

PROMINENT ODD FELLOW SAVED FROM CATARRH, CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

Mr. George Parrott. Member of the Noble Grand Lodge, No. 135, Independent Order Odd Fellows, Glencoe, Ontario.

A Neglected Cough—Dangerous Catarrh Followed

I have been using Peruna for some time for a cough and catarrh of the throat with very satisfactory results. Having neglected the cough, catarrh developed, and my physicians said I was threatened with catarrh of the stomach. My breath was very offensive, and I was troubled with nausea. Less than two bottles of Peruna cured me.—Mr. George Parrott.

Had Dyspepsia 25 Years.

Mr. Sidney Wessels, Merritt, Ont., Canada, writes: "I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion for twenty years, during which time I tried different doctors, but did not get the desired results. I have been compelled for weeks at a time to give up work, being completely prostrated. I had to confine myself to a milk diet, as nothing would remain on my stomach. I had about given up, thinking my case incurable, when I heard of Peruna and decided to try it. One bottle made a great change, and after using another bottle of this wonderful medicine I had complete freedom from pain, my appetite had returned and I could again enjoy my meals.

"I believe Peruna is the grandest medicine under the sun. To-day I weigh over 225 pounds. Is it any wonder that I praise Peruna?" Says Pe-ru-na Entirely Believed. Mr. Emile Marlon, 1879 Ontario St., Montreal, Canada, writes: "After taking nine bottles of Peruna, I find that I am cured. I still take it occasionally. For me it is the best medicine in the world. I have recommended it to a number of persons."

CANNON WILL NOT RESIGN

deprecate—on the part of the minority party. "The speaker cannot be unkind of the fact, as evidenced by three previous elections to the speakership, that in the past he has enjoyed the confidence of the republican party of the country and of the republican members of the house; but the assault upon the speaker of the house by the minority, supplemented by the efforts of the so-called insurgents, show that the democratic minority, aided by a number of so-called insurgents, constituting 15 per cent of the majority party in the house, is now in the majority and that the speaker of the house is not in harmony with the actual majority of the house, as evidenced by the vote just taken.

Which Path to Follow.

"There are two courses open for the speaker to pursue. One is to resign and permit the new combination of democrats and insurgents to choose a speaker in harmony with its acts and purposes. The other is for that combination to declare a vacancy in the office of speaker and proceed to the election of a new speaker. "After consideration at this stage of the session of the house, with much of important legislation pending involving the pledges of the republican platform and their crystallization into law, believing that his resignation might consume weeks of time in the reorganization of the house, the speaker, being in harmony with republican policies and desirous of carrying them out, declines, by his own motion, to precipitate a contest upon the house in the election of a new speaker, a contest that might greatly endanger the final passage of all legislation necessary to redeem republican pledges and fulfill republican promises.

"This is one reason why the speaker does not resign, and another reason is this: In the judgment of the present speaker a resignation, in and of itself, is a confession of weakness or mistake, or an apology for past actions.

His Conscience is Clear.

"The speaker is not conscious of doing any political wrong. The same rules are in force in this house that have been in force for two decades. The speaker has construed the rules as he found them and as they have been construed by previous speakers.

STONE TALKS FOR ENGINEERS

Head of Brotherhood Appears Before Mediators in Firemen's Difficulty.

TRAINMEN BLAME SWITCHMEN

Finding of Illinois Board of Arbitration is Not Satisfactory to Former Order, but it Will Be Accepted.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, arrived today to represent his organization in the mediation proceedings involving the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and the Railway Managers' association of forty-seven railroads. The mediators—Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission and C. P. Nell, United States commissioner of labor—resumed the hearings today. It is believed the mediation will end early next week.

The decision of the state board of arbitration in awarding the Chicago switchmen a 2-cent an hour increase, but refusing to meet a demand for payment for overtime, is generally accepted as final by the railroad employes, but it is not satisfactory to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, according to Vice President A. F. Whitmer. "The decision is not satisfactory to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen," Mr. Whitmer said today, "but we will abide by it because we agreed to do so. We believe that the greatest barrier in the way of granting time and a half for overtime was the action taken by the Switchmen's Union of North America in withdrawing a similar request and agreeing to arbitrate only the question of an increase in wages."

According to the first reports from the board of arbitration, it is understood that the men had been granted time and a half for overtime, but that was later found to be incorrect. "Miners' Committee Adjourns." CINCINNATI, O., March 19.—There can be no final determination of the controversy between the mine owners and mine workers of the United States until some day next week. The joint conference of operators and miners of the central competitive field has placed the entire matter back into the hands of the joint scale committee. That committee has referred it to its own sub-committee, adjourning until Monday to await the report.

MINERS MAKE OVERTURES

Indications that Coal Scale Will Be Signed Before April 1.

CINCINNATI, March 19.—A direct overture for peaceful solution of the difficulty between the operators and union miners of the bituminous miners of the country was made for the union Mine Workers of North America here today. At the request of President Lewis the gathering adopted a resolution giving its representatives authority to do anything necessary to reach an agreement with the operators. The resolution, however, being predicated upon the promise of the miners' leaders that the demand for increased wages shall not be eliminated entirely. The action paves the way for a compromise.

