AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

William McCarty, One of Nebraska's Oldest Native Sons, is Dead.

DEATH FOLLOWS ACCIDENT

He Was Born Sixty Years Ago on the Farm on Which He Died—Attempt to Rob Tanner Residence.

William McCarty, 69 years old, died Sunday on his farm near South Omaha, where he had lived all his life. He was one of the oldest native sons of the state. The cause of his death is said to have been a complication after an accident two or three weeks ago. He was hauling hay and fell off the load, breaking his arm. The arm failed to properly knit, and it is thought there was an internal injury in addition. He had planned to move, himself and family, to Alberta, Canada, and in fact had shipped part of the household goods. He has a grown family and was one of the best known farmers of Harpy county. The arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

Tanner Residence Visited. An attempt was made Saturday night to rob the residence of Senator J. M. Tanner, Twenty-fourth and B streets. The burglars attempted to force the front door with some kind of jimmy or crowbar. The face of the door and the lintel were scarred by the instrument in several places. The attempt was not successful, however, and the work was left unfinished.

To Save Johnson's Leg.

Charles Johnson, the aged man who was so severely injured by the Union Pacific train Saturday night, may not lose his leg, it is believed, after the efforts of the doctor and the nursing staff of the South Omaha hospital corps can benefit him. It was feared Saturday after the examination that the amputation would have to follow as soon as he recovered slightly from the shock. Sunday morning Dr. Koutsky found that the crushed leg had some life left in it and that circulation was not entirely cut off. The bone was broken so as to give hope of its mending. The doctor, therefore, reduced the fracture and will try to save the limb. The only thing which may act against this plan is the age of the man and his feeble condition of health. He wandered from his home in Omaha.

S. Arion Lewis

Out for Congress

Makes Race as Bryan Democrat and Insurgent Republican, Subsidizing Farmers Instead of Ships.

S. Arion Lewis, the irrepressible improver and seller of acre property, is out for congress. Mr. Lewis is known as a man who can in a speech spread-eagle any acre ever platted. He has been practicing up on eloquence for many years. Councils, school boards, improvement clubs and other civic bodies have listened to Lewis, whether they would or not. He announces himself in the congressional race as an "insurgent republican and Bryan democrat." He carefully mentions the republican end of his handle, despite the fact that Bryan has been his honored guide and mentor while for three years he flourished in the political swamps. Mr. Lewis' platform will be "subsidize the farmer instead of the ships."

Some Things You Want to Know

State Department Index.

The most complete index to diplomatic transactions in the world is now being made at the State Department in Washington. It will represent the most thorough application of modern methods to the transaction of governmental business that is to be found. It has kept pace with current events since it was started in 1906, and gradually all of the archives of the department back of that year will be classified and indexed in the same way, so that when the whole work is completed, the entire diplomatic history of the world, as it has affected the United States, will be placed at the finger tips of him who has access to the cards.

Roughly speaking, the matters with which the State Department has to do are of two kinds—those which are of permanent importance and those which are ephemeral. The latter probably cease to be of value after a year or so, yet under the law may not be destroyed. But a greater proportion of the correspondence and information of the State Department is of permanent value than in the case of any other department. The smallest item of today may affect the diplomacy of the world a dozen years hence. It is important that these things be filed away, and equally important that they be readily accessible when they are needed. They would be needless in the haystack of voluminous record were it not for the card index.

That the volume of correspondence of the department is large is shown by the fact that it has required nearly 500,000 cards to index the accumulated matter of less than four years. That it covers a wide range is shown by the fact that it may relate to an international situation affecting all the powers, or to the registration of the marriage of John Smith and Susie Brown in Paris, with the American consul as witness. Its services are in requisition in American ship matters, where their protection gathers business information, general and specific, from all parts of the world, thus bringing foreign commercial opportunity within reach of American enterprise.

The negotiations that led to the execution of the Argentine ship contract, whereby American ship builders have been copied by all the other commercial nations, is a great benefit from it as the German manufacturer receives from the German service it is simply because he overlooks the opportunities. The German and Englishman eagerly seize every door of foreign trade opportunity opened by their consular representatives.

All matters pertaining to the American end of international conferences and congresses are arranged through the State Department. Various institutions, including missionary societies, have been assured through its labors, as in the case of the establishment of schools, hospitals and the like. It maintains a record of the marriage of all American citizens abroad, when performed in the presence of American consuls and certified by them, and of American children born abroad. It also maintains a register of all Americans residing in foreign lands, according to consular districts. Inquiries are made relative to the whereabouts or fate of American citizens who drop out of sight. For instance, an electrical engineer went to Ecuador, and his friends lose track of him. The department endeavors to locate him.

