the next election."

W. H. Thompson on Tariff.

W. H. Thompson, the first speaker, talked of the Payne tariff bill and among other things said:

"That the Payne-Aldrich law is a contemptible betrayal of confidence needs no other or different proof than calling attention to those who in congress supported it, and those who voted against it; of those who now lend it their praise and those who condemn it. Even the president, who has declared it the best tariff bill ever enacted, will not be heard to deny its infamy by trying to hide behind the shadow of the 'My policy' of the man in darkest Africa.

"But I hear the cry from the opposition that some democrats helped in this iniquity. Let it be remembered, my republican friends who raise this cry, that your members of congress gained their victory by joining with what you call the worst element of the democratic party, and the democrats joined with what you call the best element of the republican party. Let it be further remembered that our worst minority joined with your majority, and your best minority joined with our majority.

"There is an old adage that 'Birds of a feather flock together.' Make your own application."

G. M. Hitchcock Sees Ruin.

Congressman G. M. Hitchcock of the Second district could not attend in person, but sent a letter to State Chairman Byrnes, which was read, in which he expatiated on national legislative conditions that he declared were "novel and amusing." His letter in part follows:

"Republican leaders after years of struggle to increase the cost of living gravely form committees to ascertain why the cost of living has increased.

"They appear to harbor no suspicion that enormous monopoly profits have anything to do with the wholesale plunder of the masses.

"Some of them point to the retail merchant and declare him to be the villian, yet the obvious fact is that competition in the retail trade is so intense and conditions so hard that during the last two years business failures in the United States have averaged over 1,000 per month, most of them in the retail trade.

"Some point to the farmer and say he is the one who is oppressing the country. They point to the price of farm products with horror, and yet they know the farmer is selling his products in competition with the "pauper" farm products of Europe, which the tariff protected manufacturer is not supposed to be able to do. They know that farming instead of being organzed into trusts is compelled to sell much of its products to trusts. They know that the farmer instead of being aided by a tariff has been for years burdened by it.

Demoralization in the Air.

"I might easily be tempted, Mr. Chairman, were I present at your dinner, to go on with a review of the demoralization so apparent to the standpat camp of republican headquarters. I could tell you of desperate insurgents staggering through their congressional duties first trying to cajole their dissatisfied constituents at home and then trying to placate the party organization here which controls patronage and campaign funds. I could tell you of the land fraud investigation, which even the enormous power of the administration was not able to smother. I could tell you of the suppressed sugar fraud investigation which is a scandal as great in its present treatment as in its past iniquities. I coud tell you of a cabinet officer who is chiefly a broker of patronage to control the next republican national convention. I could tell you of a republican party that for years has boasted of the Sherman anti-trust law now worried to desperation at the prospect that the supreme court in the pending tobacco and Standard Oil cases will decide that the law means what it says.

"I could go on indefinitely and paint a picture of g. o. p. demoralization, but I have already taken too much of the time which should belong to those who are present to address you."

CLAIMANT TO SACKVILLE PEERAGE LOSES HIS CASE

Suit to Establish Legal Title to Estate of the Late Lord Lionel is Dismissed.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Sackville peerage romance came to a prosaic end today with the dismissal of the petition of Ernst Henry Sackville-West, who sought to establish a legal claim to the title and estates of his father, the late Lord Lionel Sackville-West, former British minister at Washington. Sir John Bigham, president of the probate court, condemned the petitioner to pay the costs, which must have been very heavy. The petition was opposed by the present Lord Sackville, a nephew of the late lord, on the ground that his uncle had never married Josefa Duran, the mother of the petitioner.

SWOPE GRAND JURY BEGINS

Investigation Into Mystery Will Be Guarded with Secrecy.

PAXTON RESUMES HIS STORY

Executor of Estate Continues Testimony in Deposition in Civil Suit —Nurses Will Be Called to Depose.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 14.—All witnesses who tell their stories to the grand jury that today began investigating the Swope mystery, may have to repeat them before Frank P. Walsh, the attorney who is prosecuting Dr. R. Clark Hyde's suit for alleged slander. James Aylward, one of Mr. Walsh's assistants, stationed himself near the entrance of the grand jury room today and as the witnesses appeared to testify he served them with subpoenaes.

