Fairbanks Back with Tidings of World's Peace

Former Vice President Completes Tour of Globe and Says All is Well Abroad.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indianapolis, former vice president of the United States, came home last night with a message of peace. After an absence of nearly a year on a tour around the world, he arrived in New York harbor on the steamer Mauretania. On the same vessel came James A. Patten, the Chicago speculator, who was so roughly handled recently on the Manchester exchange. Peace with Japan was the burden of Mr. Fairbanks' interview, and, by a strange coincidence, he reaches New York in time to be an honor guest with President Taft at a dinner of the American Peace and Arbitration league at the Hotel Astor Tuesday night. "President Roosevelt's administration," said Mr. Fairbanks, "greatly strengthened the ties of good neighborhood between us and other powers, and President Taft is understood abroad as in favor of a policy of international peace. Those who now and then fill the air with unfounded rumors of possible trouble between us and any foreign power do not thereby advance our world-wide interest or contribute to our national prestige. "If there seems to be any conflict of view with respect to Japanese and American rights in Manchuria or elsewhere, it does not follow that that means grave difficulty. There is nothing in the present relations between the two countries which can justify any imputation upon the entire good faith of either. "I observed among the British people the same generous regard for the United States which was so signally manifested during our last war. Germany and France entertain for the United States nothing but sentiments of good will. Emperor William and President Fallieres and the responsible ministers of the two governments lose no suitable opportunity to emphasize this fact. In the other countries which I have visited the same generous regard for America prevails."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 18.—Preparations for the home-coming celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks were completed today. The former vice president and his wife will be given a hearty welcome and the whole state will be represented in the assembly for the speechmaking in Monument Place, if the weather be fair, or in Tomlinson hall if it be rainy. Governor Thomas Marshall will be present.

LIVELY PACE OF SPENDERS

Present Generation Outranks Parents in the Matter of High Living.

We have ceased to be thrifty. The nearest approach most of us make to that virtue is to get our banks to let us overdraw our accounts. The fathers have eaten grapes and the children are eating grapefruit. We used to buy apples by the barrel; now we buy them as we would buy jewelry, each in its separate wrapper. We used to eat pot roasts; now we must have porterhouse steaks. Our wives used to help the general housework girl with the cooking; now we need two maids, a laundress, and a man to wash windows. When we were boys we did chores and wore our father's old clothes; nowadays the American boy needs an allowance, stockings that match his neckties, and a tuxedo jacket. We used to think it an extravagance to keep a hundred-and-fifty-dollar horse and a hundred-dollar buggy; now we buy an automobile and mortgage our house to pay for it. "Easy come, easy go," was the old motto; "Easy come, gone before it comes," is the modern. One chief cause of high prices is trust—or creditor's trust. Everybody wants to sell us something and charge it to our account. So we accumulate them and acquire a habit of reckless expenditure. What difference does it make whether eggs are 35 cents or 40 cents a dozen, if we do not have to pay cash for them? We are spend-thrifts in the midst of a credit-system orgy. When we sober up, prices will come down.—The World Today.

Alma Man Dies on Train. CRESTON, Ia., March 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Dr. George Runk, a practicing physician of Alma, Neb., died on Burlington train No. 1 at Charton, Ia., this morning. The body was brought to an undertaking establishment here and prepared for burial and was sent west tonight. Dr. Runk was enroute home after ineffective treatment for tuberculosis in a hospital at Hillsdale, near Chicago. He was accompanied by his wife, parents and brother.

Lungs back may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Liniment two or three times a day, with a vigorous rubbing at each application.

Demand for Babies Exceeds Supply

New Orleans Will Import Another Carload of Infants from New York.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—The demand for babies here has reached such proportions that it is feared there will be a serious shortage in the supply. A carload of babies from the New York Foundling and Orphan asylum was given away here last week. Many women clamored for babies in vain, and so numerous are the applications that the institution has decided to send another carload of infants to New Orleans.