When Americans are deprived of their treaty rights abroad or those of aliena infringed in the United States the department conducts the international correspondence. It collects information regarding banks, as in the case of postal savings banks and inland waterways abroad. Information about treaties, gives information to foreign governments concerning marriage and divorce laws in the states, and many other matters, looks after the United States courts in extra-territorial regions, and issues letters rogatory in court cases which are tried in one country while testimony is desired from another country. It looks after all treaties, matters of extradition, foreign and international tariff relations and all similar subjects.

In addition to this it keeps a record of all diplomatic notables of the world—a sort of "who's who" of the nations. For instance, when any other power appoints one of its citizens on a board or court of arbitration it is very desirable for the United States to know the antecedents of that person. And when a country sends a

English Turns Deaf Ear to Stern Voice—Dahmanites Talk Little of Editor's Action as Affecting Mayor.

Congressman Hitchcock's announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate has brought to a head the local situation among ambitious democrats. Mr. Hitchcock knows all the circumstances and goes into the fight with his eyes open. Flynn refused to discuss the possible effect of Hitchcock's candidacy on the mayor's chances, but it is evident he is not worrying. The Dahmanites have always insisted the mayor's friends cannot be side-tracked from him by any contingency that may arise. They assert his strength in the gradely is greater than that of any other Omaha democrat and figure that even if Bryan cannot get in to help Dahman he will not do him any more damage than he will Shallenberger.

NOTICE IN BEE EFFECTIVE

Item About John Cornelius Shea, Harvard Alumnus, Brings Quick Results.

The notice in the Bee of Saturday, asking for information concerning John Cornelius Shea, for the use of the Harvard Alumni association, brought results. Mr. Shea was a justice of the peace in Omaha in the late '90s, and afterwards was deputy county attorney during the administration of J. J. Mahoney. Later he was elected to the state senate from Douglas county, and, while serving in that capacity, contracted the illness which resulted in his death in the summer of 1891. Mr. Shea left a widow and family, but Mrs. Shea afterward married and it is not known whether any of the family is now living in Omaha.

PLENTY TO CLAIM FORTUNE

Relatives of Michael Walsh, Eccentric, Not Slow to Appear.

EAGER FOR THAT $100,000 ESTATE

He Left Ireland in a Huff Years Ago, Came to Nebraska and Got Rich, but Never Married.

Fifty years Michael Walsh remained estranged from his brothers and sister and for a half century, too, they did not even know his whereabouts. In comparatively recent time he died, leaving a fortune of more than $100,000, and this money will in all likelihood go to the brothers and sister who had not heard of him in all this time. Michael Walsh had a quarrel in the family home in Ireland when he was just a boy and he ran away to America in the year 1861. He went west, stopped in Omaha a little while and then set out for the western part of the state. Most of his life he passed in Aurora. He got into the cattle business, made money and bought land. He prospered in business all his life and when he died in May, 1909, he left a net worth at least $100,000.

No Relatives or Will.

Walsh had no married, he had no known relatives and he left no will. The estate was put into the hands of an administrator and it is there today. News of the unclaimed fortune spread over the country and some second cousins in Ireland applied for the property. Since then a New York attorney, E. H. Tunnicliffe, has located two men, Luke and John Walsh, who are said to be half-brothers of Michael Walsh. They are residents of New York and their sister, Mrs. Catherine Walsh Flaherty, lives in Ireland. In behalf of these three heirs the law firm of Baxter & Van Dusen, has filed a petition which will be called up for hearing at Aurora March 23. If the evidences of relationship are well established and there is said to be plenty of such evidence, the second cousin claimants will lose entirely.

Old Michael Walsh was a well known character in the city of the state where he lived. He was once elected a justice of the peace and his decisions became famous. One achievement of his was the challenge he sent an enemy to fight a duel. This read: "I hereby challenge you to a duel, I to name the weapons and you to name the places." This cartel got the writer in trouble for a time, as a warrant for his arrest followed.

CLARA RALLS GIVES OFFICERS A TIP THAT PANS OUT

Detectives Locate a "Plant" of Ten Suits of Clothes with a Forensic Lawbreaker.

Clara Ralls, who was to marry John Curtis, the alleged car burglar, who attempted to commit suicide when he was arrested Saturday morning, will appear before the court Sunday in respect of being implicated in the robberies and was arrested late Saturday afternoon, after Curtis had been taken to the station. A tip furnished to Chief of Detectives Savage by the Ralls woman led to the seizure of ten suits of clothes at a Douglas street pawn shop Sunday, which were said to have been turned over to Edward Delaney, 1813 Capitol avenue, by Curtis Delaney admitted, when arrested by detectives working on the case, that he pawned the suits at the shop of David Crouse, 1124 Douglas street, and that they were received by him from Curtis. It is probable that Crouse may be arrested for receiving stolen property, as Captain Savage declares that no entry appeared upon his books showing that the stuff had been pawned.