CANNON OFF THE COMMITTEE

decision of the chair and the question was put: "Shall the decision of the chair stand as the determination of the house?" While the roll was being called, Mr. Cannon surrendered the chair to Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania, one of the "old guard."

Norris Amends Resolution.

It soon became known to members on both sides that an agreement had been entered into by insurgents and democrats for an amendment to the Norris resolution, so as to provide for a committee on rules to consist of six republicans and four democrats, representatives of each party to be selected by party caucuses and elected by the house.

Mr. Olmsted, in the chair, announced the house had refused to uphold the decision of the speaker by a vote of 190 to 152.

Mr. Olmsted then ordered the reading of the Norris resolution. He had hardly done so when Speaker Cannon returned and took the gavel.

Norris sought an agreement for a division of time for the debate on the resolution. He suggested one and a half hours on each side be agreed upon for the debate. Dazell at once accepted.

To this proposed agreement Roderberg of Illinois objected, saying he thought there should be allowed five hours on either side for the debate.

Provisions of Substitute.

A demand for the question put short all effort for consent and Mr. Norris, who was surrounded by a group of insurgents, offered an amended resolution, which he said he would support. It provided for a committee on rules to consist of ten members, six republicans and four democrats, instead of the present committee of five members, three republicans and two democrats.

It provided further that the committee on rules should be elected by the house and that the speaker shall not be a member of it, also that the committee should elect its own chairman from its own membership.

The substitute resolution also provided that the new committee should be selected within ten days from the passage of the resolution.

Speaks for Opposition.

"I will assent to no proposition that does not eliminate the speaker for all time to come from the committee on rules," said Mr. Clark. "That is my position. In that I speak for the democrats of the house and the insurgent republicans. We cannot give members of congress the power they are entitled to without taking from the speaker some of the power he now enjoys. "If it does not work well" it can change the rules again. It has been definitely settled that this house can do what it pleases, when it wants to do it."

On the republican side, Representative Nye of Minnesota, a brother of the famous "Bibi" Nye, humorist, arose.

"I feel," he said, "that the country as well as a great party which we have here, may certainly regret this occurrence and will regret it seriously."

"It looks like a mutiny against the captain and crew of the ship and that, in the storm at night," declared the Minnesota member, as the applause among the regular republicans gave way to shouts all over the republican side. As the uproar died down, Mr. Nye shouted in his loudest tones that if the ship of his party was to go down, he would do down with it.

Poelker, Martin of South Dakota and Lenot of Wisconsin, all insurgents, spoke briefly, justifying their course in assisting in the overthrow of the power of the speaker and the committee on rules.

Mr. Min suggested he had a resolution for the creation of a committee on rules. That resolution provided for a committee of ten members, six republicans and four democrats, all to be elected by the house. The committee would elect its own chairman and after March 3, 1911, the speaker would be the eligible for membership on the committee.

Norris Substitute Carries.

Concluding the heated debate, Mr. Norris disavowed any personal feeling in the efforts he had made for a revision of the house rules.

"This effort to change the rules," said he, "is not ended as a personal slap at the speaker or anyone else. There is no feeling against the speaker unless it has been brought into this house by the speaker or his friends."

"All over this land," declared Mr. Norris, "our constituents are praying and hoping that this movement will be successful."

Derisive laughter on the republican side and continued applause from democrats and insurgents greeted this remark.

By a vote of 178 to 152 the previous question was ordered, and an aye and nay vote was taken on the substitute resolution offered by Mr. Norris to his original resolution.

During the repeated roll call the speaker stood in his place, and with countenance that gave no indications of the workings of his mind. He was the center of observation of the 2,000 in the galleries, as well as of the members who had remained his supporters or had turned their backs on him.

By a vote of 183 to 153 the substitute offered by Mr. Norris for his original resolution was adopted. On the floor and in the galleries applause was long continued.

The speaker then laid before the house for its action the resolution as amended. Mr. Tawney demanded the ayes and noes upon that, and again the roll was called. The question involved in this vote was precisely similar to that of the previous vote, but the demand for it forced another record of the attitude of the insurgents.

Cannon Game to Last.

As the last of the roll calls were nearing completion the speaker talked with one of the clerks at his desk and laughed heartily. The final adoption of the resolution by a vote of 191 to 155 was then announced.

"I move that the house do now adjourn," shouted Mr. Norris of Nebraska, as soon as the vote on his resolution had been declared by the speaker.

A mid great confusion the calm voice of Speaker Cannon was heard.

"The speaker," he said, in tones that suggested the asking of a favor, "asks the indulgence of the house for not to exceed three minutes to make a statement."

As the speaker resumed his request more quickly than he ever had been before by the gavel of the speaker. The house was breathless as the speaker began his statement.

Quiet attention characterized the assembly until the speaker said in clear tones: "The speaker is not conscious of having done any political wrong."