Still another inquiry into the case will be started on Wednesday, when in Kansas City, Kan., the deposition of Dr. C. H. Jordan, who had prescribed medicine for the Swope family, will be taken.

The grand jury has been afforded every facility to assist its members in getting information concerning the swope mystery. Every person who is believed to have any knowledge of the case has been subpoenaed as a witness. The court officials have announced that special precautions have been taken to keep any news from leaking from the grand jury room. The officials refused today to state in what order the witnesses would testify, and it was impossible to learn what important witness would be called first.

Much importance attaches to the testimony to be given by the three specialists, Dr. Ludwig Hektoen and Dr. Walter S. Hains of Chicago, and Dr. Victor Vaughn of Ann Arbor, Mich. The evidences to be given by these physicians, it is believed, will be the most valuable the grand jurors will have to consider when they form their conclusions as to what caused the deaths in the Swope family.

Swope Nurses to Testify.

John G. Paxton resumed his story in the office of Frank P. Walsh this morning. Mr. Paxton's deposition which was full of sensations Saturday again supplied the most interesting phase of the day's proceedings in the unraveling of the Swope mystery as he answered the searching questions of the Hyde attorneys. The testimony given as depositions in the civil suits will be valuable should criminal proceedings arise as the result of the grand jury investigation. The testimony can be used, however, only in trying to impeach witnesses. Both sides in a criminal suit would have access to the depositions whether the civil suit had been dismissed or remained in court.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope and the Swope nurses may next be called upon to give their depositions in the civil suits.

Medicine Contained Strychnine.

O. H. Gentry, a druggist of Independence, Mo., giving his deposition in the office of Frank P. Walsh today, testified that he sent a bottle of medicine containing strychnine to the Swope home for Colonel Swope's use just one week before the millionaire died.

Mr. Gentry said he was almost certain that it was on September 30 that Moss Hunton telephoned for a bottle of the medicine for "Cousin Tom." Mr. Hunton himself died the next day, October 1.

Mr. Gentry said that each teaspoonful of the medicine contained 1-100th of a grain of strychnine and that each bottle contained four-fifteenths of a grain. The witness testified that he had not sold more than four bottles of the medicine to the Swopes in the year before Colonel Swope died.

Frank P. Walsh announced today that a sheriff with a writ of attachment would guard the entrance to the grand jury room while Dr. Hektoen is testifying next Wednesday and that the physician would be served with the writ as he emerged from the grand jury hearing and be taken to Mr. Walsh's office to give his opinion in Dr. Hyde's damage suit. Dr. Hektoen was subpoenaed to give his deposition while he was here for the coroner's inquest and Mr. Walsh asserts that the specialist ignored the summons.

Miss Pearl Kellar, the nurse who attended Colonel Swope was among the witnesses summoned by the grand jury today.

Acquitted of Arson Charge.

ESTHERVILLE, Ia., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—The jury in the case of the state of Iowa against J. N. Miller of St. James, Minn., after being out about nine hours last night returned a verdict of not guilty. He was accused of burning his building and general merchandise stock at Gruver, Ia., on the night of October 9, 1908, to get the insurance.

HUNDRED YEARS OLD AND STILL IN GOOD HEALTH

Mrs. Elizabeth Littlejohn of Estherville, Ia., Outlives All Her Children.

ESTHERVILLE, Ia., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—At the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. G. W. Small, who resides about five miles west of this city, Mrs. Elizabeth Littlejohn Saturday celebrated her 100th birthday with a few invited friends and relatives.

Mrs. Littlejohn, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Wilson, was born February 12, 1810, at Ayr, Scotland. She was married June 3, 1844, and in 1851 they moved to the United States and settled in Grundy county, Illinois, where in August, 1869, Mr. Littlejohn died, and in February, 1901, Mrs. Littlejohn moved to Iowa, where she has since resided. She has been the mother of three children, all of whom are dead.

From all appearances Mrs. Littlejohn will live a number of years more, as she eats three meals a day and doesn't have any chronic ailments.