SALONIST MUST PAY FAMILY OF PATRON WHO GOES TO PEN

H. H. King Held for $1,500 Because Customer Got Drunk and Committed Burglary.

Mrs. Mary Hike of South Omaha, whose husband got drunk on whisky bought at the saloon of H. H. King of that city, and while under the influence of this same whisky, committed an act of burglary, which landed him in the penitentiary for two years, has obtained a verdict for damages in the sum of $1,500 against King.

The case was tried in district court before Judge Kennedy. The jury reached a verdict Saturday night at 9:30, and it was read the first thing Monday morning. Mrs. Hike has sued for $10,000. The fact that she won at all is unusual in the light of other such cases in the district court of Douglas county.

While deliberating, the jury sent word to Judge Kennedy, asking if it could find a verdict for money to be held in trust for the children of Mr. and Mrs. Hike, but the court declined to answer the remarkable question.

LEATHER WORKERS GO SLOW

Want More Wages and Short Day, but Will Not Trade Matters This Week.

No further move has been made by the leather workers in Omaha except to make their demands upon the manufacturers for an increase of 15 per cent on piece work and an eight hour day instead of a ten hour day. It is stated that nothing will be done before Saturday. Word was received Saturday from the executive officers in Chicago, asking the members of the union to contract for no work which they could not complete by March 21, as it is expected a strike will be called for that day unless some settlement is reached. It is estimated that 150 men are affected in Omaha by the demands for more pay. Marks Bros. are said to be employing about sixty-five men; Maney & Co., thirty-five; the Humane Collar company, twenty-five; and the Cornish shoe about fifteen. It is said that the men in Omaha work fifty-eight hours a week instead of ten hours a day.

WITHNELL FOR FIRE ZONE

City Building Inspector Outlines an Extension of Limits.

WOULD ESTABLISH VARIOUS LINES

Regulations for Buildings in Principal Part of City Should Be Kept More Strict Than in the Outlying Sections.

Inquiry brings out the fact that extension of the fire limits of Omaha has been given some consideration by City Building Inspector Withnell, but the city councilmen now serving have never had the matter up, except where some citizen desired to secure exemption from the requirements of the existing ordinance. Mr. Withnell thinks the fire limits as they exist at present could be wisely extended, but not with the same requirements to the outer limits of any extension that could be made.

"In a good many cities they have zones," said Mr. Withnell. "Within the fire limits proper, say as now established in this city, or possibly somewhat enlarged, the requirements should remain as stringent as they are now, or possibly call for all fire-proof construction. Beyond this we should have another zone, within which the requirements might be modified to a certain degree, and still work a great improvement in the character of the buildings to be erected hereafter. "Then the outlying sections that are being so rapidly built up might be included in a third zone, with sufficient safeguards provided so as to call for safe and sanitary construction in every case where a permit is issued. This scheme seems to me most desirable for Omaha at this time, and some such plan cannot be worked out and adopted any too soon."

M'GOVERN HAS BILL TO MAKE RAILROADS CLEAN STREETS

Ordinance Contemplates Forcing Companies to Remove Dirt for Use of Thoroughfares.

Councilman M'Govern probably will introduce an ordinance at the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening to compel railroad companies enjoying privileges in the streets to keep clean the parts of thoroughfares on which they have tracks.

If the ordinance can legally be made to cover the parts of streets and alleys on which tracks already have been placed it will be drawn that way. If this cannot be done, the new measure will be made to apply to all parts of the public property on which tracks may hereafter be laid. Street Commissioner Flynn has been complaining for a long time that the loading and unloading of cars on service tracks in the streets and alleys creates a filthy condition, especially in the spring and fall. "Right now you will find places where tracks occupy the streets that are covered with dirt from the cars and loading wagons to the depth of a foot or more. It accumulates a little at a time and eventually piles up so that it requires a special crew to clean the stuff away. Surely if the city gives the companies and their customers the right to use public streets and alleys for their own convenience, the people thus favored should engage to keep clean the sections they use. An ordinance to compel them to do so is badly needed."

BADLY WASTED TO A MERE SKELETON

With Terrible Eruptions—Grew Worse in Spite of Doctors—Would Scratch and Tear Flesh Unless Hands were Tied—Mother Says

HE WOULD HAVE DIED BUT FOR CUTICURA

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad that I had to tie his hands in cloth at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. So I gave him a small piece of the Soap to try and a little of the Ointment. I took them home without any faith, but to please her I tried it and it seemed to dry up the sores a little. I sent to a drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of the Ointment and followed directions. At the end of two months the sores were all healed. He has never had any more of any kind since. He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for the most wonderful Cuticura Soap and Ointment my child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Cuticura Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. I am a nurse and my profession brings me into many different families and I have seen many cases of this kind. My story and recommend Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Ebert Sheldon, R. F. D. 1, Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 23, 1909."