DISCOUNT RATE IS ADVANCED

Directors of Bank of England Raise Minimum from Three to Four Per Cent.

LONDON, March 17.—The directors of the Bank of England at their weekly meeting today raised the minimum rate of discount from 3 to 4 per cent. This action was caused by the continued foreign demands for gold, which seriously depleted the bank's reserves. There are now nearly $5,000,000 lower than at the same time last year and further withdrawals of the metal necessitated measures to increase the bank's holding.

For some time India has been drawing heavily on the available supplies of gold and considerable sums are still wanted to move the large crops. In addition to this demand there is a large number of foreign issues, including a big delivery of American bonds in exchange for British gold, to be provided for. Forthcoming internal monetary requirements also demand the building up of the reserve. It is quite usual for the bank rate to be advanced at this time of the year. No doubt one of the chief causes therefor is the government's failure to collect taxes. This made money so plentiful that it weakened continental exchange on London and made it easier for foreign markets to take gold from this center.

Alaskan Coal Land Contest at Washington

Real Cause of Ballinger-Pinchot Probe Now Before United States Commissioner.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The contest involving the question of validity of title of the Cunningham coal claims in Alaska, the basic cause of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, was transferred to Washington yesterday, when examination of witnesses in this city was begun before United States Commissioner W. J. McCree. Horace T. Jones, a special agent of the general land office, occupied the stand during the entire day, his testimony relating primarily to the evidence he and L. E. Glavin collected from the Cunningham entrymen. An echo of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation was injected into the proceedings by an inquiry from E. C. Hughes, chief counsel for the claimants, referring to the sensational statement made by Mr. Jones before the congressional committee that James M. Sherman, in charge of the government cases, practically had thrown the case away by giving counsel for the claimants an opportunity to examine all the evidence collected by the agents of the land office.

Mr. Hughes asked the witness if he did not know that counsel for the claimants had copies of nearly all of the affidavits rendered the government agents by the entrymen. The witness denied that he had any such knowledge. He admitted that he told Fred H. Mason, one of the claimants whose affidavit he procured, that Mr. Ballinger, then commissioner of the general office, was disposed to work for remedial legislation to permit the acquisition of larger areas of Alaskan coal lands than was then permissible.

The witness frequently clashed with the attorneys for the entrymen, who charged that Mr. Jones was injecting conclusions and arguments into his testimony. As the hearing progressed and the encounters continued with increased intensity of feeling, Mr. Hughes asked the commissioner if the witness could not be held in contempt in view of the disrespect he had exhibited to the authority under which the inquiry was being prosecuted. The commissioner replied that he regretted that he had no such power.

Crown Prince Opens Exhibit in Berlin

Ambassador and Mrs. Hill and Many Persons Prominent in German Society Attend.

BERLIN, March 17.—Crown Prince Frederick William today opened the American Art exhibition. He came with a large staff to the galleries of the Royal Academy, where several hundred persons distinguished in the official, artistic and social life of Berlin awaited the opening. The royal party before having their own enjoyment of the pictures, American Ambassador Hill and all the other members of the American embassy, except Secretary Irwin M. Laughlin, who has been called home by the death of a brother, were present, with their wives. Others attending the opening were American Consul General Thakara, Chancellor von Bethemann-Hollweg, Princess Frederick Leopold of Prussia, Ministers Trotz Zu Rois Sydow and Debrueck, Colonel Ernest von Eisel, formerly military attaché at Washington, and Dr. Theodore Lewald, German commissioner general to the St. Louis exposition.

The crown prince passed through the galleries leisurely, examining each of the 205 numbers and frequently remarking on the technique, beauty or interest inspired by the subjects. He said he wished he could take several of the pictures home with him. He spent some moments in conversation with Ambassador and Mrs. Hill, and also took occasion to thank Hugo Reisinger of New York for his work in arranging the exhibition. Gari Melcher's portrait of Theodore Roosevelt appeared to have special interest for the crown prince, who stood before it a long time. The group of Whittier's works also held his close attention.

