

Small Women's Tailored Garments

TAILORED SUITS, DRESSES and COSTUMES—In announcing the completion of our Spring Displays we feel that we can now invite you to hearken to "the last words of Fashion." Our foreign affiliations—our connections at home—permit us to place before you the very "pick and flower" of the couturiers' art.

And perhaps the best part of all we have to say is that the prices, lowest to highest, considering the individual merit and beauty of each garment, are modest in every instance. Priced from $20, $25, $35 and up to $45. Sizes from 32 up to 38 bust.

The new and enlarged department is reached by either east or west aisles.

PINCHOT'S ORDEAL AN END

Vertrees Becomes Sarcastic as to Former Forester's Inferences.

LONG ARGUMENTS WITH WITNESS

Attorney Suggests Misstatements by Witness Are "Simple Mistakes," Those by Ballinger Are "Willful Deceptions."

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Gifford Pinchot concluded his testimony before the congressional committee of inquiry today by stating anew that he had practically no personal knowledge of the matters to which he had testified. He proceeded, however, to sum up once more the "inferences" which he drew from the documents already in evidence and from the statements of witnesses yet to be heard. Mr. Pinchot had been in the stand four days.

CRACKS IN ENGINE BOILERS

WELLINGTON, Wash., March 5.—All the bodies of the victims of the Wellington disaster will not be recovered for a month, according to a statement made by Superintendent O'Neill today. The great tree trunks that were carried down by the snow are entangled with the wreckage of the cars and other equipment make it difficult to get to the bodies. As soon as the line is opened to the outside world, which will be within eight or ten days, wrecking derricks can be sent to the scene and the trees and other debris cleared away.

OUR best physicians of the present day seek to cure patients by the use of food, rather than heavy drugs, and this is the true method. For all physicians agree that only from food can the body be rebuilt.

charges against the secretary of the Interior.

Motive for Dilliver Letter.

Mr. Vertrees here switched to Mr. Pinchot's motive in writing the letter to Senator Dilliver, which caused his removal.

"I wrote it because I thought it wise that the names of Messrs. Price and Shaw should be presented at the same time as Mr. Wickersham's defense of Mr. Ballinger and because Mr. Dilliver asked me to."

"I thought it was about an even chance whether I would be removed or not."

"You wrote that letter rather than resign, although the relations between you and the president were not cordial, as the letters you have introduced here have shown."

"When did you first make up your mind to attack Secretary Ballinger?"

"I was not aware of any 'movement' having for its purpose the removal of Secretary Ballinger."

"What is the exception?" asked Senator Nelson.

"I learned from Mr. Ballinger himself his attitude against the leasing of coal lands."

Attorney Pepper also got into trouble with the committee by going over ground already covered and was asked to be as brief as possible.

When luncheon recess was ordered Mr. Vertrees stated that he would like to have about five minutes with the witness on cross-examination this afternoon.

Mr. Pinchot has charged that Mr. Ballinger appeared before a committee of congress in the interest of fraudulent claimants. Mr. Vertrees sought to show that his appearance had to do only with the new coal land law.

Mr. Pinchot said that in his testimony before the congressional committee Mr. Ballinger urged an amendment which would have let the Cunningham claims go to patent at $10 an acre, whereas all future claimants would be assessed "not less than $25 an acre."

Mr. Vertrees-I am insinuating nothing, Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Pinchot-That is not my name.

Mr. Vertrees-Well, didn't Mr. Roosevelt say what I just read to you?

Mr. Pinchot-Of course he did.

Mr. Vertrees argued with the witness, just as the witness had relied wholly upon the statements of others in his testimony.

Mr. Pinchot finally, by dint of much questioning, was brought to the admission that Mr. Ballinger's statement to the president was in effect that, "according to Schwartz's answer, the record shows," etc., and that it was not an original statement by the secretary.

over Mr. Gallinger's amendment including savings banks and trust companies in the specification of the bill. It was bitterly opposed by Mr. Heyburn and in less degree by Mr. Bailey. Mr. Heyburn went so far as to declare that if this provision should be retained the bill would be repudiated by the people.

Mr. Gallinger contended that to include uncertain state banks and exclude the most stable banks of the country would be inconsistent.

Another amendment looking to a change of phraseology called out a bitter assault by Mr. Heyburn. It provided that no interest should be computed on fractions of a dollar. It was adopted after extended debate.

The Idaho senator contended that the banks would gain immensely by the provision and declared it showed an utter disregard of the interest of the poor people. During the debate on the amendment, Senator Page made reply to a recent estimate of Senator Bailey's to the effect that $1,000 additional government employees would be rendered necessary by the pending legislation. Mr. Page declared 500 men could do the work.

Replying, Mr. Bailey said that the work would be so distributed over the country that it would be impossible to get along without a very large extra force.

Democrats Are Against It.
A number of democratic senators, including Messrs. Gore, Stone and Bacon spoke in general opposition to the measure. The three mentioned saw in the bill the forerunner of a great central bank and regarded the legislation as unconstitutional.

Mr. Bacon declared that the bill had been absolutely revolutionized by the Smoot amendment. He argued that owing to the latitude allowed to the Treasury department the postal funds would be collected in the big banks.

Incidentally he referred to the purchase of the old New York customs house by the National City bank of that city as one of the great scandals of the age.

and the doors closed." meaning, of course, to say, "the galleries will be cleared and the doors closed."

The postal savings bank bill had been before the senate since January 23.

CHARLES SLOAN MAKES STATEMENT OF POSITION
Fillmore County Candidate for Congress Announces Platform on Which He Will Run.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, March 5.—(Special.)—Charles H. Sloan of Fillmore county, who recently announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for congress in the Fourth district, when in Lincoln today made the following statement:

"I am opposed to both Cannon and Canning and so publicly declared myself in a republican speech at the Seward county fair last fall. But that is simply a negative statement of the real question. There should be such reasonable modification of the rules that a strong, tactful, and determined republican speaker, mindful of the rights of each member, and the necessary dispatch of business, backed by a progressive membership, could re-establish the national house of representatives in its position of primacy in legislation as was intended by the makers of the constitution. Every two years the people grant new commissions to the members of the house and they should, insofar as ascertainable, enact legislation reflecting the will of the people."

"I believe in a protective tariff as advocated by William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft. I favor the establishment of a tariff commission composed of experts with such delegated powers as will enable them to lay a scientific basis upon which congress may intelligently revise the tariff, being careful always to protect the American farmer and the American laborer, with due consideration for the American consumer."

"The Fourth congressional district is essentially an agricultural district. I should, of course, be interested in the many agricultural problems which now and for years to come will affect the district and the state. Conservation, irrigation, reclamation, and other kindred subjects related to agriculture are to be all absorbing problems in the immediate, as well as in the remote future, and upon their proper solution, the west will rank with the east as a power to be consulted and reckoned with and not as heretofore too often ignored."