These words proved to be a signal for a prolonged demonstration. When he declared there was "no coherent republican party in the house," there was a renewal of cheers. Finally when the speaker expressed his readiness to be superseded by a new speaker there was a tremendous demonstration on the republican side.

Burleson Attacks Cannon.

Sherley of Kentucky hurried to the side of Underwood of Alabama and held an excited conversation, while Burleson of Texas arose waving a paper and attempting to be recognized.

Rushing before the speaker's desk, Sherley in shouts that could have been heard throughout the capitol building had not confusion drowned them, moved to adjourn.

"Oh, no! Oh, no!" came shouts of derision from the republican side.

"The gentleman from Texas has been recognized," shouted Mr. Tawney.

The speaker, demanding order, said there were motions that might take precedence of the motion to adjourn. Upon the suggestion of the speaker, Mr. Burleson read his resolution.

Quickly the democrats turned from their insurgent allies. Mr. Norris sat quietly in his place until the question arose whether the house should proceed to consider the Burleson resolution or whether the speaker should entertain the motion to adjourn. Going to the open space before the speaker's chair, Mr. Norris doggedly refused to give way to the group of democrats and insurgents who came to offer advice. He insisted that out of courtesy to the speaker he had only withheld his resolution and was entitled to have it put to the house. "The motion to adjourn being in order, the speaker would be gratified if the gentleman from Nebraska would withhold it," pleaded the speaker.

"Withdraw it," shouted a hundred democrats.

Norris Forces Motion.

Mr. Norris insisting that his motion was still before the house, Mr. Cannon remarked it occurred to him that the gentleman from Nebraska was right.

"No! no!" shouted the men who wanted to complete the elimination of the speaker at one session.

"No! no!" shouted at the same time the great republican majority, who now saw the discomfiture of the insurgents in the movement when they were forced to consider the election of a speaker and realized that in spite of their best efforts the house might be turned over to the democratic minority.

At once the democrats and regular republicans joined forces for the humiliation of the insurgents, viva voce vote being put on the motion to adjourn there was but a faint response, while the negative vote was given in enormous volume.

Norris, still hoping to avoid the issue of electing another speaker, asked for a record of his motion to adjourn and fourteen insurgents arose to support that demand.

"Not a sufficient number," declared the speaker, amid jeers that were directed toward the insurgents.

The question then reverted to the Burleson resolution and the ayes and noes were demanded. The roll call.

"The speaker surrenders the chair to the gentleman from New York," announced Mr. Cannon, looking toward Representative Payne. Amid loud applause the speaker left the chair on the republican side on the house and nodding to his republican colleagues with a smile, passed out into the marble lobby and went to his private office.

Clark's Name Mentioned.

"After the adoption of this resolution will it be improper to nominate Champ Clark of Missouri for the speakership?" inquired Mr. Clark of Florida.

Mr. Tawney taunted the Floridian that it would be in order when the resolution was voted down, a contingency which the gentleman from Florida did not appear to anticipate. Then came the roll call. The names of insurgents were carefully noted and their responses greeted with jeers and applause.

Cooper of Wisconsin, voting "aye," was greeted with mingled cheers and hisses. Mr. Gaines, called the reading clerk.

"No," answered the West Virginian, amid jeers from his republican colleagues who sat back in their seats and laughed and jeered and the "insurgents" cast their votes against the resolution and for the first time in days voted in unison with their old party associates.

Gardner of Massachusetts was loudly cheered when he voted against the resolution. Hayes of California, Norris of Nebraska, and Gronna, among others, were laughed at, cheered on or jeered, according to the mood of the "regulars."

Burleson Motion Falls.

Then came a scene of wild confusion when the vote, 191 to 155 against the Burleson resolution was announced.

Almost and with what they conceived to be their final victory, the republicans arose and yelled themselves hoarse. Some wept.

"I move that we adjourn," suggested Mr. Payne, after he had surrendered his place in the chair as Speaker Cannon came in amid the confusion an wild exhibition of enthusiasm on the part of his party colleagues.

"And this side of the house makes the motion," remarked Representative Mann, amid laughter.

There was no more demand for a roll call. All were glad to adjourn and thus ended the long battle, probably without a precedent in the congress of the United States.

Then burst upon the assemblage the strains of the jovial song, "For He's a Jolly Fellow." Men who had not sung before for many a year, joined in the refrain.

As the strains were being sung Speaker Cannon stepped down from the dais upon which he had been standing, and nodding and smiling toward his colleagues, held a reception shaking the hands of many of those who had stood beside him.

Men Convicted of Assault.

DEADWOOD, S. D., March 19.—(Special.)—The first conviction secured in the circuit court during the present criminal term was the verdict of the jury in the retrial of Dominic Peretti and Frank Spruiviere charged with a brutal assault upon James Miller, the Mogul Mining company timekeeper at Terry last month. The two men were found guilty of assault and battery and will probably be given a short term in the county jail. The conviction followed the disqualifying of the old panel and the summoning of a new jury of farmers by the coroner.