OLD HAND AT THE HELM

New General Manager of the Western Union, with His Record of Forty Years.

Beverly Brooks, the new general manager of the Western Union, who takes up the more active duties of Colonel Clowry, president of the telegraph company, was born July 6, 1869, in Wheelock, Tex. His father, a practicing physician, who had enlisted in the Second Texas regiment as captain in the outbreak of Shiloh. Beverly Brooks was then 3 years old, and almost from his early boyhood he had no play like other lads he knew, but was obliged to work. Sitting in his office at No. 159 Broadway, Mr. Brooks seems to recall the events of his youth with difficulty. He is a man of large proportions, and his decidedly eagle-like glance seems to be fixed rather upon the things of the present than upon the remote past. His replies were invariably concise. Most of them would barely fill an ordinary telegraph blank. "My life has been a most uneventful one," he said "and the story of it can hardly be interesting. Yes, I went to school until I was 11½. It was a private school in our town which had several tutors. From there I went to work as a messenger boy for the Western Union in Navasota, Tex.

There are apparently few incidents of his boyhood that Mr. Brooks could recall as worth mentioning. "I never played ball," he said, "and I never went fishing, hunting and boating as other boys do. I don't mean to say I never fished, but it was a rare occasion with me. When I wasn't running messages I studied the code and soon learned to send and receive messages."

When asked if he had had other ambitions besides those identified with his present occupation, Mr. Brooks reflected a moment, but failed to remember any. "My interest was always in telegraphy; it came to me quite naturally," he explained. "I became an operator April 1, 1871, three months before I was 12 years old. The duties of an operator in those days included cleaning batteries, climbing poles and mending wires. I can remember having to leave the switchboard, harness a pony and ride, with a coil of wire, along the old government line, which extended about fifteen miles out. After mending a wire I would have to ride back at a break-neck pace and tend switchboard. Of course while I was away there was no telegraphing done."

Mr. Brooks' narrative was given in a most deliberate manner as if he were trying to summon up occurrences long erased from his memory. Concerning his success he spoke as little as possible. "I always worked, and it was natural for me to move up as I went along," he said on this score. "Opening came and I was told to fill them, very likely because there was no one else."

"It has been a kind of digging process for me all my life; I've had to work for everything," he added in a barely audible tone. "There is one thing that I'm proud of," announced Mr. Brooks, this time not waiting for further questioning. "I married one of the finest girls in the country." The memory of the achievement brought a smile and a flush to his face. "She was a Miss Gerald, and," he went on, "I have four sons I'm quite proud of, too."—New York Tribune.

Frank H. Young Sued by Woman

Lincoln Capitalist Named in Ten-Thousand-Dollar Suit for Alleged Breach of Promise.

GREELEY, Colo., March 18.—(Special Telegram.)—By the service of summons on Frank H. Young, a wealthy capitalist of Lincoln, Neb., he is made defendant in a $10,000 breach of promise suit instituted by Mrs. Cora Whitaker of Red Cloud, Neb. The two were here all day yesterday closeted with Mrs. Whitaker's attorney and an effort was made to secure a settlement. This proved futile and the summons followed. Young has been well known here for six years. He is a widower of about 50 years, with grown children and owns controlling interests in five banks in Nebraska.

FORMER MAYOR OF ST. LOUIS DROPS DEAD ON THE STREET

Henry Zeigenheim, Famed for Remark, "We Got a Moon Yet, Ain't It?"

ST. LOUIS, March 18.—Henry Zeigenheim, former mayor of St. Louis, who made famous the remark, "We got a moon yet, ain't it?" during his administration, in refusing a petition that the streets be lighted, dropped dead in the street tonight from apoplexy. Zeigenheim was 55 years old, president of the Lafayette bank, and was rated a millionaire. He was mayor from 1897 to 1901. During his administration seven members of the municipal assembly took part in legislative transactions that afterwards sent them to the penitentiary.
