GIRL JUMPS INTO CISTERN

Without Apparent Cause Anna Homelia Tries to Drown Herself.

RELENTS ON STRIKING WATER

Mark Houver, an Iowa Farmer, Dives into Deep Cistern and Holds the Fainting Woman Till Help Comes.

"I just dove in head first and when I came to the surface, grabbed the woman around the waist and treaded water until they let down a ladder."

This was the simple statement made by Mark Houver, after he had rescued a drowning woman from a deep cistern this morning at 10:30 o'clock, at 1430 South Seventeenth street. He did not seem to think that he had done anything out of the ordinary and when complimented upon his bravery, merely said, "I just had to do it."

The woman who was rescued was Anna Homelia, a domestic employed at the home of Ferdinand Stretz, 1430 South Seventeenth street. Shortly after 10 o'clock she went to a cistern in the rear of the house to draw some water. It is supposed that when she reached the edge of the high curbing a sudden desire to commit suicide seized her and she plunged headlong into the gaping mouth. After she struck the water her screams attracted the attention of neighbors and Houver rushed from the home of his sister next door, and, clearing a low fence with a bound, reached the edge of the cistern. He saw the woman struggling in the water, and making frantic attempts to grasp the slimy sides of the well.

He threw off his coat and hat and plunged headfirst into the water. The water is about twenty-five feet deep, and as he came to the surface he grasped the woman's waist, and held her, now unconscious, while he treaded water until Lyman Blacman and Mrs. C. Marverd, neighbors, came to his aid.

They had ropes around a ladder and let it down and Houver ascended, carrying Miss Homelia in his arms.

The woman was taken into the house and Police Surgeon Bishop was called. After working over her for thirty minutes she revived and was pronounced out of danger.

Why Miss Homelia should attempt to take her life is not known. She has been in the employ of Mr. Stretz for more than a year and has always shown a cheerful disposition. She seldom received company and seemed contented with her home. As far as is known she has never received gentlemen callers, and her employer does not think that a love affair is involved.

This morning, however, Mr. Stretz says she appeared to be hysterical, but he could not account for her condition.

Mark Houver, the rescuer, lives at Salix, Ia., and arrived in the city Tuesday night for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Marverd, 1712 South Seventeenth street. He is a farmer and a small man physically.

Receiver Asked for Independent Phone Company

Proceedings Are Authorized by the Committee on Reorganization and Will Be in Los Angeles.

Proceedings for the appointment of a receiver for the Omaha Independent Telephone company have been begun. The committee on reorganization in Omaha has procured enough bonds to insure its purpose and has authorized the trust company in Los Angeles that has held the securities to proceed with steps for the receivership.

Frank Woods of Lincoln, head of the independent telephone system in Nebraska and the United States, is the hub of all the present reorganization, though Edson Rich and Frank B. Johnson of Omaha are members of the committee.

But a short time is expected to elapse till the receiver will be on the ground to take charge of the plant and continue the work of reorganization.
