YOUNG FOLKS SHOW ORIGINALITY

All the Societies Are Putting On Pro grams that Indicate More Than Casual Thought in This Outside Line of Work.

The literary societies of the Omaha High school held their regular meetings Friday. The general trend of the programs were toward dramatics and debates, the intervals being filled with recitations and musi-

The Elaine society had one of the most interesting programs, consisting of vaudeville, modeled on the most modern plans. Josephine Congdon was in charge as manager of the show and she produced some startling effects. The program consisted of the Singing Sisters, Helen Eastman, Ruth Clarke, Minnie Johnson, Kathleen Carr, Ada Morris and Catherine Woodworth; Mile, De Dia and Bianca, famous "Parisan Marja Del Carros, a world's famous violinist; European Novelty Gymnasts, in an eriginal stunt; kinodrome.

The Margaret Fuller society held a debate on the question, "Resolved, that a School Paper is a Benefit to a High School." The affirmative of the argument was taken by Elizabeth Doud and the negative by Marion Lombard. Zudelle Smith gave a reading and Helen Vom Weg a paper. Prof. Nathan Bernstein addressed the society on some school questions. Alice West read an essay and Amy Nelson gave a violin solo as a closing number.

CONSCIENCELESS WRETCH STOLE MUNGER'S CLOCK

Result Is that Everybody Around the Judge's Office Has

Nearly everybody about the office of the United States district judge has been more or less late for the last day or two because some conscienceless wretch has stolen the office clock from the sanctum-sanctorum of Judge W. H. Munger.

The clock has finally been traced to a pawnbroker's shop and the police authorities have in hoc a party giving the name of F. L. Parker, an alleged limb of the law who has been recognized as the chap that pawned the clock. The clock was a small affair, a little black leather-covered concern, worth $4 or $5, but it kent good time.

Along about Monday last someone stole in overcoat from the Union Pacific headquarters and pawned it. Later he put in an appearance at the pawnbroker's with the government clock; this was on Tuesday, and the pawnbroker reported the case after he had accepted the clock, and it was finally traced to Judge Munger's office. As the office of Judge Munger is always open during the daytime it was easy enough for the thief to slip in and get away with the clock.

The case will come up for hearing Saturday morning before Judge Crawford and may be later venued to the federal court on the ground of the clock being government property.
